School board appoints new tennis coach, revises kindergarten, library policies

By FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Board of Education, at its regular meeting Monday, gave its approval to two revised policies, approved the appointment of a tennis coach and discussed attendance at the ceremony in Ann Arbor Saturday during which the school's veteran coach, Dan Carey, will be initiated in the Michigan High Scool Football Coaches Hall of Fame.

The revised policues which included the rewording of the policies to clarify them related to children attending kindergarten and selection of books for the school library. The policy relating to attendance at kindergarten strongly suggests that children reach the age of five years by September in order to attend kindergarten.

The second policy relates to the selection of materials for the school library. The language was changed somewhat in an effort to clarify the policy.

The naming of Football Coach Don Carey to the High School Hall of Fame brought praise from the bord members. However, because of prior commitments not everyone will be able to attend. However, the school will be represented by a delegaton.

The special election relating to financing a buildig for the Flight Service Station should the FFA decide to locate it in Charlevoix received the support of the board. "It would mean a great deal to the area. This is the type of thing we should suppot" Mes Novek, board president, said.

Vane H. Smith, high school principal, advised that Commencement exercises will be held at the high school gymnasium at 3 p.m. Sunday, June 5, one hour laer than in the past.

A baccelaureate Service sponsoed by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association has been scheduled for Wednesday, May 25. Further information about this will be announced.

The next meeting of the Charlevoix Board of Education is scheduled for April 18.

The appointment of Erik Lundteigen as tennis coach was approved. The tennis program will be conducted this spring and will be followed by an evaluation.

Shamrock changes hands

ownership on St. Patrick's Day 1973 from Archie LaFreniere, the Mackens followed tradition and made the transfer on the same date 10 years later.

Dr. and Mrs. Macken will be assisted in their new venture by Mr. and Mrs. Richard (Dick and Joyce) Moreno who, with their children, Jarrett and Jessica, have already taken up residency on the island.

The Mackens themselves are no longer considered newcomers to the island. They first came here in 1961, fell in love with the place and now have a summer home on Green's Bay where, with their children, Tim, Shawn, Kathleen, Patrick, Kelly and Wendy, they spend the summer months.

Dr. Macken was heard to say that living on the island and owning an Irish pub there was next best to living in Ireland.

The Mackens feel that Beaver Island has a great future and have plans for being a part of it. In addition to owning the Shamrock, they have announced plans for opening an art gallery, to be known as the Island Gallery, on the waterfront with artists in residence throughout the summer.

Beaver Island has a colorful history that dates back to the days of King James Strang and his Mormon Kingdom in the mid-1850s.

Though the Shamrock has not been around that many years, it, too, has a colorful background.

As the former owner, Archie LaFreniere tells the story, his father, Neis LaFreniere, and his brother-in-law, Lloyd McDonough, had the building constructed when the Bishop of the Grand Rapids Diocese, Joseph B. Pinton, did not feel it was proper for parishioners to be dancing in the parish hall and called a halt to it. Everyone knows how the Irish love to dance and so that they might have such a place, the senior LaFreniere and McDonough had the hall built and named it the Village Inn.

There are those who recall that when the place was opened the band that played was composed of Clarence Palmer on the banjo, Raymond Cole on the saxophone, Jimmy Floyd on the violin and Agnes Bestman at the piano. Today another Palmer, Ed by name, plays the piano and guitar at the same place.

This was in the 1920s. A few years later there was a change in bishops and the ban on dancing in the parish hall was lifted. But what to do with a dance hall that was no longer needed? At about this time, the Eighteenth Amendment was about to be repealed and LaFreniere, businessman that he was, applied for and was granted one of the first liquor licenses issued in northern Michigan which was all he needed, for he had the building. In 1933 the Village Inn became the first legal bar on the island.

A few years later, LaFreniere thought it would be more practical and safer if the bar was moved to the west side of the main street from its original site on the bay. The property across the street was purchased.

A moving company from Charlevoix was engaged and came to the island for the moving. "The building was jacked up and placed on huge beams in preparation for the move. However, no one wanted to close the bar so my dad remained behind the bar during the entire operation" Archie LaFreniere recalled, adding that "My father boasted that he never lost a customer or spilled a drop as the building was turned around in the middle of the street and backed onto the new foundation built to receive it."

Later in the 1930s, the bar served as a courtroom when a man from southern Michigan, whose name no one recalls, was charged with striking a young island lad who later died. The man was found innocent and soon after departed the island.

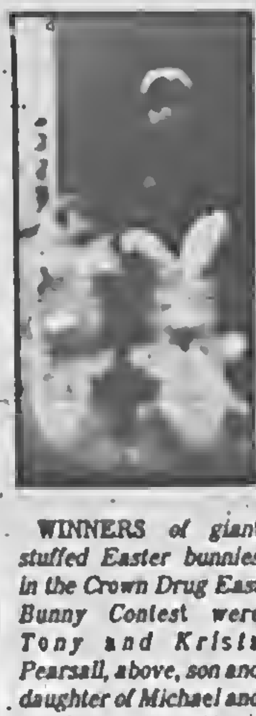
In the fall of 1937, LaFreniere sold the business, complete with building, land and inventory, to his sons, Archie and Vernon (Dick) and their brother-in-law, Lawrence McDonough, for $3,400. A short time later the trio decided the name of "Shamrock" would be a more fitting name for a bar in an Irish settlement. The brothers then purchased McDonough's interest in the business and, in the 1940s when Archie returned from the service following World War II, he became the sole owner and his brother devoted his time to the general store.

In 1973, the business was offered for sale and was purchased by Ms. Beckers, a former teacher who decided she needed a change from the classroom. In 1975 she remodeled the original structure, doubling its size by adding a dining room finished in shipwreck lumber with a massive stone fireplace, a kitchen and additional storage areas.

With the addition of the dining room, the Shamrock became the only year-around restaurant on the island as well known for its fine home-cooked food as it is for its bar.

The Mackens plan to continue the operation as its was. Ms. Beckers will remain for a period to initiate them into the business of operating an Irish pub where the small town hospitality combined with the informal atmosphere make a visit to the Shamrock a memorable experience.

Ed Wojan Realty handled the sale of the Shamrock which carried a price tag of upward to $225,000 which included the entire inventory as well as the real estate and other personal property.



WINNERS of giant stuffed Easter bunnies in the Crown Drug East Bunny Contest were Tony and Krista Pearsall, above, son and daughter of Michael and Della Pearsall of Charlevoix. Recovery from heart surgery involves gradual series of therapeutic exercises

Today rehabilitation is an integral part of the medical care for heart attacks for most patients. In the following article, Dr. Bruce Lindsay of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Staff discusses cardiac rehabilitation and what it means to recovering heart patients.

In the past ten years, cardiac rehabilitation has become part of the standard care for selected patients recuperating from heart attacks.

Most rehabilitation programs begin the second or third day of hospitalization when the patient is taught the basic concepts of coronary artery disease and its common symptoms. Medications and the type of care the patient can expect are fully explained to help make him more comfortable in the intensive care setting. He is taught to restrict the cholesterol in his diet and smokers are encouraged to discontinue their habit. The importance of moderate exercise and ways of releasing tension are emphasized.

While the patient is hospitalized, American Heart Association video tapes are used for instruction. The tapes review common symptoms of cardiovascular disease, the principles of therapy, good dietary habits and life style changes. The nursing staff and physicians review important points and answer specific questions.

About half of all heart attack patients admitted to the hospital have no complications. These patients begin low level physical activity as early as the first day after their heart attack. Patients with complications begin more gradually after their condition has stabilized.

At Charlevoix Area Hospital we have modified a cardiac rehabilitation program developed at Emory University. All rehabilitation programs are based on the physician's assessment of the patient and the program is tailored to his needs. A series of graduated exercises are closely supervised by the nurses and the physical therapist with particular attention to the heart rate, blood pressure and presence or absence of symptoms.

Within a week or two most patients are able to walk up and down the hospital corridors and climb a short flight of stairs without difficulty. Some patients are given treadmill tests near their discharge time to assess their response to exercise.

By discharge, most patients are walking with ease and are advised how to gradually increase their physical activity.

Sexual intercourse is not as stressful as most patients believe and can generally be resumed about four to six weeks after release from the hospital. By ten weeks, most patients can walk a full mile daily. Calisthenics are used to maintain good muscle tone in the arms as well as the legs. This is particularly important for people whose work involves physical labor but is also important for patients whose work is more sedentary.

Most patients are able to return to work within two months but this decision is largely based on the type of work the patient does.

Most studies show that exercises cannot improve coronary circulation nor do they shrink blockages in the coronary ateries. Nonetheless, rehabilitation programs generally result in a greater sense of well-being and encourage the patient to resume an active and rewarding life.

Weathervane Terrace listed in prestigious guide

The Weathervane Terrace Hotel has been listed in the 1983 edition of the world renowned "Mobil Travel Guide". This announcement was made today by Kjell Johansson, CHA, Manager.

Over 20,000 hotels, motels, resorts, and restaurants are listed and rated on a one-to-five star basis in the seven volume guide, which has been compared by travel experts to the famed "Guide Michiline".

To be listen in the Mobile Travel Guide, the establishment must be personally inspected by an impartial trained inspector, who is employed by a completely independent organization which has instituted a set of standards for listings and ratings.

Each of the seven regional editions provides valuable information on local history, sightseeing, amusements, sports, and recreational facilities, in addition to the star-rated lodging and food listings. Also included are a regional road atlas and detailed maps of major cities, special auto-tour routes, and helpful advice to travelers.

Johansson indicates that this is the fourth consecutive year that the Weathervane Terrace Hotel has been selected to appear in the Guide.

If you're in the 25% Federal Tax Bracket and you deposit $2,000 in a Charlevoix County State Bank Individual Retirement Account (IRA) you'll pay $500 less in Federal Income Taxes this April 15th.

If you're in the 35% tax bracket you'll pay $700 less.

And if you're in the 50% bracket you'll pay $1,000 less.

Not only that, the $2,000 deduction from your gross income may well put you in a slightly lower tax bracket overall, so you'll be rewarded there too.

And you won't pay any Federal Tax on the deposit or the interest it earns 'til you're retired, and probably in a lower tax bracket.

The maximum yearly deposit is $2,000 for an individual, $2,250 for a couple with one working spouse, or $4,000 for a couple with both working.

FAA bonding shot down

by DAVE KNIGHT

Supporters of a Charlevoix County bid for location of a Federal Aviation Administration flight service station in the county will meet this week to study their options following a resounding defeat by the voters April 7 of a bond issue that would have guaranteed financing for the project.

A meager ten percent of the county's registered voters turned out Thursday with 1,458 ballots cast out of a potential 14,000. The final tally was 515 in favor of the proposal and 930 against (some ballots are spoiled thus the total number cast does not add up to the actual tally).

Had it passed, the proposal would have authorized the issuance by the county of up to $750,000 in general obligation bonds to build the flight service station if Charlevoix County was chosen as the site for the facility. Members of the ad hoc committee supporting the bid saw the bonding authorization as crucial to their efforts.

According to County Planner Larry Sullivan, however, who coordinated the drive for the bonding on behalf of the county's Economic Development Corporation (EDC), Charlevoix County is still in the running for the site.

Sullivan said that options to now be considered include a fund raiser of some kind or outright private ownership of the building. He said the committee will be meeting sometime this week to examine these and other alternatives.

In only three of 23 voting units in the county, the City of Charlevoix's First Ward, Charlevoix Township, and Norwood Township, did the bonding proposal pass. It failed by wide margins in almost all of the eastern areas of the county.

Vote totals were as follows with "yes" votes in each unit listed first. Townships: Bay 14-28; Chandler 2-14; Charlevoix 86-52; Evangeline 7-16; Eveline 10-30; Hayes 22-56; Hudson 6-28; Marion 32-32; Melrose 9-80; Norwood 30-16; Peaine 0-16; St. James 19-28; South Arm 18-54; Wilson 12-44; Cities: Charlevoix 174-182; Boyne City 28-70; East Jordan 40-92.

Consumers drops temporary fuel rack plan

by TOM DAMMANN

Consumers Power Company is discarding its plan to ask the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NCR) for permission to temporarily add an extra fuel rack to the spent fuel pool at the Big Rock Point nuclear power plant.

Complete removal of all fuel bundles from the reactor had been thought necessary in order to make a 10 year inspection of the reactor's interior.

But the spent fuel pool is already so full that it can store only 61 more fuel assemblies. There are 84 bundles in the reactor, so an additional storage rack would be necessary to store the surplus 23 bundles.

The new plan calls for storing 61 bundles in the spent fuel pool, according to Big Rock Point spokesman, Robert Grupp.

The 23 bundles remaining in the reactor could then be rearranged to permit the insertion of a telescoping electronic ultra sonic probe to detect flaws in the metal casing, welds and nozzles, Big Rock Superintendent David Hoffman explained in a telephone interview last week. The inspection will be performed by personnel of Rockwell Co. of California, he said.

The first plan was discarded when it became obvious that obtaining all the affidavits required by the NRC would take too long, Grupp explained.

"There was also the probability of a public hearing on the application, which would have taken more time and incurred more legal costs," Grupp added.

He said the target date has now been set back from the original May 15 to June 3, and that the plant will be shut down for 70 days. He added that new fuel has been ordered so that the reactor can be refueled, after the inspection, to run for another year.

But there are still problems, according to NRC resident inspector Geoffrey Wright.

He explained that on May 21, last year, Gus C. Lainas, Assistant Director for Safety Assessment, Division of Licensing of the NRC had posed nine questions concerning the "structural adequacy" of the spent fuel pool and its ability to withstand the extreme heat that might occur should cooling devices fail in the event of an accident.

In a subsequent letter, dated July 2, 1982, the NRC ordered the Jackson based utility not to put a single bit of fuel, spent or otherwise, into the spent fuel pool until those questions were answered.

"I believe Consumers has answered the nine questions, though possibly not in the form requested," Wright told a reporter on the phone. "But I have received nothing in writing lifting the ban and until I do, I cannot allow Consumers to put one bit of fuel in the spent fuel pool."

He added that he knows the questions and answers are currently under review at NRC headquarters in Bethesday, Md.

Apprised of this, Grupp answered, "We don't anticipate any problems. We intend to go ahead on June 3."

The question of the criticality, or the ability of the stored nuclear waste to reach a nuclear reaction or meltdown in the spent fuel pool, is a principle issue in the utility's four year old request to more than the double the number of spent fuel bundles in the pool.

The issue was raised by the Concerned Citizens of the Charlevoix Area, which is opposing Consumer's request on the grounds that Big Rock, the second oldest nuclear power plant still operating in the nation, already threatens the life and health of area citizens.

Testimony on the issue was presented to a NRC Atomic Safety

CCC to intervene

Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix (CCC), it was learned Monday night, have decided to intervene in a revised plan by Consumers Power to temporarily shift 61 fuel bundles from its Big Rock nuclear plant reactor to the spent fuel pool during an automated, ten-year inspection of the reactor this summer.

The notice of CCC's intention to intervene goes directly to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC), not the Atomic Safety and Licensing Board which has been deliberating the Consumers Power longstanding request for permanently increased spent fuel storage capacity.

According to their statement sent to the NRC Monday, the CCC "are intervening in Consumers Power Company's proposed addition of spent fuel into the pool exceeding the present 132 fuel assemblies (which are already in the pool) for inspection or any other purposes."

The CCC maintains in its statement that there are inadequate means to cool the fuel pool in the event of an accident that would cause the pool to boil. The intervention claims that a make-up water line to be used in such an event is not dedicated (installed for only one use) as it should be and that it is untested.

The intervention goes on to cite the nine questions raised by NRC staff member Gus C. Lainas last year referring to the structural adequacy of the fuel pool.

Courtroom packed for rape discussion

by ANNE KELLY

Rape, as a violent crime, was the topic of a seminar held Thursday, April 7 in Charlevoix. Sponsored by the Women's Resource Center (WRC), a 9-member panel made up of local professionals and conducted by Nancy Stewart, Director of the WRC, discussed without reservation their opinions concerning the problem of rape. A standing-room-only crowd of concerned citizens packed the County Building courtroom to voice their opinions and sometimes outrage especially on the subject of a recent sentence dealt out to a convicted Charlevoix assailant in a local rape case. Although Ms. Stewart and other panel members reminded the audience that the purpose of the seminar was to educate the public about the crime of rape in general, the specifics of the November incident, especially the public's dissatisfaction with plea bargaining and the mitigated sentence for the violator, kept cropping up.

Panel members included: Cheryl Wilde, sexual assault counselor with the WRC; Scott Beatty, Prosecuting Attorney; Tal Lapinos, Char-Emmet probation parole officer; Dr. Jim Stewart, Family Practioner; Sheriff George Lasater, Charlevoix County Police; Georgia Jones, assult victim; Chief Jack Mol, Charlevoix City Police; and Rev. Dava Yingling, minister, Charlevoix Methodist Church.

Cherly Wilde, sexual assault counselor, introduced the program by stating some often ignored facts about rape as a violent crime.

"Rape is a crime whose victims are taught to scream quietly," Ms. Wilde stated. Because of the low prosecution rate (5 percent) and conviction rate (2 percent) of violaters, victims are hesitant to report the crime and-or go through the often de-humanizing processes involved in the questioning and examination-for-evidence.

Because in the crime of rape between 70-87 percent of assailants use weapons or threat of death, 90 percent of victims do not resist when faced with attack. This lack of resistance has been at the core of the

THE FRUIT OF OUR LIPS

Our words should be like fruit. Fruit is the end result of and reason for a tree's existence; and is it not to bear fruit that we have been redeemed and then cultivated by God? Fruit reveals the nature of its parent tree; and is there anything that more quickly shows what we are than our talk? "By thy words thou shalt be justified, and by thy words thou shalt be condemned"; these words of Jesus in Mat. 12:37 (KJV) are powerful words. The Bible also states in Col. 4:6 that our "conversation should always be with grace". It is never out of place to be kind and gracious. It is interesting to note that this phrase "the fruit of our lips" is used twice in the scriptures.

First, God states in Isaiah 57:19 that "I create the fruit of the lips". Now, this doesn't detract from my responsibility to speak graciously; but it does let me know that God is willing to take my speech, when committed to Him, and make it delightful, positive, and dynamic to strangers, friends, or family. What an exciting thought to realize that God can make and maintain real relationships through my lips! This is the 'stuff' that makes businesses, communities, churches, city councils, schools, etc. click and be successful.

There is a second time that this phrase is mentioned. In Hebrew 13:15 it says, "Let us offer the sacrifice of praise to God continually, that is the fruit of our lips giving thanks to His name". Friends, there is no better way to accomplish the above than to be people of thankful and praising hearts. When we continually give God praise, it will so condition our speech to others that our words will be like fruit - healthful, palatable, and wholesome!

Geer explains veterans' burial and survival rights at American Legion potluck supper

Ronald G. Geer, veterans counselor for the Charlevoix County Office of Veterans Affairs, was the guest speaker at a recent meeting of the Auxiliary of the Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion, following the monthly potluck supper with post members.

He presented an informative resume of burial and survival rights for veterans and their families as well as pensions for survivors, burial expenses and grave markers.

At the business meeting that followed, tentative plans were made for the spring casserole-salad luncheon to be held at the post home May 11.

Plans were also made for the annual Poppy Days May 19 through 21.

Members were urged to join in assisting with the sale of poppies made by disabled war veterans with the proceeds from the sale going to assist veterans and their families.

Nancy Wood, president, advised that April is Cancer month and urged everyone to attend the Planned Parent meeting which will also stress cancer detection.

The next meeting of the Auxiliary is scheduled for May 3. It will be a joint potluck meeting with the post members. Separate meetings of the two organisations will follow. Those attending the potluck are asked to bring a dish to pass and their own table service.

Mary Feindt helps create organization for women in surveying

by FRAN MARTIN

An interview with a local resident printed in a professional journal last summer inspired the recent organization of the Forum for Women in Surveying.

The woman is Charlevoix's own Mary C. Feindt who has the distinction of being the only woman in the state of Michigan to become a Licensed Land Surveyor. Because of the inspiration her story offered and the support she gave the proposal that there was a need for such a forum, she has been elected chairperson of the Forum for Women in Surveying organized with the blessing of the American Congress on Surveying-National Society of Professional Surveyors of which she is a member.

The story that inspired the new organization appeared in the August-September issue of the profession journal, Point of Beginning, P.O.B., a magazine-type publication for those in the field of surveying.

The story told of Mrs. Feindt's decision to enter the field of engineering following graduation from high school, a profession in which she became interested while working during the summmer with a family friend who had a surveying firm. Her interest in math at a time when this was a field open only to young men gave her the courage to follow her instinct rather than to go into teaching, considered by her family as a more lady-like profession for a young woman. "Girls just weren't supposed to be interested in math in those days" she recalled.

A native of Albion, the former Mary C. Bastian enrolled in Albion College and took a combined literary and engineering course for three years, capping it off with two years at the University of Michigan and receiving two degrees, an A.B. from Albion and B.S. in Geodesy and Surveying from the University of Michigan in 1938.

She returned to the University of Michigan to earn her Master's in Civil Engineering in 1944.

That was after she had come to Charlevoix to be employed by the Charlevoix Abstract & Engineering Company and her marriage to J. Lawrence Feindt. It was also the same year they purchased the company which she has headed as president since it was incorporated in 1966 and the year she became county surveyor for Charlevoix County, a position she still holds.

This story which told of her accomplishments and eventual acceptance into a world dominated by the male of the species was what inspired the eventual formation of the Forum for Women in Surveying.

The publication had hardly hit the desks of its subscribers than she began receiving telephone calls and letters from women in surveying urging her to do something in their behalf.

Among the first to call were Wendy Lathrop, LS, of New Jersey and Wendy Straight, LS, of New York with offers to help if she would make the initial move. Her "Yes" resulted in more than 200 letters to colleges and universities across the United States that offered degrees in engineering, more specifically surveying, and articles in professional publications regarding the proposed.

With all the positive response, the National Society of Professional Surveyors that was meeting in Washington, D.C., in March offered its support and arranged for a meeting place during its annual meeting.

"It was with trepidations that I went to Washington in March. I wasn't even sure than any more than the three of us would show up for the meeting. But by that time it was too late. When I arrived at the hotel the two Wendys were waiting for me. They were most supportive, assuring me that they knew we'd have a good turnout" Mrs. Feindt related.

"When the time for the meeting came, I was so jittery I couldn't eat lunch. But the time, one o'clock, the hour of the meeting, arrived and people started filling the chairs; I took my first deep breath. Not only 35 people attended the meeting but many more called or sent letters, some as far away as Puerto Rico, assuring us that they were behind us and would support such an organization" Mrs. Feindt continued.

"So it was that the Forum for Women in Surveying came into being as a committee of American Congress of Surveying and Mapping-National Society of Professional Surveyors with with me as its chairperson and co-founder with Ms. Lathrop and Ms. Straight," Mrs. Feindt added.

The Organization has adopted as its preliminary objectives: to promote the professional image of women in the surveying profession; to provide a forum for concerns and opinions in the profession of surveying and to provide support and encouragement for women in or entering the field of surveying.

The membership will be enlarged this fall when a meeting for those in the far west is held in conjunction with the fall meeting of the ACSN-NSPS at Salt Lake City in September.

"We're in our infancy. However, the support our efforts have received not only from women but the entire profession tells us there is a need for such an organization. It has meant a lot of hard work and it will take a lot more before we begin to reach our goals but it is gratifying to initiate something that we hope will encourage women to venture into the field of surveying. It is a wonderful profession. With more and more women specializing in math, a subject no longer dominated by men, such an organization will give them the moral support they need" Mrs. Feindt said of the forum.

Mrs. Feindt has come a long way in her profession since receiving her degree in 1938. Though a pioneer in the profession, she has earned the respect of fellow surveyors, not by using her womanly wiles, but by proving herself through her knowledge and her work.

She is a life member of the American Congress on Surveying and Mapping; past director of the Michigan Society of Registered Land Surveyors; past chairperson of the State Board of Land Surveyors; past president of the Michigan Land Title Association and a member of the Board of Governors of the American Land Title Association among numerous professional affiliations.

The annual Kindergarten Round-up in the Charlevoix School District is scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday Ralph Raymer, Elementary School principal, has announced.

Registrations are scheduled between the hours of 9 and 11 a.m. and 1 and 3 p.m. on Tuesday, April 12 and Wednesday, April 13.

Those children whose surname begins with the letters "A" through "M" are to register on Tuesday and those whose last name begins with letters "N" through "Z" on Wednesday.

However, if a parent cannot come on the assigned day, he or she is encouraged to come when possible.

The Charlevoix Board of Education strongly suggests that a child be five years of age by September 1 in order to enroll for kindergarten.

When registering the child, the parents are asked to bring a copy of the child's birth certificate and an up-to-date immunization record. The school nurse, Mrs. Geraldine Brady, will be present to start the child's health record and to discuss visual and hearing tests with the parent.

The parent is asked to bring only the child being registered to the K-5 school on Division Ave. at the time of registration.

LCPOA to develop Neighborhood Watch networks; plan three informational meetings

Responding to the requests of Lake Charlevoix homeowners for assistance in developing crime prevention programs, the Lake Charlevoix Property Owners Association is sponsoring three Neighborhood Watch meetings which will focus on the prevention of residential burglary.

Officer David Hague of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department will explain how citizen participation in Neighborhood Watch programs can deter burglaries.

The meetings, co-sponsored by the East Jordan, Charlevoix and Boyne City Chambers of Commerce, will be held at 8:00 p.m. on Wednesday, April 13 at the East Jordan Civic Center; on Thursday, April 21 at 7:30 p.m. at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, Grant Street, Charlevoix; and on April 27 at 7:30 p.m. in the City Hall Auditorium, 319 N. Lake Street, Boyne City. The public is encouraged to attend.

Final work to start on storm sewer

Final work on the City of Charlevoix's storm sewer project should get under way about May 1 according to City Manager Robert Hunt.

Hunt said that the W. A. Porter Construction Company, contractors for the project, will finish up the work as soon as the Tri-City Asphalt plant opens.

Still to be completed are repaving areas on the south end of State St., Prospect St., some curb and gutter replacement and resodding in East Park.

Reunion to be held for campers, staff of late Camp Charlevoix

A Camp Charlevoix Reunion will be held in Charlevoix on the weekend of August 5, 6, and 7, 1983. Over 6,000 boys from six to 16 attended the private camp during its 46 years of operation, coming from all states and territories of the United States as well as several foreign countries.

Reunion activities scheduled will include receptions, a catered picnic, a luncheon cruise around Lake Charlevoix, a banquet, entertainment and other events. Further details and a reunion registration "kit" may be obtained form Donald Bacon at the TUAR Company, P.O. Box 354, Flint, MI 48501, or by calling him at (313) 744-4050.

The summer of 1971 was the last season in which Camp Charlevoix operated. It was a genuine rustic facility built almost entirely of pine logs cut in the area and driven in huge log rafts the full length of Lake Charlevoix. Favorite activities at the camp included Western riding, sailing, canoeing, swimming, archery, riflery, nature studies, athletics, water skiing and crafts. An annual rodeo, Indian tribal ceremonies, and riding, sailing and canoeing trips were also featured.

The staff of the camp was recruited from colleges throughout the U.S. and included many reknowned athletes including All-American football heroes and Olympians. The camp was rated among the top three in the country for its facilities, program and staff.

Juniors receive locally prepared career and college planning guide

All juniors at the Charlevoix High School have received individual copies of the recently developed "Career and College Planning Guide" Charles Bentley, high school counselor, has announced.

The guide was created by the counselors at the Charlevoix High School to assist juniors and their parents as they anticipate the process of finding an occupation and-or make decisions regarding college.

Topics covered in the guide include career planning, job placement tips, a sample application for employment, a section on how to prepare a resume and a discussion of post high school training programs including the military.

Materials relating to college include: terms relating to higher education, hints of researching college characteristics, how to read college materials, financial aid and the process of applying for college.

In announcing the availability of the guide, Mr. Bentley said it is hoped that all juniors and their parents will use the guide as a reference for the remainder of this year as well as throughout the senior year.

Any questions may be directed to Mr. Bentley or Gayle Gennett, counselors, at 547-2811.

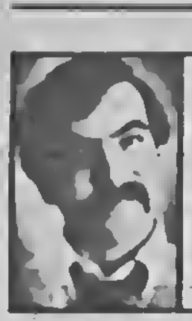
Opinion



Knight on the Town
You speak-a my language?

by Dave Knight

Esperanto is an international language invented in 1887 by Polish philologist Dr. L.L. Zamenhof. The good doctor felt that much of the world's strife could be avoided if people all spoke the same language.

Unfortunately Dr. Zamenhof died in 1917 and Esperanto has never become more than a curiosity. It was certainly a pleasant thought, though, if a bit on the idealisitc side.

When two groups with differences speak different tongues, communication - and resolution of the differences - is that much more difficult.

Nowhere has this been more evident than in some recent exchanges between the Charlevoix City Council and the Charlevoix Township Board on the subjects of joint ownership of a water treatment plant and consolidation.

On the evening of March 14, with both the Council and Board in session, a letter was sent via messenger across town from City Hall to the Township Hall. It contained a 12-point proposal approved by the Council by which the township might participate in constructing and owning a lake water treatment plant.

The Board interpreted the document as a list of demands, however, some of which they considered unreasonable. At a special meeting March 24 the Board specified their objections and this past Saturday sat down with the Council in an unprecented joint discussion to find common ground.

After the meeting, almost all the differences had been settled save a couple like user rates and administrative representation. Trouble is, says Township Supervisor Oscar Stroud, the city sees those couple points as minor while the township thinks they are major. Stay tuned.

On March 21, the Council passed a resolution endorsing a "yes" vote in the May 2 election on whether a charter commission shall be formed to study consolidation. Further, they called upon the Township Board to adpot a similar resolution. This was followed by another letter to the Board, signed by the Mayor and each Council member, using a more personal, "plain talk" approach in urging them to leave the door open for interaction between the two units.

Trouble was that the "plain talk" was interpreted at the Township meeting this past Monday night as "not factual" by at least one Board member and "insulting" by an audience member.

What had meant to be an olive branch again became poison ivy in translation.

Needless to say the Township Board did not go along with the city's resolution pertaining to the May 2 ballot. They plan, instead, to issue their own statement sometime before the vote clarifying, to township voters, exactly what they will be voting for.

Somehow, that which is being written by the Council is not what is being read by the Board. It is interesting that Saturday's meeting, face to face, was cordial and productive to an extent. But when communications have been in print, the relations have been strained.

The only answer I can see is less writing and more talking. I think both bodies - and the people - would be able to deal with the issues more clearly if they sat down and made sure each knew what the other was saying before they responded.

I think Dr. Zamenhof would agree.

Clockwise
Mallardville, U.S.A.

by Bob Clock

CHARLEVOIX DRIVERS are reminded that the mallard duck nesting season is upon us and they can soon expect to see mama ducks and their straggling broods wandering across every by-way and thoroughfare in the city.

Most drivers, of course, slam on the brakes and stop until the covey is home safe. Some even disembark and flag down oncoming traffic to make no one hurts the ducks.

Waterfowl don't seem to be terribly interested in highway safety, which is all the more reason the rest of us should be.

Furthermore, milder weather means kids will be playing outside after school — and when summer vacation starts they will be on the streets from early morning until long after supper.

So don't drive like the cretin who passed me as I was entering Charlevoix from the north the other day — totally ignoring all of the reduced speed signs. I tried to get his license number but he evaporated in a cloud of dust rounding the bend at Edwards IGA. I don't know how far he got before the police nailed him — but I sure hope they did.

SPEAKING OF DUCKS, perhaps Charlevoix should make more of a fuss over its growing flock of handsome mallards. East Jordan, as you know, does a lot of crowing about the swans which inhabit the east end of the South Arm and the mouth of the Jordan River. In fact, the Chamber of Commerce calls East Jordan "The Swan City."

But Charlevoix's ducks — which are as much of a tourist attraction as the bascule bridge and the Cutter Mesquite — don't grab many headlines. They just hang around the waterfront begging for handouts.

Unfortunately, ducks don't have as much appeal as swans. Would you really want to spend your vacation in "Duck City?" Or "Mallard Metropolis?" I doubt it.

Maybe we should leave well enough alone, but it hurts when you think of how much ink Hinckley, Ohio, generates every March when the buzzards settle in for the season.

GIVEN THE STATE of the economy in Charlevoix County, the vote on bonding for the FAA's proposed flight service station didn't exactly come as a surprise.

As much as we could use the added payroll (estimated at about $2 million annually), this is not the best time to ask the electorate for additional taxes.

The negative vote in Boyne City, East Jordan and the outlying townships certainly was expected. But even Charlevoix — which stands to gain the most — defeated the proposal by eight votes.

However, the negative vote does not mean Charlevoix County is out of the running. If the FAA likes us, we might still get the nod. Keep your fingers crossed.

Local realtors cite Private Property Week

Homeownership and the rights of private property are vital to the strength of the nation, said Robert C. Winters, President of the Antrim Charlevoix Board of Realtors.

"One of the reasons the United States was founded was to protect individual freedom such as the right to buy, sell, and own property. It's one of the very cornerstones of our democratic society," Bob said.

"Private Property Week, April 10 to 16, is a perfect opportunity for Americans to join together in recognition and celebration of their constitutionally-guaranteed rights to own private property," Winters said.

He noted that Private Property Week also serves as a reminder to each and every American of the importance and need for the preservation of individual property rights. Winters commented that while many laws are enacted to protect the public interest, many times these same laws conflict with and adversely affect the property rights of the individual.

"In addition to dampening an area's economic vigor, many of the development restrictions in these acts infringe on land owners' property rights," Winters said. "Our property rights have enabled us to establish lifestyles unparallelled in the world. They connot be taken for granted.

Winters pointed out that recent development and proposed development of condominiums, recreational and commercial facilities occuring in Charlevoix, Boyne City, Schuss Mountain and Shanty Creek have tremendous potential to strengthen the all around economy of both Charlevoix and Antrim Counties as well as substantially increasing the area tax base.

The Private Property Week observance is sponsored by the National Association of Realtors and its more than 600,000 members. Local communities across the country are participating in activities which celebrate and help preserve private property rights for every America. This year's theme, "The Strength of a Nation Lies in the Homes of Its People," is a quotation from President Abraham Lincoln.

The National Association of Realtors is the nation's largest trade association and represents people in all phases of the real estate industry.

Letters: Caring for others

Holidays can be bleak

To the Editor:

The people and the churches of Charlevoix should be more caring during the holiday seasons for those of us due to some reason or another have no one to share the glad tidings that holidays are suppose to bring. People don't realize how depressing it can be to see your neighbors and friends having a good time with their families while all you have is yourself to be with.

There should be somewhere that people can go to be with others and share the glad holiday tidings.

Next time make an extra effort, Charlevoix, to not leave anyone out of having what should be everybody's happiness.

From someone who had had this experience.

Julie Odmark

Rape seminar packs courtroom myths surrounding sexual attack. That: 1) it is not possible to rape a non-consenting victim; 2) women ask for and enjoy rape; 3) nice women don't get raped; 4) women commonly report rapes that in fact don't take place. The perpetuation of these myths seems to subtract from the fact that a human being has had her body as well as her rights violated.

The truth is, according to Ms. Wilde, that women get raped because of their availability to the rapist, their accessability, and their vulnerability. The profile of the rapist is that he may be from any echelon of society. Only 10 percent, recent statistics verify, of assailants are mentally deranged. 50 percent of rapes occur in either the victim's or the assailant's home. It would appear that dark alleys are not the only places for women to avoid.

Why do women fail to report rape? For three reasons; fear and self-guilt, public exposure, and the low conviction rate for assailants.

Police Chief Mol continued the discussion by encouraging women to always report a rape. Without the report, the assailant may go on commiting his crime and may never be brought to justice. His advice for rape victims was this: 1) report the rape at once; 2) don't bathe self or clothing; 3) give authorities full cooperation.

Sheriff Lasater further enlightened those in attendance on the actual incidence of rape in our community. There have been 28 reported rapes in Charlevoix County in the last 12 years. However, statistics have it that only one rape in four are reported. The rape cases in Charlevoix County have involved incestuous situations as well as incidence of adult females being raped by strangers either in public gatherings or in private.

The legal aspects of the crime were explained by Scott Beatty who prefaced his statements by his conviction that "sexual assault ranks right up there as a major felony in the penal code."

Dr. Jim Stewart, who was asked to describe the medical procedures involved in a rape case, explained that some doctors rotating their on-calls in the emergency room at the hospital, are more at ease in a rape case than others because of their training or specilization. But he emphasized that the purpose of the questioning and the medical examination was to determine and support the guilt of the assailant. While the procedures could be very embarrassing to the victim, she should try to remember that the physician's role should always be supportive and considerate.

At this point Ms. Wilde interjected the need for support for the victim after the fact. She cautioned family members and friends to put their own insecurities on the subject of rape aside ("What will my neighbors think?") and concentrate on helping the victim as she copes with the aftermath of the attack.

An often vehement discussion followed. The audience had the opportunity to direct questions to members of the panel and their concerns centered around the specifics of the rape case of the young woman on the panel, Georgia Jones, whose case had precipitated the seminar. Ms. Jones is currently working with the Womens' Resource Center, helping other victims like herself through their trauma.

Scott Beatty defended the legal implications of conviction, plea bargaining and sentencing. Tal Lapinus, dealt with the role of parole officer in assimilating past offenders back into society.

He made it clear he thought very little of the effectiveness of psychiatric rehabilitation in prisons for rapists in particular or the penal system in the State of Michigan in general.

Rev. David Yingling concluded the discussion by speaking on the reality and implications of human sexuality, noting that everyone has within himself the potential for good and evil.

But Georgia Jones made perhaps the most poignant statement of the evening when she explained her motives for coming forward:

"I feel there are things to be changed in Charlevoix...We are talking about a violent threat to a person's life...I'm not unhappy that I went through with it...I'm not happy with the sentence...I'm trying to get on with my life...I have found more support in my community than I ever thought was there."

Consumers plans and Licensing Board at Boyne Mt., last summer.

In December, the board ordered Consumers and the NRC staff to submit more figures and information. The utility appealed this request to an appeals board which sits above the Safety and Licensing Board. It heard arguements March 24. Its decision was being awaited at the time of this writing.

Meanwhile, it has been learned that Big Rock Point's future was discussed at a meeting of key utility and NRC officers in Bethesda, last February 25.

According to an NRC report of this meeting, dated March 11, the NRC has agreed to assess a request by the utility to "relax a number of requirements that have already been opposed or will be imposed on the plant. Consumers Power Co. feels that such relaxations are justified, based on a comparison of the magnitude of the accident risk and consequences of Big Rock Point, against other plants."

The assessment is expected to be completed by early summer. But plant personnel who request anonymity say increased costs may result in decommissioning Big Rock.

It is understood that high on Consumer's list is a NRC requirement for new containment shielding around the reactor building and control room.

When these requirements were ordered immediately after the Three Mile Island accident four years ago, Big Rock Point engineers estimated that new shielding would cost in the neighborhood of $40 million.

There has been little public talk of this since.

Engagements

Hedrick-Possert

Janice Hedrick

The engagement has been announced of Janice Hedrick and Daniel Possert, both of Charlevoix. She is the daughter of Mrs. Evelyn Russell and Joseph Hedrick of Charlevoix and he is the son of Mrs. Jean Gray of Charlevoix and Steve Possert of Detroit.

A July 16, 1983 outdoor wedding is planned in Bellaire. The bride to be is a 1979 graduate of Charlevoix High School.

Mrs. Finck is new V.F.W. Aux. president

Mrs. Larry Finck was elected president of the Auxiliary of Charlevoix Post No. 1153, Veterans of Foreign Wars, at the annual election of officers held recently.

Other officers elected at the same time are: Mrs. Robert Rajewski, senior vice president; Mrs. Thomas Hodgkinson, junior vice president; Mrs. Kenneth Staley, secretary; Mrs. Melvin Plum, treasurer; Mrs. Angela Bortha, chaplain; Mrs. Joseph Seidel, conductress; Mrs. John Curtis, guard; Trustees, Mrs. Don White, one year; Mrs. Albert Russell, two years and Mrs. Clarence Rabach, three years. Mrs. Seidel is the retiring president. Appointive officers will be named later by Mrs. Finck.

Mrs. Joseph Elliott was initiated as a new member. Mrs. Robert Hewitt will be initiated at the May meeting.

In lieu of the cancelled salad luncheon, the auxiliary has conducted a "bakeless bake sale" with each member contributing a sum that she might have donated in baked goods. The funds will be earmarked for the building fund and used to purchase a new floor covering for the hall. Work on the club room which included paneling, ceiling and light fixtures has been completed and the room is now in use for meetings. Floor covering will be purchased in the near future.

Mrs. John Curtis will serve as chairman of Buddy Poppy Days May 19 through 21. She will be assisted by members. Buddy poppies are made by hospitalized disabled veterans. Funds collected aid the veterans and, on the local level, are used for emergency aid to veterans and their families.

The local auxiliary is assisting in "Operation: Food Basket" and collecting canned food to be distributed to the needy and unemployed. Members or anyone wishing to assist are asked to bring food to the meetings or to the V.F.W. Post Home any Friday night.

An invitation to join with the Alpena V.F.W. post on the occasion of the golden anniversary observance June 11 was read. Further information may be obtained from Mrs. Seidel.

In other action, the auxiliary contributed $100 to the National V.F.W. Home for Children at Eaton Rapids for repairs on the Michigan Cottage. The National Home Fire Department, manned by teens at the home, was featured on "That's Incredible" recently. All are trained and state certified and, when needed, assist the Eaton Rapids Department. Anyone having cigarette coupons or trading stamps are asked to contribute them to the National Home. They may be given to an auxiliary member, at the post home or to Mrs. Kenneth Staley.

National Loyalty Day, May 1, will be observed by the V.F.W. and Auxiliary members at a potluck dinner at the post home Saturday evening, April 30. Mrs. Albert Russell, Mrs. Russell Dohm and Mrs. Clifford Johnson will be in charge of the event. Members are urged to attend, bring a dish to pass and their own table service. Residents in the community are encouraged to display the flag on this special day, May 1.

Two applications for the Seabold Scholarship for high school graduates have been received. Twelve $1,500 scholarships will be offered in each district this year. The local winner, William Dohm, will have his essay and application forwarded to the District and Department for judging. 1984 graduates are urged to inquire about the scholarship and enter the competition as seniors.

The Auxiliary voted to pay for Cancer Insurance for members; made a donation to the National Home for Children to help underwrite a trip to the Upper Peninsula for students during spring break and to send candidates to the National Special Olympics to be held at Baton Rouge, La. An earlier contribution had been made to Bergmann Center clients.

The 13th District meeting will be held at Alpena May 1. Those planning to attend may contact Clement Olach, post commander, or Mrs. Seidel, auxiliary president for transportation and other details.

The Auxiliary Charter was draped in memory of Past National Auxiliary President, Anna Mae Shaw.

At the close of the meeting, Mrs. Borths served refreshments.

The Auxiliary meet at the post home Thursday, April 21, for a social meeting.

PICKING OUT BOOKS are these first graders involved in the Charlevoix Elementary School Reading Is Fundamental program. The program is designed to make reading fun for young students by giving them free books to take home, to keep and enjoy. Charlevoix Elementary School has participated in the R.I.F. Program for the last three years. First grade students have been delighted to discover the fun of choosing books for their very own. The program sees to the distribution of three books during the course of the year for each 1st grader. The Parent Advisory Council, who initiated R.I.F. in the school pays for ½ of the cost of the books while the Federal Government assumes the rest of the bill. The rest of the procedure, with volunteer room mothers setting up and helping children choose their books, is the fun which makes the R.I.F. book selection one of the most enjoyable activities of the first grader's school year.

READYING DAFFODILS to brighten up the luncheon trays of patients at the Charlevoix Area Hospital is Hospital Guild president Lucille Ingram and members: Judy Williams, Connie Raymer, Jean Miles, Ester Miles, and Lois Lewis. Compliments of the American Cancer Society the daffodil is a symbol of the spring crusade for 1983. The theme this year is "Share the Cost of Living–Knock On Every Door"; the financial goal, $13,750.00.

Crusaders will be out participating in the door-to-door crusade from now until April 18th. Take time out to read the educational pamphlet and "Share the Cost of Living."

"The volunteer that comes to your door," according to Joanne Curtis Charlevoix Chairperson, "is giving of her time and she is sharing our educational message with you. Help us in our April Crusade this year so that we may help others."

Plan Spring Carnival

The Spring Carnival at the Charlevoix Elementary School, sponsored by the Parents' Advisory Council, will take place Friday, April 22.

Volunteers are being sought to help set up, clean up or man various booths. Parents wishing to participate are asked to call Shirley Roloff at 547-6169.

DIAMONDS: THE GROOM'S CHOICE
"When the right person comes along, you'll know it." I'm sure you've heard that saying before, and, if you're ready to seal your engagement, you can personally vouch for the truth of it.
John Reusch
How about "When the right diamond comes along, you'll know it"? Have you heard that one? Well, if you have, DON'T BELIEVE IT! Because it takes more than human insight to judge a diamond. It takes a trained eye and gemological know-how to understand what's what with diamonds. You should seek the help of a gemologically trained jeweler.
If you're in the market for a diamond engagement ring, you should seek out a jeweler who can explain diamond quality to you and present you with your alternatives. American Gem Society jewelers are well educated in this respect and will be happy to show you your diamond under magnification or graphically illustrate the effect Cutting, Color, Clarity, and Carat weight have on diamond value.
At Reusch Jewelry we distribute consumer information brochures to our customers which explain these Four C's of diamond value. Carey named to Hall of Fame in Crisler Arena

Don Carey, head football coach at Charlevoix High School for the past 27 years, was inducted into the Michigan High School Football Hall of Fame Saturday in Ann Arbor.

Carey was one of 30 coaches from around the state to be feted at a banquet and induction ceremony held in the University of Michigan's Crisler Arena. The group of 30 was the first to be inducted following the original 13 founders of the Hall.

On hand for the affair were several members of the Carey clan, High School Principal Vane Smith Board of Education member Ken Boss, CHS Athletic Director Dale Burge and assistant CHS football coaches Hal Evans, Roger Gowell and Chuck Bentley.

Featured speakers at the induction were U of M head coach Bo Schembechler and his one-time nemesis; Woody Hayes, former head coach of the Ohio State Buckeyes.

Carey's 27-year record of 152 wins against 65 losses and 11 ties easily qualified him for the Hall of Fame, sponsored by the Michigan High School Football Coaches Association. The association's selection committee required applicants to have at least 100 career wins or to have coached at least 20 years.

Carey makes a brief statement at the podium following his introduction.

Track team debuts

The Charlevoix Rayder track team, in its first meet of the season, lost to Traverse City 130-30 Coach Hal Evans reports.

Both the boys and girls teams will be at Cadillac Wednesday and at Kalkaska Friday.

In last week's meet John Tunison set a new school record for the mile, covering the distance in 4:29.6 and breaking the previous record of 4:32.3 set by Jeff Landon.

George Smith ran his best time in the high hurdles, 15.7.

Charlevoix runners placed one, two and three in the 440 yard run with Doug Sloan taking first in 53.5 followed by Jim Martin in 53.6 and Pat Kerr in 56.0.

Taking second places in their respective events were Smith in the long jump and Bill Taylor in the two mile. Taking thirds were Matt Peterson in the two mile, Pat Mitchell and Darrin Podskalny in their heats of the 100 and 220 yard dashes and Mike Louiselle in the high jump.

The girls team made the trip and participated in various events but scores were not logged Coach Dennis VanGuilder said.

5th grade problem solvers get to match wits with best in the state

by ANNE KELLY

Recently, a team of 5th grade students from Charlevoix Elementary School learned some pretty exciting news. They had placed in the top 20% of teams around the state participating in the 3rd problem posed by the Michigan Future Problem Solving Program (MFPSP). As a result, the four man team: Tim Henne, Matt Schnackenberg, Ryan Holmes and Bill Crook, have been invited to tackle the next level of competition. They will compete in the State Bowl at Ann Arbor at the University of Michigan on April 16th against 32 other junior category teams from all over Michigan.

Excitement is mounting as the date draws near reports Carol Elliot, coach for the Program as well as instructor in the P.A.T. (Program for the Academically Talented).

The State Bowl, is the culmination of a year long program where students are taught to creatively seek, attack and solve problems related to projections into the future. More than 3000 Michigan students worked on three practice problems which were critiqued by trained evaluators. Based on the third practice problem, 20% of Michigan teams from each of three grade levels (4-6, 7-9, 10-12) have been invited to participate in the State Bowl. While teams know the general topic of this year's Bowl, THE IMPACT OF COMPUTERS ON FINANCE) they will not know the specific nature of the problem they will attempt to solve until the bowl begins.

The kids have been researching the topic for some time according to Mrs. Elliot. "They have been reading articles here and at home with parents and taking notes on the problem," she reported. The other team's members: Rochelle Baum, Scott Miller and Web Friedly have been helping with the preliminary research and are almost as excited as the winning team.

Mrs. Elliot's seven P.A.T. students feel that the experience in participating in the Problem Solving Bowl this year was both challenging and enriching. The class, in two teams, worked through the three preliminary problems in: Weather Control, Ocean Communities, and Robotics with a variety of successes and failures Each problem demanded a major problem gleaned from determining 20 most pertinent problems, and a final solution based on information stated in their 20 best solutions to that problem. The format for arriving at these problems and solutions was specific and logical and had to be completed within the 2 hour time allotment.

Probably the most difficult aspect of the endeavor, agreed most of the students, was that of working together.

"There was some arguing for the main solution," Ryan Holmes admitted, "and it was a compromise when we finally agreed on one."

Tim Henne put it another way. "It was a challenge and very trying to learn to work together as a team."

"There was some silliness to overcome," agreed Bill Crook. And some disorganization with papers scattered around. "It was a mess but somehow it went together."

Students had only 2 hours to complete quite a lengthy packet. Time seemed to be another major concern to participants.

"I guess if we had it to do over, I'd try to keep things a little more organized," added Ryan.

There were good things about working in a group too. "When you work together, you can take the ideas that someone else has come up with and expand it or make it broader," philosophized Bill Crook.

I feel we have really been challenged," Matt Schnackenberg continued. He was still somewhat in shock after hearing the news that their team had ranked in the top 20% around the state. To place 13th out of 150 teams is a challenge in itself, and no easy matter. But as Web Friedly put it, "It's a different kind of challenge. It's not like reaching a goal. It's knowing whatever you did, if you did it well, you succeeded."

All seven 5th graders along with a proud coach will be trucking off to the University of Michigan on Saturday, April 16, to participate in the 4th annual MFPSP Bowl. Web, Rochelle and Scott will be helping the winning team research their Bowl topic: "The Impact of Computers on Finance," and be lending a lot of moral support. Victory, which would involve becoming a regional champ, could mean an invitation to the National Bowl.

Parents' role in sex ed. to be discussed at E.J. meeting

An important panel discussion on "The Role of Parents as the Primary Sex Educators of Their Children" is coming to the East Jordan Family Health Center, Wednesday April 20th at 7:30 p.m.

This will be a repeat of the highly successful panel discussion conducted at the Charlevoix Area Hospital last month, during which some 30 parents participated. With the success of the first panel discussion, the Charlevoix Area Hospital Health Education Committee and members of the panel agreed to offer the program to East Jordan parents.

The panelists include: Dr. Mitchell Carey, Family Practice physician at the East Jordan Family Health Center; Mona Bradley, clinical psychologist at the East Jordan Counseling Center; Phil Simmons, Minister, United Methodist Church of East Jordan; Bonnie Willis, educator with the Northern Michigan Planned Parenthood; and Mary Biagini, Coordinator for the Alternative Program for School Age Parents.

The focus of the panelists' talks will be the parental role in sex education.

"Parents are concerned about the health, safety and well being of their children," commented Debra Rozek, panel moderator and Health Educator at the East Jordan Family Health Center.

Parents who attended the March panel at Charlevoix Area Hospital were particularly concerned "about helping their children retain moral values in today's changing society," Rozek observed.

"Parents recognize the generation gap and want to bridge it," she continued.

"The interaction between the panel and the audience was open and honest," Rozek added.

The Health Education Committee at Charlevoix Area Hospital invited the panelists to present their experience and professional views so that parents who may not feel comfortable discussing this often difficult subject could learn and gain confidence from the panelists.

Each panelist will make a brief presentation, then questions from the audience will be encouraged.

There is no charge for this informative evening session.

The gathering will begin at 7:30 Wednesday, April 20th, in the downstairs Community Education Room at the East Jordan Family Health Center.

Hospital plans program on baseball pitching, and shoulder injury

Shoulder injuries and baseball pitching techniques will be the topic of a Charlevoix Area Hospital community education program to be held at 7:35 p.m. Tuesday, April 19 in the hospital classroom.

Dr. Richard Mansfield, D.O., a member of the Osteopathic Academy of Sports Medicine, will present the program.

Dr. Mansfield plans to cover the following subject areas: anatomy and physiology of the shoulder, history of pitching techniques and new techniques to prevent injuries.

Baseball coaches and pitchers are encouraged to attend. Those interested are asked to call 547-4024 to reserve a seat.

McNeils to present unique blend of folk music and history in Community Concert

A unique experience awaits Community Concert ticket holders on Thursday, April 14, 1983 at 8 p.m. at Petoskey Middle School, it was announced by Crooked Tree Arts Council. Keith and Rusty McNeil, folk music singers-performers-historians will present "A Celebration of American Heritage in Folksong".

In Addition to singing folk songs and ballads, the McNeils will present traditional folk music playing over 30 folk instruments, including 5-string banjo, guitar, Highland bagpipes, African drums, Appalachian dulcimer, clarinet, harmonica and an exotic collection of rhythm instruments from around the world.

Their areas of expertise include folk music from Colonial America, the American Revolution, the War Between the States, the late 19th century, the turn of the century, the "Roaring Twenties" the Great Depression and the contemporary period. In addition to the scores of folksongs inherited from generations of their own family tradition, the McNeils have carefully researched the folk music of the many immigrant groups which enriches the American cultural "Salad Bowl", the songs which reflect America's major social movements during the past two hundred years and America's religious history through folksong.

For the past fifteen years, Keith and Rusty have been bringing America's rich historical and multi-cultural heritage to life through folk music. Their more than 2,000 concerts, their recordings and their work on Public Broadcasting Television have enchanted audiences throughout the United States and Canada.

Between concert appearances, they teach five different graduate level courses in American history through folksong at universities across the United States and Britain, and they continue their extensive research on American history and lifestyles as expressed through traditional and contemporary folk music.

Persons pruchasing a season ticket for the 1983-84 season, now available at this time at the McCune Arts Center or calling 347-4337, will be admitted also to this concert and to the May 5 performance of Stephen Dickson, popular young Metropolitan Opera Baritone.

For the 1983-84 season, the world-renowned Roger Wagner Chorale, which has been described as "second to none in the world", will come to Petoskey. Dennis Karmasyn, cellist, called "brilliant in his intensity, musicianship and breadth" by the New York Times, and an exciting young pianist, Thomas Lorango, will also perform, as well as the Bill Snyder Trio, which has won nine gold awards and one platinum record.

Season tickets to the concerts, called Community Concerty Memberships (tickets to individual concerts are not available) are the unbelievably low price of $18 for adults (for all the concerts!); $8 for students, and $40 for a family ticket admitting parents and all children. They will be available at the door the evening the the 14th of April. Don't miss this fine folk concert, and the opportunity to hear live in the next year all these well-respected artists of the music world. The Community Concert Series is the main yearly musical offering of the Crooked Tree Arts Council.

Dixon Ave. rezoning fails

By a 5-1 vote, the Charlevoix City Council rejected the recommendation by the Planning Commission Monday night and turned down a request to rezone a vacant lot on E. Dixon Ave. next to the Lodge from R-1 to R-4.

The rezoning would have allowed construction of a five-unit condominium. Developer Jack Uhrick, owner of the Lodge, and architect Hans Wiemer were on hand to plead their case to the Council as were several Dixon Ave. area residents who have opposed the rezoning since it was first proposed last year.

Uhrick pointed out that Master Plan consultant Ronald Nino had supported the rezoning in a letter saying that Nino considered R-1 zoning of the property "unacceptable".

Council member James Block said, however, that the rezoning may initiate "an unlimited line of condominiums right down the street" and said he had received several calls opposing the R-4 zoning of the property.

On a motion by Clement Olach, the council voted to reject the rezoning request with only First Ward representative Jeffrey Porter voting in favor of rezoning.

In other action, the council directed City Manager Robert Hunt to draft a letter to the Department of Natural Resources strongly opposing the plans by Jack Malpeli to construct 30-foot pier extensions from his Round Lake property.

Schools to seek renewal of mills

By FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Board of Education voted to request a renewal of the 15.25 mills for one year for operation at its meeting Monday.

The voters of the Charlevoix school district will vote on the issue in the June 13 school election.

In asking for the renewal of the 15.25 mills for one year, it was pointed out that the millage will be levied on the State Equalized Valuation of the school district which will be raised an anticipated 3.78 percent this year as compared to an increase of more than 10 percent in 1982.

Tenure was also granted to four members of the teaching staff who had completed two years of probation. They are Ted Miller who teaches Spanish at the high school, Irene Cohen, Special Education teacher, Christine Bentley, first grade and Janice Raecke, third grade in the elementary school.

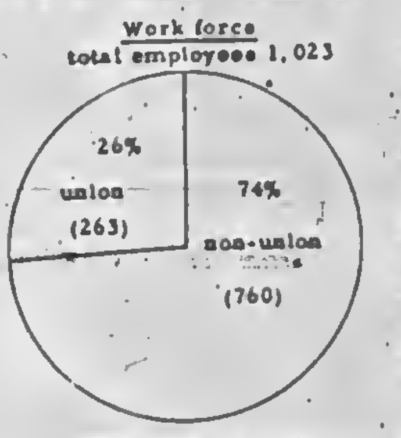
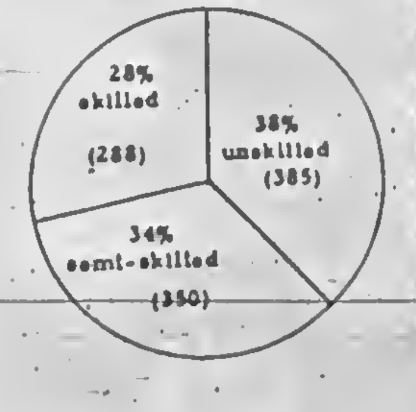
Survey was part of effort to encourage local industry to stay

by DAVE KNIGHT

Local industries are highly satisfied with the quality of life in Charlevoix. They are generally pleased with the services available and, as employers, take a highly favorable attitude toward the community.





On the other hand, they are not sure the community holds them in as high a regard. They are also critical of the state whose attitude toward business they consider a major obstacle in their fight for profitability.

These are just some of the findings contained in a recent survey of 20 Charlevoix area industrial firms conducted as part of a special Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce industrial retention project.

The project was born out of a Chamber general membership meeting held June 9, 1982. The theme of the meeting was industrial development and many of the participants expected to talk about how Charlevoix should go about seeking new industries.

Featured speaker Richard Surbrook, Consumers Power Company economic development specialist, had a slightly different message, however.

Surbrook said that, in light of the many temptations for manufacturers to desert Michigan for greener economic pastures, maintaining a sound industrial base required a two-phased approach: not only must new industry be sought but those firms already established in the area must be encouraged to stay.

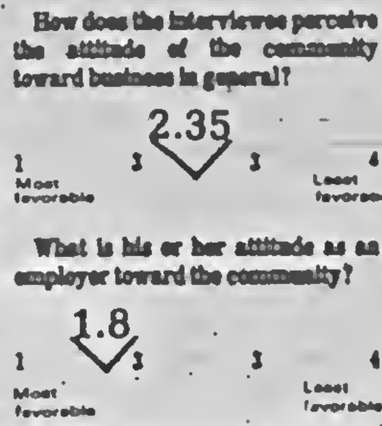
There is no net gain in bringing in a new industry, he pointed out, if an existing one is lost.

As a result of that meeting, then Chamber president James McGarry appointed an Industrial Retention Committee to follow up on Surbrook's suggestions. Surbrook not only met with the committee later that year but provided a plan of action that he said had been used successfully in other Michigan communities.

The first and most important part of the plan, said Surbrook, was to establish lines of communication with local industrial firms. This was crucial to the effort not only to find out the needs and concerns of local companies but also to let them know that their welfare was of general concern to the Chamber and the community.

Committee chairman Gordon VanWieren, superintendent of the Charlevoix School District, assigned seven interview teams of two people each to call on the firms identified as major industrial employers in the Charlevoix area.

Included on the interviewing task force were Dick Georgi, president of the Ski & Shore real estate firm, Richard Krueger, administrator of the Charlevoix Area Hospital, Robert Grupp, public affairs director for the Consumers Power Company Big Rock nuclear plant, Dr. Jeffrey Porter, City Council member and local dentist, John Kurtz, officer at the First State Bank, Robert Hunt, Charlevoix City Manager, Thomas Bickersteth, financial consultant, Richard Martin, partner in the Charlevoix Agency insurance firm, Dave Knight, editor of the Charlevoix Courier, engineer Alvin Ranger, Bruce MacArthur, president of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, architect Jack Begrow, attorney Edwin Gregory and accountant Hugh Mason.



How does the interviewee perceive the attitude of the community toward business in general?

What is his or her attitude as an employer toward the community?

Supplied with question formats, the interviewers made appointments with the highest levels of management available, which in some cases meant dealing with off-site officials in other cities. In all, ten presidents of companies were interviewed, one vice president, five general managers and four other corporate officials.

The question formats included statistical data in such areas as number of employees, square footage utilized and municipal services required. The interviewees were then asked for their personal opinions on a series of questions dealing with attitudes toward industry. On each question, the response was graded on a one to four scale, one being "highly favorable" and four being "least favorable".

Completed questionaires were sent to Traverse City to be compiled by computer in the Youth Training and Employment office there. By mid-February, the results had been tabulated with statistical data supplied in graphic form and the subjective comments averaged out.

After going over the results, the committee held a brainstorming session to pinpoint areas, based on the survey, in which efforts might be focused to retain Charlevoix's existing industries.

By consensus, the committee developed the following top five conclusions numbered in order of priority:

1. City government must be involved in an organized attempt to keep industries content and respond to their request for help.

2. The Chamber of Commerce should re-establish its industrial division.

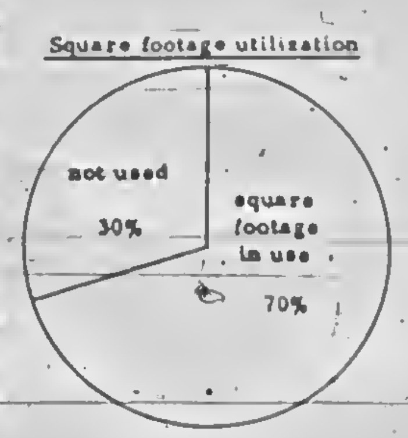
3. Efforts should be coordinated with the Charlevoix Development Corporation.

4. Personal contact should be continued with managers and owners of industries who live outside the area but are involved in the decision making of local industries.

5. Financial and tax assistance for industries should be investigated.

Several more specific suggestions were also included in the list of prioritized items.

According to committee chairman VanWieren, the industrial retention effort will continue as an ongoing venue for assisting firms when possible and providing encouragement to those companies contemplating a move to stay in Charlevoix.



Frances Durance marks 90 years with rich memories of Old Charlevoix

by ANNE KELLY

Friday, April 15, marked a special birthday for Charlevoix born and raised Frances Durance. Friends and relatives gathered at the First Congregational Church last Saturday the 16th to help Frances celebrate her 90th with a birthday dinner. The party was co-hostessed by Ms. Durance's niece, Mary Grace Robinson and sister, Genevieve Baumgartner, both of Romeo, Mich. Frances, and Genevieve who will be 89 on April 21st, are the only two remaining children of ten born to George and Mary Isabelle Durance. Frances was born and raised in the house where she now resides on the corner of Waller Rd. and Mercer Blvd.

"In those days it was known as the Durance Family Berry Farm". Her father, Frances told me, sold the strawberries raised on the farm by peddling them from a horse drawn carriage which he drove around town.

Her parents moved from the south side of Charlevoix to Waller and Mercer in 1889 after losing their first three small children to a childhood disease Frances described as "much like polio". They began again, later moving the old house (which had previously been occupied by an old soldier known as "Mr. Madison") from the other end of their property to its present location.

Ms. Durance attended North Ward School for grades 1-4. The school was located at the site of the present Credit Union Building. Grades 5-12 were held at the central town school, the Middle School building site. She attended Valpraiso University in Indiana for two years and graduated from Ypsilanti Normal School with a degree and a lifetime teaching certificate in 1923. She continued to teach or administrate for some thirty subsequent years in Wisconsin, Illinois and Michigan. She taught high school Math and Science and served as principal for several years, including positions at Lake Orion, Oscoda and Boyne Falls.

After retiring, she traveled in England and spent several winters in Florida. But wherever she taught, or traveled the Durance family farm was always the hub in the wheel, expecially in the summer.

For the past 8 or 9 years, the Durance home has been more than a family dwelling. Through Frances' brother, the late Albin Durance, whose pasttimes included hiking, backpacking, canoeing, and biking, she became involved in the American Youth Hostel (AYH) Program. Ms. Durance hostesses between 100-150 travelers a year for AYH. Visitors are transient and usually spend only one or two nights as they travel across the country. Many hostelers are foreign, some are young people, others are families. All are driving rented cars, hiking, biking, or backpacking their way from here to there. Ms. Durance reports that her home hostel has harbored visitors from Australia, Germany, France, Switzerland, Ireland, England, New Zealand and Japan. The price is right. $3.00 per night will secure a single or double room.

"Most of them just roll their sleeping bags out on the bed: I charge them an extra dollar if I have to do the linens," explained Frances.

Ms. Durnace has been an active member of many organizations including: Eastern Star; Queen Ester Shrine, Petoskey; Rebecca Lodge, Charlevoix; First Congregational Church, Charlevoix and the Green Pines Chapter of Retired Teachers since her retirement from education in 1958.

"I'm satisfied with my life," says Frances. "My uncle used to say, 'Live one day at a time and live it well.' That's what I've tried to do."

Frances' good spirits and good health at age 90 are a testimony for her lifestyle in which working outdoors all summer has played a major part. But if you're still curious about her youthfulness despite the years, Frances might recommend her herb tea recipe: Comprey - a European health herb, alfalfa, sage, parsley, and homegrown strawberry leaves.

Good luck to us all finding Frances' Fountain of Youth.

Little Traverse Conservancy acquires first Lake Charlevoix frontage

The Little Traverse Conservancy has acquired its first nature preserve on Lake Charlevoix, Chairman Tom Pointner announced today. The 23 acre property is located at the head of Oyster Bay in Hayes Township and includes a small stream and 900 feet of shoreline on the Lake.

A nineteen-acre portion of the Oyster Bay property was donated by Barbara Douglas Dixon of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and Charlevoix and Frances Martin of Charlevoix. The Conservancy purchased an adjoining four acre parcel to connect the donated land to the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road.

"I want to thank Mrs. Dixon and Mrs. Martin on behalf of the Board of Trustees and members of the Little Traverse Conservancy," Pointner said. "Their generosity has made possible the preservation of this scenic and unique land in its natural state."

The land will be known as the Barbara Douglas Dixon Nature Preserve. The Little Traverse Conservancy is a non-profit conservation organization devoted to preserving natural land and open space in northern Michigan. With the acquisition of the Dixon Preserve, the Conservancy now owns and maintains five nature preserves in Charlevoix County totaling 164 acres.

Knight on the Town

A gut what?

by Dave Knight

Reference was made in the Letters section of last week's Courier to "Dave Knight on his gutbucket" and since then it has occurred to me that this may have been confusing to some people.

What is a gutbucket and what was Dave Knight doing on it?

While another, more sensitive person might consider such questions too personal in nature to address publicly, I shall not duck the issue as an example of the honest, open and candid type of guy I am.

Besides, some one or two of our thousands of readers out there might actually care.

A gut bucket is an instrument. A musical instrument, as it were. It is a bass instrument often associated with the kitchen band genre of traditional American music. That is, it is often accompanied with washboards, jugs and spoons.

The gutbucket is surprisingly more versatile than most people think, however, and I am constantly fighting for its rightful place in the overall scheme of things as the most noble of the one-stringed instruments.

Okay, so it's the only of the one-stringed instruments. Does that neccessarily make it less noble?

I wish I could review for you the gutbucket's early development, who discovered it, how the different techniques of playing it evolved, where it gained popularity and so on. I am afraid, though, that the literature on the gutbucket is sadly thin. You're spared.

Basically the thing is a washtub turned upside down with a broomhandle propped on the rim. A clothesline is tied to the top of the broomhandle and to an eye screw in the bottom of the tub.

Parents: are your children bugging you about buying an oboe...or a drum set...or, heaven forbid, a violin? Turn them onto the gutbucket! The advantages are many. It's cheap to buy and cheap to fix. Until the hardware stores realize they are sitting on a goldmine and start jacking up the prices of their washtubs, broomhandles and clothesline, you can outfit a decent gutbucket for under $20.

Of course, there are always those who must have the best. I have seen much more elaborate variations (monogrammed broomhandle, rust-proofed tub) but I figure you can't spray perfume on a skunk cabbage and call it a rose.

A gutbucket's a gutbucket and chic is just one thing it's not meant to be.

Most gutbucketists are easy to pick out in a crowd. They are usually males whose voices have changed, have callouses on their fingers and their shirttails hang out. Many wear cowboy hats and like to roll up their sleeves. Some chew tobacco. In the world of musicians, they comprise a most distinctive group.

The sound of the gutbucket can only be described as "earthy". It sounds like a combination of a plucked bass violin and a grouse drumming in the woods. Well, maybe it's more like a plucked grouse.

As mentioned before, it can be adapted to many more musical idioms than jug bands; I have successfully explored its application to Western Swing, Neo-Bluegrass and even Contemporary Jazz. I've not tried Easy Listening yet but suppose it might work.

Perhaps the best thing about the gutbucket is the neighborly atmosphere it creates. When someone brings a trumpet or a guitar or a xylophone into a room, people sit down and listen politely. They clap after the performance.

When you bring a gutbucket into a room, however, people start to laugh. Then they get up and start dancing. They come over to the gutbucket and want to try it themselves...and every true gutbucketist lets them. Before long everyone's having a good time.

Personally I think that if more people played gutbuckets rather than video games or Dungeons and Dragons, this world would be a much better place.

Not everyone would have to chew tobacco, of course.

Cut spending

To the Editor:

In Bob Clock's column in the April 6 Charlevoix Courier there was reference to Employment Research Associates of Lansing. This economic consulting firm (independent and non-profit) specializes in analyzing the impact of governmment policies on the U.S. economy. At a legislative seminar in Lansing on March 15 sponsored by the Michigan Conference of United Methodist Women, George Erikcek, a member of the above mentioned firm addressed a group meeting I attended. He said that in 1981 when the military budget was $154 billion it caused a net loss of 1,520,000 jobs. All of the jobs generated in industry and commerce through the purchase of goods and services by the Pentagon were considered. This figure was then compared with the number of jobs which would have been created if the tax-payers had spent money on their normal needs: food, clothing, housing, medical care, cars and other goods and services.

Mr. Erikcek reported that 85 percent of all Americans work in industries or businesses which suffer a net loss of jobs with every rise in the military budget. Of the 156 industries studied only 29 gained jobs. He also told us that in Japan and Germany their most brilliant engineers are employed in civilian industry. In the United States they are in the military industry or working on space contracts.

Employment Research Associates also did a study on the effect of military spending on unemployment of women. In 1980 when the military budget was $135 billion it cost the jobs of 1,200,000 women. The only state which did not suffer a net loss of jobs for women was Virginia.

I am sure many people felt as they left the seminar that the deep problems of the American economy can't be solved until the military spending is cut.

On depression

Dear Julie,

My letter is in response to your letter about "bleak holidays". You felt that churches and people should have a solution to lonely holidays.

I have had lonely holidays, and I use to sit at home wishing that someone had invited me to their home for dinner. I was too proud to tell my friends how lonely I was. Like you said, everyone seems to have plans and I always felt as if I would be an intruder.

One holiday I was quite depressed, and I decided that I would not have a lonely Sunday or holiday again. Yes, Sundays are also my loneliest times. So I looked around me (Pine River, Church and Restaurants) for people who needed a home-cooked meal.

I have new found friends, and now you have the answer to "holiday blues". So why don't you make this Sunday a holiday and have a friend over. There are lots of lonely people in this area and many of these people only have family or visitors from out of town come to see them on holidays or vacations.

Good luck.
God Bless

Out of date

To the Editor:

The article on Mary Feindt (Women in Surveying, April 13) was both interesting and inspiring. You did a great disservice to her as a professional person however, by stating that she achieved her success without using any of her womanly wiles. What the hell is a "womanly wile"? Does this mean that while Mrs. Feindt is standing out in a muddy field she wears a perky hat, bats her eyelashes, and giggles alot?

Let's be fair. If you're going to continue to promote stereotypes, I hope future articles on men in traditionally female occupations will at least imply that they are all raving homosexuals.

This is 1983. Get with it Fran.

Future of the world being decided in 'Firebreaks' game

by MARGARET DUERR

The time is April 19, 1988. For the past two weeks, Charlevoix "Firebreaks" participants have been meeting in special sessions in an attempt to defuse an increasingly critical world situation. "Firebreaks" is a role-playing game designed by Ground Zero in which the players are divided into two groups, half of whom are advisors to Kremlin leaders and half act as advisors to U.S. government leaders. At the first session, advisors were informed about several trouble spots including two in particular where events seem to be heading toward civil war. According to the scenario, one such spot is Yugoslavia where the Soviet-backed government has asked the Soviet Union for help in cutting off the flow of arms being supplied to a native Yugoslavian resistance movement, by the U.S. and several other NATO countries. By the end of the second week, the Soviet Navy has established a naval quarantine of all Yugoslavian ports, has airlifted 10,000 Soviet troops to Belgrade and is sending 30,000 more troops into Yugoslavia by land, through Hungary.

Meanwhile, in Central America, Nicaragua is also moving toward civil war. The Soviet Union has not intervened there directly, but has encouraged Cuban intervention as a way of keeping the United States occupied in the Caribbean, while the Soviets attempt to regain control of the situation in Europe. In response to Soviet prompting, Cuba has sent 5,000 troops into Nicaragua. European problems are increased by a new labor movement in East Germany which has joined with the churches in organizing large demonstrations in both East and West Germany on behalf of reunification.

By April 19, the U.S. president has ordered a small force of destroyers and submarines into the Adriatic to "probe" the Soviet blockade of Yugoslavian ports and has also ordered the Navy to conduct maneuvers off the coast of Nicaragua as a further demonstration of "our resolve in these matters". At his orders, 3,000 Marines have just been sent to Honduras to "assist the Honduran government in protecting its border with Nicaragua." As a result of this last action, an angry border incident has just occurred in which 21 Marines were killed.

This was the situation when U.S. and Soviet advisors met separately, - not jointly - at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix last night to try to avert war while also protecting their respective nation's vital interests. It must be emphasized that these events are not to be considered a prediction of events to come, but merely a fictional scenario, close enough to reality to provide a realistic exercise in diplomatic and military decision making. It should also be noted that, as of the close of the 2nd session, neither the President of the U.S. nor the General Secretary of the Communist party has followed the advice of their Charlevoix "advisors".

At this time it is not known what events will take place during the third week of April 1988. The final session of "Firebreaks" will be in conjunction with "What About the Russians?" Week, a community and campus program designed for Americans to explore some of the basic questions about the Soviet Union and to identify issues for study and evaluation. Neither the "Firebreaks" game nor the week of study about the Russians will endorse particular policies that the U.S. should follow. The programs are designed to encourage participants to make their own value judgments. By playing the role of advisor one learns that there are no simple diplomatic solutions to international crises. One may either look for areas of mutual benefit to use as a basis for working out solutions to international conflict or one may attempt to force a solution with a show of military strength. The important thing is to seek effective "firebreaks" before international "hot spots" burst into world conflagration.

Though only one session remains, anyone who is interested may come to the final meeting of "Firebreaks", at the Charlevoix Congregational Church at 7:30 p.m., April 26. There is no charge to attend and all points of view will be welcome. The views you will hear expressed will be those of your Charlevoix neighbors, not opinions dictated by the game planners. You are invited to express your opinions, also.

Whether we like it or not, the futures of the United States and the Soviet Union are inextricably linked by our nuclear arsenals. No effective planning for the future can occur without considering the question "What About the Russians?" This exercise will help one understand and evaluate the decisions our government leaders make, which is, after all, both the privilege and the responsibility of all people in a democracy.

Clockwise

With power comes headaches

by Bob Clock

THE LATEST MIDEAST atrocity — the bombing of the American Embassy in Beirut — makes us yearn for the good old days of the 1930s when the America First organization was a potent political force and "isolationism" wasn't the dirty word it is today.

If the United States were not obligated by political and economic forces to maintain diplomatic posts in hotbeds of dissension around the world, we would not leave ourselves open to the indignity of having our envoys imprisoned — as they were in Tehran in 1979 — or murdered in cold blood as they were in Beirut on Monday.

However, the United States is a world power with global interests. As much as we would like to adopt a policy of closing diplomatic offices in nations fraught with internal strife, such a move is virtually impossible.

But it would be possible to improve security at our foreign installations to the point where the lives of our civil servants and armed forces staffers would not be jeopardized by "car bombs" at the embassy gates.

Why, for example, is the American Embassy in Lebanon located on a busy thoroughfare in the festering heart of Beirut, one of the world's major trouble spots?

It would seem to make more sense to develop an American compound outside the capital, on a sizeable tract of land that could be easily defended from native intruders.

Of course it is nice to have your foreign offices centrally located on Embassy Row — but not when political turmoil makes American citizens prime targets for the first wild-eyed radical who happens along with a bundle of dynamite.

MICHIGAN'S weather is back in the news.

In January, February and early March we basked in some of the warmest temperatures ever recorded for those months in North America.

Now, in mid-April, we're making up for it.

Temperatures hit the low, low teens Monday morning — even though crocuses are in full bloom. And if you walk through the back yard you'll find spots where frost lies just below the surface.

It is too cold to rain, but snow flurries are an everyday occurrence.

However, Northern Michigan is a veritable tropic paradise compared to Southern Michigan where more than six inches of snow fell Sunday — two full weeks after Easter.

The forecast, however, is for slightly warmer temperatures in the days ahead so spring may not be too far away.

GARDENERS, of course, are crushed. After the mild winter I was planning to plant tomatoes (under plastic) the first week in May. But now it looks as though I'll have to wait until Memorial Day — as usual. And we probably won't have ripe tomatoes until Halloween.

Reibel arrested

posted ten percent pending arraignment in Charlevoix on or before April 22.

Reibel, 50, is charged with one felony count of failure to file a single business tax return and a misdemeanor count for selling beer, wine and t-shirts at rock concerts after the Michigan Department of the Treasury suspended his license to do so.

Parsons, 28, of Okemos, is a co-defendant in the felony proceeding.

Reibel and Parsons each face a maximum of five years imprisonment and a fine of $5000 for allegedly failing to file and not paying $5210 in single business taxes. On the misdemeanor charge, Reible faces a maximum of one year in prison and a fine of $1000.

Preliminary hearings have yet to be scheduled.

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rowe, Jr.

Stoel-Rowe

The United Methodist Church in Charlevoix was the setting for the Saturday, April 9 wedding of Terrie Stoel of Charlevoix and Robert James Rowe, Jr. of Pompano Beach, Florida.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Stoel of Eastport and he is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rowe, Sr. of Toledo. The Rowes were regular summer residents of Charlevoix.

Rev. Glenn Britton presided over the 1 p.m., double ring ceremony attended by 150 guests. Arrangements of iris, mums, white roses and gladiolas graced the altar while the pews and church entrance were decorated with white bows and ivy.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore an ivory satin gown with sweetheart neckline, dropped waistline, long sleeves with bridal point and lace insert. Alencon lace with re-embroidery pearls accented the bodice and cathedral length train. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis, white roses and ivy and wore a lace head piece and veil also trimmed with white roses and pearls.

Music was provided by Mrs. Jeannie Lignell who sang the Lord's Prayer and accompanied herself on the organ.

Matrons of honor included the bride's sisters Linda Zeitler and Tamara Whitley. Bridesmaids were Wendy Jones, Barbara Nelson and Wendy Richards. The attendants wore Dior blue satin gowns tailored by Willie Holmes with three-quarter length sleeves, drop waists and full skirts. They carried bouquets of mums, iris, bachelor, white roses and ivy.

Best man was Charles Alexander of St. Louis, Missouri. Groomsmen were Mark Stoel of Charlevoix and Robert Webb of Toledo.

A reception was held at Duffy's of Charlevoix following the ceremony. Luncheon was served along with a wedding cake made by Thomas Kneeland of Charlevoix. Music was provided by the Jelly Roll Blues Band.

A rehearsal dinner hosted by the groom's sisters was held at the Grey Gables the evening before the wedding.

The couple left for a four-week wedding trip to Hawaii via Denver and San Francisco. They plan to continue to spend summers in Charlevoix.

Wedding plans are made easy in Edith Gilbert's new book

by DAVE KNIGHT

"A wedding is not only a joyous occasion to share with family and friends but it is also an important ceremonial event and as such follows a prescribed form."

So writes Charlevoix author Edith Gilbert in her latest book, The Complete Wedding Planner, released earlier this year by Frederic Fell Publishers of New York.

Many young couples, after deciding to stage the "joyous occasion", find themselves confronting a much more awsome task in carrying out the "prescribed form".

It is a known fact that successful weddings often require as much careful planning as a shuttle launch, as much sense of protocol as a White House dinner and as much coordination of effort as a Broadway musical.

But Mrs. Gilbert maintains in her book that the task of planning a wedding need not be so laborious. To the contrary, she emphasizes, it can and should be an enjoyable experience for everyone involved.

The Complete Wedding Planner is described as the first wedding book to address both the bride and the groom separately and as a couple. The author encourages both participants to read through the book and mark the ideas they like and dislike, each using a different color ink. The result may be a marked up book, she warns, but this way the couple can easily find out early in the planning stage the things upon which they agree and which ones may need some negotiation.

The Planner does not take the pompous attitude that there is only one way to stage a proper wedding. Rather, it provides the couple with a myriad of different ideas and alternatives applying to every phase of the occasion from which they can pick and choose in designing a ceremony special to them.

As Mrs. Gilbert says, "...All weddings are the same but none are alike."

While the traditional wedding customs are all found in the book, many are handled in the context of changing social customs and the modern concept of marriage. It's a good bet that a book on the same subject written 30 years ago would not have addressed the matter of designing a gown for the pregnant bride.

Second marriages present some unique planning considerations and, since they comprise 30 percent of the weddings today, are covered thoroughly by Mrs. Gilbert.

The Complete Wedding Planner goes well behind the scenes to cover some of the mundane aspects of wedding planning as well as the more romantic. It has a full chapter on establishing a budget and the premise is that while a couple can easily spend a fortune if they wish, extravagance is not at all neccessary.

The chapter is introduced by the Lyndon B. Johnson quote: "Spend more imagination than money."

Chronologically, the book starts months before the day of the wedding. Its planning sequence starts, in fact, with the announcement of the engagement and even offers some tips on how to handle that sometimes delicate matter.

It goes on to cover showers and pre-wedding parties, writing and sending invitations, planning the reception, selecting attendants, and choosing what the bride, groom and attendants shall wear.

Entire chapters are devoted to each of the subjects of flowers, music and photographs.

Planning alternatives for the wedding itself include several different processional formats as well as the differing rituals of various religious faiths.

One of the most fascinating parts of the book is an appendix chapter on the historic background of the many customs, traditions and superstitions surrounding the marriage ceremony.

The Complete Wedding Planner is 248 pages but well organized as a resource tool so that information on specific subjects is easily located.

The hardcover book cost $14.95 and is now on sale at Literary News in Charlevoix.

Book review group sets last meeting of the year

The Book Review Group of the Charlevoix Woman's Club will hold its final session of the year Monday, April 25 at 1:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Joseph Morris, 513 Belvedere Club.

All members are to have read "Spring Moon" by Bette Bao Lord. Mrs. Charles Duerr will lead the discussion centered around this book. Members are invited to bring chinese memorabilia pertinent to the setting and historic era.

Mrs. Marjorie Dinwiddie will assume the chairmanship of the Book Review Group from Mrs. E.H. Leedy at this time and plans for the 1983-84 program will be made.

Garden Club reviews rules and regulations for upcoming Flower Show

A general discussion relating to the rules and regulations governing flower shows highlighted the program at the recent meeting of the Charlevoix Area Garden Club held at the home of Keith Morris.

Nancy Fowler presented an in-depth report of the rules; Phyllis Block described the artistic division; Marge Dinwiddie, the horticulture division; Carol Dutcher elaborated on the educational division with Derath Laue concluding with the staging plans of the show which will be presented in mid-August. She also asked that everyone save green bottles of every description for the flower show displays. Mrs. Morris distributed booklets containing the rules and regulations.

Mrs. Fowler exhibited the bird quilt which will be raffled at the time of the flower show with part of the proceeds going to pay for the additional land purchased by the State Federated Clubs at the Grass Bay Conservancy on Lake Huron.

At the business session, Portia Crawford, club president, and Mrs. Laue were elected to represent the club at the state convention in Midland May 31-June 2.

Members were also reminded that the site of the May 10 meeting will be the Charlevoix Public Library. The time will be 1 p.m.

Nancy Murray and Maggi Wilson hosted a tea following the meeting.

Softball team has strong core of veterans returning

The Charlevoix Rayder softball team has opened its season with five returning starters from last season Coach Mary Lieberman said in a recent interview.

She went on to say that she has a young crop of recruits in players who saw some action last season and among the six freshmen out for the team. "They're young but developing fast" she commented.

Among the returning veterans are two seniors, Bridget Noirot, a four year veteran catcher and short stop and Kim Bolduc, a veteran of three years, pitcher and first baseman.

Rhonda Buchanan, another three year veteran who pitches and plays in the infield is the only junior.

Two sophomores, each with a year's Varsity experience behind them are Sue Raginia, who plays at short or third base and Meg Fowler, outfielder or second base player.

Others who have had some experience are senior Chris Mitchell who plays at third or in the outfield and Amy Sell, a junior who plays at second base or in the outfield.

Other condidates are sophomores Ann Wagner and Linda cluk, infielders, and Missy Sandahl who will be on the mound or in the infield.

Freshmen candidates are Michelle Gagnon, a pitcher or outfielder; Lara Stargardt, catcher and infielder; and Tammy Lambert, Debbi Towlsey, Carol Holm and Ann Boulton, all outfielders.

The team opened at East Jordan Monday, hosted Central Lake Tuesday and will play at Gaylord Thursday before entertaining Kalkaska April 27.

Diamondmen hope to repeat as conference champs

The Charlevoix Rayder baseball team opened its 1983 season on their home diamond on Grant St. at 4 p.m. Tuesday, April 19 when they entertained Central Lake.

The team will be at Gaylord on Thursday and will host Grayling on Monday.

Only five regulars from Coach Pete Spieles' Michigan-Huron Shores Conference championship team are back this season and one of these, Jon Supernaw, recovering from a football injury, will play for the present only as a designated hitter. He was the team's regular catcher.

Others are Chris Potman and Jon Spieles, pitchers and infielders, and Jeff Trimper, shortstop, all seniors, and Jeff Kelly, junior catcher.

Coach Spieles said his likely starters on Tuesday will be Putman; Spieles; either Trimper or Mike Ford, a junior, at short stop; Kevin Morrison, a senior out for the first time, at second; Chris Havens, catcher; Brent Cole, infielder-pitcher; Kent Ketchman, Thad Morgan and Kyte Smith in the outfield. The latter five are sophomores.

Other candidates are junior A.J. Witthoeft, outfielder-pitcher; Mike Herriman, pitcher-outfielder; Dave McKenzie, catcher-outfielder; John Pearl, pitcher-outfielder; Richard Wurst and Jim Young, outfielders, all sophomores. Freshmen candidates are Marc Himebanch, catcher-outfielder and Jody Putman, pitcher-outfielder.

Local artist's work to be included in National Wildlife stamp series

by ANNE KELLY

"You never get through learning," is an attitude and a way of life that has seen local artist Jim Annis through a lifetime of experiences. And there's more to come. The only frustration is lack of time, according to Annis.

Born in Detroit, Annis spent most of his early years in the Chicago area before moving to Charlevoix. It is his nostalgia for the area combined with his love of the northern Michigan outdoors which has provided him with the subject matter of his paintings.

Perseverance in a hobby which he has found rewarding as long as he can remember has paid off in recent years with recognition from art circles around the state.

Locally, Annis has shown his paintings of trains, trolleys, streetcars, ships and wild life, expecially fish, at both the Portside Art Fair, Elm Pointe, and the Waterfront Art Fair, Charlevoix. In 1979, Annis also showed at the Midland Hotel, Chicago, and at Northwestern Michigan College in Traverse City. In 1980, Annis placed in the top 10 artists in the Michigan Trout Stamp competition and this year has received word of two more honors. His "Steelhead Trout" is included in the 1983 National Wildlife Federation's Conservation Stamp Series and Album with two other paintings having been commissioned for future use, and he has placed among the top 10 finalists in the Kentucky Trout Stamp Competition with his rainbow trout.

Other achievements include magazine covers for the following publications: 1979 - The Michigan Fisherman (3 covers); 1980 - Fur-Fish-Game Magazine; 1980 - Michigan-Out-Of-Doors; 1982 - Cabela's Fishing Equipment Catalogue; 1982 - Salmon-Trout-Steelhead Magazine.

Also in 1980, Annis had the distinction of being co-artist with Maynard Reece in "Michigan Anglers Guide".

It takes a fisherman to paint fish with the exactness and careful attention to detail which characterizes Annis' work. And a fisherman he is. Only recently, Annis has received recognition for a Muskelunge which he caught in the winter of 1974 in the Clam River, near Alden. The 31 lb. Muskelunge pulled through the ice on a 6 lb. line has been acclaimed as a World Record by the National Freshwater Hall of Fame, Hayward, Wisc.

But fishing, and painting fish is only part of the Jim Annis story. His work is presently being shown and sold in 30 galleries in the Chicago area, prints and originals which depict a variety of subject matter.

"I research my subjects," Annis explained. "Birds, ducks, ships... I never get through learning."

Just back from the printer are 1000 copies of one of his most unique paintings of old Chicago. Entitled, "Yesterday's Memories", it is a night scene depicting the old Marbro Theater on Madison St. "Built for the Marks Bros. in 1927, it was one of the showpiece theaters of west siders in the glory days of the movie palaces, one of the first to feature air-conditioning... Also portrayed is a PCC "Green Hornet" street car speeding its way to the Loop." (from a description which accompanies each print)

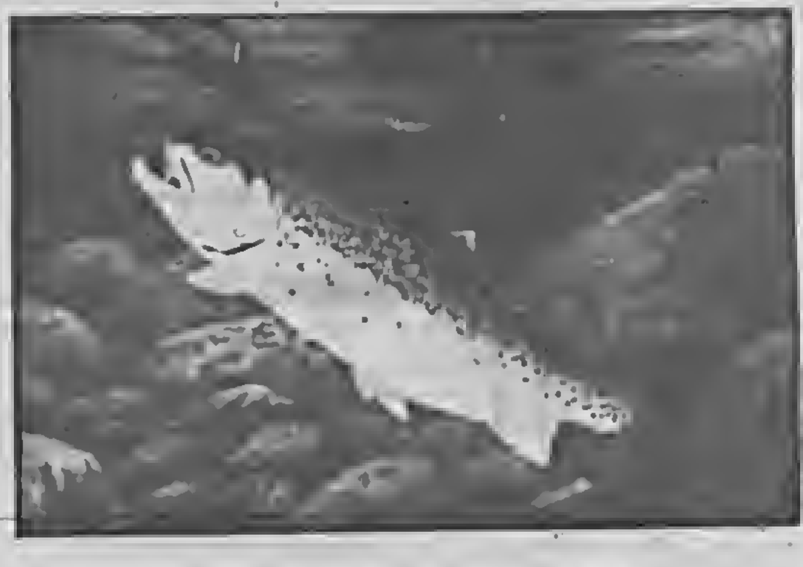
"I now paint with a definite market in mind. I sell very few originals hot deal in limited lithographic print series," says Annis. Prints sell for $50.00 and artist's proofs for $75.00 Annis has become of necessity more business minded over the past few years. All his printing is handled through his prinying agent, Graphic Printing, Petoskey and printed by Embossing Printers, Inc. of Battle Creek, Michigan. Chicago area sales promotion is handled by an artist's representative there.

One of the most unique payments for his work so far has been the offer of a cruise to the West Indies for two on a barefoot windjammer. The offer was made by Captain Mike Burke of the Barefoot Windjammer Cruise Ship, Ltd. of the Bahammas in exchange for a painting Annis made of the "Fantome", a 282 foot, four-masted barquentine ship which was a wedding gift from Onassis to the Rainiers of Monaco.

When will be take advantage of the cruise? "When I have time, and who knows when that will be," replies Annis jokingly. Most of his time is spent in painting, but Annis always finds time for the outdoor sports which keep him youthful and exhuberant and inspire his creativity.

"Someday I might write books," Annis projected, "but they'll be books that make people laugh, like golf and fishing anacdotes. Too many people, especially in the city, ride the buses or trains to work and either read or doze off until they get there. They don't even look out the window. There's more to life than that for me."



The print chosen for the Wildlife Stamp series.

Engagements

DesJardins-Suomela

Mr. and Mrs. Scott DesJardins of East Lansing have announced the engagement of their daughter, Catherine, to Scott Suomela.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Suomela of Rochester, Michigan.

The bride-elect, who lives in Chicago, is a 1976 graduate of East Lansing High School and recived her bachelor's degree from Western Michigan University in 1980. She is a sales representative for the Smith-Kline Company.

Mr. Suomela, also of Chicago, is the grandson of Mrs. Uno Suomela of Charlevoix and the late Mr. Suomela. He is a 1975 graduate of Eisenhower High School in Utica and a graduate of Western Michigan University with a B.B.A. degree. He is a sales representative for the Revlon Company.

Mrs. Milliken to address WRC spring meeting

Mrs. Helen Milliken will be the guest speaker at the Women's Resource Center's Annual Spring Event, Tuesday, May 10, 1983 at the Harbour Inn in Harbor Springs.

Mrs. Milliken, during her 14 year tenure as Michigan's First Lady, was an active spokeswoman for women's rights and the arts. She was an organizer of the highly successful Michigan Artrain and involved in the dedication of the Helzer Sculpture, a large sculpture located behind the Capitol Building in Lansing.

Her participation in the drive to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment brought her the co-chairperson position of ERAmerican. She is presently the co-chairperson of Michigan Women's Assembly Three.

Mrs. Milliken was very active in Republican politics during the state senatorial, lieutenant governor and gubernatorial terms of her husband, William G. Milliken. She was the convener of the International Women's Year Delegation in Michigan and was a Michigan delegate to the IWY Conference in Houston in 1977. In 1975, she toured the People's Republic of China, gaining a knowledge of women's issues in that country.

The arts and the environment have been among her chief interests, both in the years of family life in Traverse City and the public years in Lansing. She is a lifelong gardener, tennis player and skier. Milliken is a graduate of Smith College and has two children: Elaine, a Washington D.C. attorney, and Bill, a public relations specialist in Colorado.

The "Spring Event" will begin with hors d'ouevres and cocktails (cash bar) from 5:30 to 7:00 p.m. Mrs. Milliken's address will follow the social hour at 7:00 p.m. Tickets are available at the Women's Resource Center, Gold Mine Resale Shop, Hoveys Pharmacy in Harbor Springs, Wharfside Market in Charlevoix, from Board members and from staff members. County to survey timberland

A survey of the timberland in Charlevoix County will be done this summer as the result of action taken by the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners at its meeting Wednesday.

After hearing from Larry Sullivan, County Planning Director, the need for such a survey, the board approved a $3,500 appropriation to purchase infra-red photographs, the equipment to interpret them and related materials. The resulting information will be utilized by the Soil Conservation Service, Cooperative Extension Service, the Planning Commission and the Equalization Department.

In other action, the board approved a request to transfer $4,491 from the Grandvue Capital Fund to the Social Welfare Fund to underwrite the cost of floor covering at the Grandvue facility.

-Approved the transfer of the Mental Health appropriation made last fall from the contingency to the Mental Health Fund.

-Approved the appointment of Joan Blanchard, Equalization Director, as delegate to represent the County Board of Commissioners at the State Equalization Hearing. Donald Smith, a member of the Board, was named as alternate.

-Approved a request made by the Sheriff's Department to increase the number of posse members from 10 to 15 with the new members to be used at peak hours in the communication room and given only those duties covered by low hazard insurance. The new posse members will relieve certified personnel to work in other areas. The only cost to the county, the request stated, will be $237 for insurance with the funds to come from the Sheriff's budget.

-Approved a resolution asking that all elected state officials from the governor on down forego the automatic salary increase that will become effective Jan. 1, 1984 because of the state's economic crises.

-Went on record as opposing the state take over of the court system. The resolution also requested information relating to the financial responsibilities in the event of a take-over.

-Heard a lengthy discussion on "maintenance of effort" which relates to the formula for Medicaid reimbursements.

-Heard from Richard Knapp, Department of Social Services, who addressed the subject of the Youth Activities program and the ongoing complaint from Emmet County that it has not received its fair share of services. Knapp advised the board of the proper procedure that should have been followed when the service to Emmet County was discontinued at Emmet County's request and advised that the target population, i.e., the children who are likely to be in the juvenile court system, be more closely monitored.

-Heard from Christa Maria of the Concerned Citizens Group relating to funds paid by nuclear facilities to the state for use in training necessary personnel in the event of an emergency which do not trickle down to the county level. She was advised that the funds, paid at the request of Nuclear Regulatory Commission are utilized by the Michigan State Police and therefore are not available for training on a county level.

-Heard from Michigan Bell representatives about the Centrex System which has been proposed for use in the county offices and related departments.

The next meeting of the Baord is scheduled for 7 p.m. April 27.

Middle School Honor Students Are On a Mission!

The sixth and seventh grade honor students at Charlevoix Middle School are on a mission to go to Chicago for their annual field trip! The kids are raising funds for the trip right now and the Charlevoix Courier is helping them out. Half the money collected for every new subscription sold by the students April 13-May 11, will go toward the trip. For every renewal sold, the students get 25%. It's a good bargain, too! Courier subscription rates will go up this spring. May will be the last month to subscribe to the Courier for $11.75 a year in the area and $15.75 a year elsewhere.

Call Tom Sothard at the Middle School to make sure the honor students don't miss your home or business as they canvas the Charlevoix area.

Hospital dieticians do much more than just serve food

The job of a hospital dietitian is not just a matter of serving delicious and nutritious food to patients and hospital employees. Hospital dietitians are expected to spread the message of good nutrition throughout the area.

Both roles have been taken on seriously and enthusiastically by the new team of Dietitians at Charlevoix Area Hospital: Anne McCarthy, R.T., Food Services Manager, and Ann Ogden, her assistant.

For the past several years Charlevoix Area Hospital Dietitians have been increasingly visible, meeting with groups interested in learning more about good nutrition, and consulting with patients about specific dietary needs. Members of the Dietary Department are an integral part of the hospital's program of preventive medicine.

Last year, Anne McCarthy joined the dietary department as assistant to Dietitian Diane Charlebois, R.T. In March, when Charlebois married and moved downstate to work, McCarthy took on the supervisor's role. Last month she was joined by Ann Ogden, who will assist her. They come to Charlevoix Area Hospital through Interstate United, a national organization which serves hospitals, cafeterias, nursing homes and has an independent catering service.

Both young women already have busy schedules. This month, Ann Ogden will be meeting with The Coping organization in Boyne City, a group of people with life threatening illnesses, to discuss nutrition. McCarthy will present a program on nutrition to a continuing education program for dental assistants. Both work with in-patients and out-patients at the hospital who have been referred for dietary counseling.

In addition, they are instituting some changes in the hospital menu, in response to a survey the department has been conducting.

"Basically the changes will meet patient food preferences," McCarthy explained.

"We have also changed the cafeteria menu for more variety and a longer rotation cycle," the Dietitian continued, pointing out that employees who work weekends have been finding the same menu in the cafeteria every other weekend. With the lengthened rotation they will not have that repetition, she said.

McCarthy moved to Charlevoix from the Chicago area, where she grew up. She has a B.S. degree in Nutrition and Dietitics from Northern Illinois University in Dekalb. She is a Registered Dietitian. Prior to joining the Charlevoix Area Hospital staff she worked in the Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove, Illinois.

Anne McCarthy and Ann Ogden

Ogden is a Traverse City native. She received her B.S. from Central Michigan University in Mt. Pleasant, in Dietetics. She has just completed a 10 month's internship in the Dietary Department at the University of Virginia Hospital. She is preparing to take the examination to become a Registered Dietitian.

While both are available for speaking engagements and working with patients, McCarthy will oversee the administration of the department on a daily basis, while Ogden will place more emphasis on clinical work and counseling.

"One of our goals is to reach each new patient as soon as possible after they are admitted, so we can cater to their preferences, even in their first meal here," Ogden observed.

DEALING WITH DAMAGED EMOTIONS

by Pastor James Raum
Church of the Nazarene

Matt. 8.17, "Saying himself took on our infirmities and bare our sickness."

We look at this season of the year. We see the power of our Lord and this power comes from the resurrected power that brought Christ from the dead. This is the power that will heal our damaged emotions if we want.

Each of us have areas that need the healing power of the Lord and this comes from the Holy Spirit. These problems are deep seated and in some cases we do not even know that we need help.

This can be illustrated from nature. If you look at the cross section of a tree you can see the rings that tell the history of that tree. We too are like that tree; those rings in our lives tell our history also. Those rings tell of the good and the bad years; they are there for the whole world to see. As the bark covers the rings of the tree, so do the smiling faces that we all wear for the world around us to see.

These are the ring patterns of our thoughts and emotions that are recorded and are living fresh in our minds just waiting to be recalled. They directly affect our relationships, our lives, our outlooks on God, others and ourselves.

These scars are not touched by conversion, or by sanctifying grace, or by general benefits or prayer. But I do mean that prayer is the only answer of each of us. This prayer is a special kind of prayer that the Holy Spirit knows what and where to pray. Romans 8.26-37 tells us more about it.

Each of us needs to open our hearts to the power and ask God to come into our lives and heal our broken lives.

Two from Charlevoix to attend 'Capitol Experience'

Five Charlevoix county young people, including two from Charlevoix, will be among the more than seventy-five 4-H teens and adults attending the first "Capitol Experience" in Lansing this week: Michael Horton, 15 and Heath Green, 14, were chosen as delegates from Charlevoix county as well as Susan Peters, 15, of Boyne Falls, Brenda Caldecott, 14, and Bret Johnson, 16, from Boyne City and chaperone Maxine Howard, a 4-H leader from Boyne Falls.

The six will be spending Wednesday, April 20 through Saturday, April 23 in the state capitol. They will have a busy schedule of meetings with such groups and offices as: the Michigan Supreme Court, the Legislature, the press, lobbying groups, experts from Michigan State University and representatives of Governor Blanchard. 4-Her's will breakfast with their legislators and lunch with legislative aides as well as participate in small group discussions and attend panel discussions.

All 4-H teens who are attending "Capitol Experience" have completed some steps prior to the trip which helped to set the tone for the time in Lansing. They were asked to do such things as attend meetings of townships or city councils, attend school board meetings or interview an elected official or a member of the press, or to learn about the committee assignments of their state Representative and Senator. Upon their return, the Charlevoix county delegation is obligated to plan and carry out a community service project based on what they have learned or what might have been prompted by the trip and the examination of state government in action. Each county teen will also be asked to present a program or report about their experience to their sponsor group. This illustrates the traditional 4-H principle that information gained should be passed on.

In order to be chosen for this experience, teens had to be at least 14 years of age and complete an application explaining their interest and any experience they may have had with local government. For the first time, the county 4-H structure applied to local groups in the communities from which the teens came for individual sponsorship. In Charlevoix, the Lions Club sponsored Mike Horton and the Kiwanis Club sponsored Heath Green.

Vane Smith, Kiwanis Club representative is pictured with 4-H member Heath Green, 14. Heath received a scholarship from the Kiwanis to attend "Capitol Experience", a 4-H event designed to teach leadership and community service as well as inform young people about state government.

Lou Hollow, president of the Charlevoix Lions Club is shown with Michael Horton, 15, who will attend "Capitol Experience". Mike was given a scholarship by the service club to use for the event. Michigan teens will return to their homes better informed about the state government and will do a local community service project.

Carnival is Saturday

The 5th Annual Elementary School Spring Carnival will be held at the elementary school gym on Friday, April 22, from 5:30-8:30 p.m. The evening promises food, games, and fun for the entire family. Some of the carnival of attractions will be the "body-painting shop", the gold fish booth, a cake walk as well as the best 75 cent dinner in town featuring hot dogs, chips and pop or coffee.

The event is sponsored by the Parents Advisory Committee and proceeds are designated for equipment for the K-5 school. In the past, that organization has raised monies for cross country skis, bleachers, outdoor equipment, and has made a donation towards video and computer equipment for the school.

Anyone still wishing to volunteer for participation at one of the booths may call Shirley Roloff at 547-6169.

Lighting can be used to give a room personality

Lighting design considerations do not start with light sources or fixtures, but with people, their individual needs, life styles and activities. To give your room the exact personality and character you desire, consultants from the American Home Light Institute (AHLI) recommend the use of accent lighting.

Accent lighting may be created with surface, recessed or track-mounted lighting fixtures and is used to complement "task" and general lighting. Used primarily for decorative effects, these highly flexible lighting fixtures can be placed exactly where you want them and controlled precisely to provide the intensity, shape and color of light beam desired,

Accent lighting can be achieved with open reflector cans which provide a cone of directional light. Directed straight down close to a wall, they highlight the texture of masonry walls and hanging textiles. Away from the walls, open cans create an intimate pool of light to accent a table top setting, plants or flowers. Aimed at a 30 degree angle from the verticle, open reflector cans enhance pictures, paintings and photos and minimize reflected glare. Cans placed on the floor under plants create fascinating shadow patterns on the ceiling providing high drama at minimum cost.

Another method of providing accent lighting is the use of framing projectors. They enable you to shape a beam of light to the exact size and shape you want by a series of lenses and shutters. It is an excellent way to highlight a painting, sculpture or prized collectable. Spill light is omitted so only the displayed article is lighted.

Pendant downlights can be used for accent lighting. They can be installed singly or in a group over a game table or dining table or add decorative impact and increase the light level on the table top. A series of them hung over a planted can become an effective room divider.

Projector spots are ideal for creating dramatic effects. Standard and low-voltage spots project a narrow beam of light that carries over a long distance. The low-voltage spots are excellent energy savers that deliver a highly concentrated light in a small area.

The American Home Lighting Institute offers these tips for installing accent lights. Aim accent lights so no one in the room has to look at the glare of an exposed bulb or inside the fixture. Use a reflector spot for a narrow beam of light or a flood for a softer, wider pool of light. Illuminate a three dimensional object from more than one location. Spots ahead of and on either side of an object create depth. Light from straight on makes an object appear flat.

For expert lighting advice, visit an American Home Lighting Institute showroom dealer in your area. These qualified lighting consultants can help you design a lighting plan and select fixtures to fit your needs. For additional lighting tips, a revised, full color booklet, "Guidelines to Good Lighting," is now available. The 20-page booklet shows innovative lighting designs and discusses lighting guidelines that complement today's changing life styles and activities. Over 30 color photographs of dramatically lighted room scenes depict general, task and accent lighting, with fixtures that enhance every individual need and atmosphere.

Types of lighting, light sources, energy savings and security lighting are a few of the other subjects described in this informational booklet.

For a copy of this new edition of "Guidelines to Good Lighting" booklet, send $1.00 to the American Home Lighting Institute, 435 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

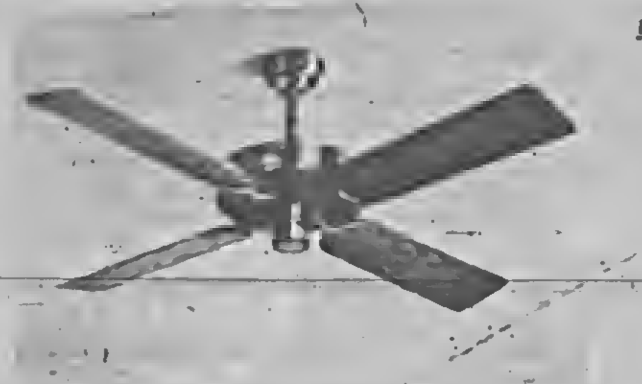
Ceiling fans, once decorative, now reborn as energy savers



Ceiling fans are enjoying a rebirth in popularity, largely because of their appeal as decorative items. But recent research has shown the fans are very effective and economical cooling devices.

Ceiling fans are capable of making room occupants feel comfortable at temperatures up to 85 degrees Fahrenheit, according to research conducted at the Institute for Environmental Research on the campus of Kansas State University (KSU).

In the ceiling fan tests participants were subjected to a range of temperatures without a ceiling fan and with a ceiling fan providing various air velocities. Test results showed that occupants felt as comfortable at 82 and 85 degrees with a ceiling fan operated at high velocity as they did at 76 degrees with no fan at all.

The ceiling fan's ability to provide cooling effects at temperatures into the mid 80's is of great significance in these energy-conscious times. Ceiling fans are very economical to operate and can result in substantial energy savings when used to supplement air-conditioning. The KSU study conservatively estimates that a homeowner can realize energy savings of at least 18 percent when the ceiling fan is operated at 85 degrees instead of the air-conditioner. An article in the July 1982 issue of "Consumer Reports", exploring the benefits of the ceiling fan, emphasized the economical operation of the devices. The article noted that, based on national averages, the cost for running a ceiling fan for eight hours would be about one-half penny.

In addition to its economical advantages during the summer months, the ceiling fan offers energy-saving potential in the winter as well. Operated at low speeds, the fans help to recirculate the air during the winter distributing the warm air that collects near the ceiling to the room below. By circulating the warm air in this manner, the ceiling fan helps to take some of the burden off a home's heating system, again saving energy and money.

Of course, the ability of the ceiling fan to enhance virtually any decor makes the fan an even more popular item. Today's ceiling fans are available in wood, brass, cane and other finishes in wide ranges of colors. Fan accessories include a variety of lights, swag chains, pull tassels and decorative covers.

Ceiling fans are available with short-stem assembly, allowing for them to easily fit into rooms with standard eight-foot ceilings, with seven feet of clearance. The fans range in size from 36 to 52 inches. The larger fans are suited for family rooms, bedrooms, kitchens, porches, offices and other large rooms. The smaller models are designed for use in tighter quarters such as hallways, small offices, stairways, dining rooms and apartments or small houses where space is at a premium.

Optional speed controls for the ceiling fans include pull chains allowing for high and low settings and solid state controls allowing for infinite settings. A number of models allow you to change the fan's rotation, reversing the air flow.

Ceiling fans are easy to install as a do-it-yourself project. The fans come with detailed installation instructions and can be mounted quickly and easily.

The Home Ventilating Institute (HVI) cautions home owners to be careful in selecting a ceiling fan. HVI, a voluntary organization of leading manufacturers of powered home ventilating equipment which certifies products according to uniform testing procedures, notes that some ceiling fans are built strictly as decorative items and are not made to circulate air at all. Consumers are advised to look for the HVI label in selecting a ceiling fan. The label assures that the product has been independently tested and that its performance level has been certified.

COOLING-HEATING

Spray paint is the easy way to a bright, new look for summer

Get a fresh, new start on the summer of 1983 by restoring the weather beaten finishes of seasons past with spray paint. Versatile and easy to apply, spray paints are available in a rainbow of colors that are as tough and durable as they are pretty. The following suggestions from the National Paint and Coatings Association will help get your summer off to a colorful headstart!

BICYCLES

To help prevent theft, use paint to individualize a bicycle by painting your initials or license number on the back fender. A racing stripe or good luck symbol can improve the appearance of your bike. Should you wish to trade or sell your cycle, a fresh paint job will increase the resale value. Before you paint, a metal surface, be sure to sand away rust and peeling paint. A prime coat is a necessary first step on most metal surfaces.

OUTDOOR FURNITURE

A coat of paint will protect metal lawn furniture from rusting and wooden furniture from splintering during the rains of summer. Spray paint gives you the flexibility to easily change the color scheme of outdoor furniture when you replace seat cushions or sun umbrellas.

BARBECUE GRILLS

Specially formulated heat resistant paint will extend the life of a grill by helping to prevent corrosion caused by smoke, heat, and fumes.

OUTDOOR RAILINGS

Depending upon the climate of your area, it is generally a good idea to repaint outdoor railings every few years. A good coating will help the railing last longer by making it less susceptible to weathering and the resulting corrosion.

SWING SETS

Brighten up backyard junglegyms, swing sets, and tree houses with vivid color. An attractive play area will become a welcome retreat for your child's summertime activities.

HELPFUL SPRAY PAINT TIPS

WHAT TO DO BEFORE YOU PAINT

Begin your spray paint project by reading and following all manufacturer's directions. Be sure the surface to be painted is clean and dry. Because paint adheres better to smooth surfaces, sanding will probably be necessary.

PROTECT SURROUNDING AREA

Use newspapers secured with masking tape to shield floors and walls from the spray. To avoid the paint getting caught up in a breeze, choose a calm, clear day for your project.

A TEST SPRAY WILL BE HELPFUL

Perfect your spray technique with a few practice tests on scrap materials. Learning to hold the can properly will insure a smooth, even coat of paint.

Lawn and Garden Tractors

John Deere offers a choice of 7 power sizes—from 10 to 19.9 horsepower—and transmission with hydrostatic or variable-speed drive. Triple-safety starting guards against accidental starts. A welded-steel frame gives rugged strength. Headlights are built in. Color-coded controls. Roomy operator's area. Wide range of attachments.

Water heating costs can be cut in five steps

The hot water heater is a heavy user of energy and about 40 percent of every five minute shower is hot water.

However, according to the National Energy Watch, an energy efficiency program developed by the Edison Electric Institute, there are five low or no cost remedies available to householders that can help stem the outgoing tide.

1. Install a flow controller in the shower head. This simple device, which costs less than one dollar, reduces the flow of water from about six gallons a minute to three gallons. And installation couldn't be easier - just remove the shower head, push in the flow controller as far as it will go and replace the shower head. A few minutes work can result in savings of about $40 a year.

2. Set the temperature of the water heater at 140 degrees or lower. This temperature is adequate for most household needs, even when using an automatic dishwasher. Without a dishwasher, a setting of 120 degrees is sufficient. Remember, the higher the setting, the more energy the hot water heater uses. Experiment to find the lowest temperature that meets your family's needs. It will pay off in money and energy savings.

3. Add an insulating jacket to the water heater. An extra layer of insulation will keep the heat from being lost through the walls of the tank, and save an estimated $20 a year for electric water heaters and $10 for gas. Insulation kits and materials are available at hardware stores and do-it-yourselfers can master the job. Just be sure to follow the instructions carefully since it's important that doors, vents and heat valves remain uncovered.

4. Repair leaky faucets promptly. One drop a second works out to 200 gallons of hot water wasted in a month.

5. In homes with washing machines, another easy way to cut back on consumption of costly hot water is by washing clothes in warm water and rinsing in cold.

THINK ABOUT IT.

Energy: good news, bad news

On the energy front, there's good news and bad news for homeowners.

The good news is that oil prices, which have soared virtually every year since 1973, will finally level off. Plentiful supplies will prevent a price rise of any consequence, according to most energy experts.

The bad news is that the price of natural gas, long considered cheap when compared to other heating fuels, is expected to jump 20 to 30 percent, according to the Citizen/Labor Energy Coalition, a consumer group based in Washington, D.C.

The reason for the sharp rise is the continued deregulation of the product. Congress, in 1978, authorized a gradual decontrol of gas prices, a process to be fully phased in by 1985. The purpose of the legislation was to bring the cost of gas (used by 55 percent of homes in America) in parity with oil (used by 19 percent), thus helping to spur Americans to further conserve energy resources.

Electricity: Up Too

As for those who heat their homes with electricity (18 percent of the country), the news is mixed.

Data Resources, Inc., a well known energy research firm, forecasts that the cost of electricity — a source often more expensive than both oil and gas — will be approximately 11 percent greater this winter than last. That's better than what is happening to gas prices, but it still represents a cost hike greater than the rate of inflation, which for the last 12 months has been 5.9 percent, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Solution: Conservation

With fuel prices still going up, what can

Home heating costs will continue to rise throughout the decade, according to the U.S. Department of Energy.

While oil and electricity prices will increase gradually, the cost of heating with natural gas—once considered an inexpensive fuel source—will rise sharply because of continued deregulation of that industry.

As a result, American homeowners are likely to continue their efforts to conserve energy.

homeowners do? As an increasing number are realizing, the only sure thing is conservation. In Massachusetts, for example, homeowners are expected to use approximately 40 percent less heating oil this year than five years ago, according to state energy officials.

Indeed, it has been the trend toward conservation that has lessened the demand for oil, which has helped to flatten prices.

One of the most popular methods of energy conservation is adding insulation to the home — in the attic, sidewalls, basement walls, floors over unheated spaces and other such areas. "This year we expect some 4.5 million Americans to add insulation to their homes," says Richard Trumbull, vice president of Owens-Corning Fiberglass Corporation, a leading manufacturer of home insulation.

Many Reinsulate Twice

In fact, Mr. Trumbull adds, a large number of those who plan to reinsulate will be doing so for the second time. "In other words," he says, "these people may have first added insulation five years ago after the Arab oil embargos had their full impact. And now, after oil prices doubled again in the last five or six years, these same homeowners realize they better make their homes even more efficient so their monthly utility bills remain manageable."

Homeowners who are considering reinsulating should contact their local utility, building supply dealer or insulation contractor. Any one of these sources can advise what the proper level of insulation should be in any part of the house.

"Insulation is measured by R-values," Mr. Trumbull says. "While it is generally accepted that an R-19 (six inches of glass fiber batts) is an absolute minimum in the attic for any region of the country, some recommendations go as high as R-44 such as in Minneapolis where the local utility, Minnegasco advises such levels.

Not Only The North

Homeowners in the South should also upgrade their insulation levels, Mr. Trumbull adds, because insulation helps to keep a home cool in summer. For example, he says, the Office of Energy Resources in Georgia now prescribes R-30 insulation in the attic, up from previous years.

A final incentive for homeowners to improve the efficiency of their homes has to do with taxes. A tax credit of up to $300 is available for certain energy-saving improvements, including insulation, weatherstripping, caulking and storm windows and doors. Check with your local utility for more information, and your local IRS office to determine if your qualify for this credit, Mr. Trumbull advises.

'Shape' a new kitchen design

There's a wide choice of kitchen shapes to choose from. Selecting the right one to fit your family's needs can make the difference between a kitchen that runs smoothly and one where the cook has to dodge family members between the refrigerator and the sink.

Kitchen Design Consultant Ellen Cheever, who is working with The Maytag Company as that firm introduces a line of cooking appliances, says one of the first steps in kitchen remodeling is to choose the shape of the room itself.

"The shape of the kitchen should fit the circumstances and lifestyle of the family. Proper layout will control traffic through the kitchen, extend countertop space, and streamline work areas to make meal preprartion as efficient as possible," she points out.

She offers these four basic kitchen shapes for consideration, each with its own advantages:

-A U-shaped kitchen, with appliances placed in a horseshoe arrangement, is considered the most efficient design because the cook is surrounded on three sides by a continuous counter top. The counter is unbroken and free from traffic. One of the work centers in the "U" can serve as a room divider between the kitchen and family living area.

-In an L-shaped plan, continuity is generally unbroken. Household traffic is directed away from the cook. This plan is especially good when there is an eating area in or near the kitchen or when an island cabinet is planned.

-The corridor shape offers the advantages of a close grouping of work centers. However, traffic through the area interrupts the work flow. This plan is adaptable to a peninsula or island, which creates an open look and diverts traffic from the work area.

-The one-wall plan often is used in small apartments and vacations homes, where space is limited. It does not provide an efficient plan for a busy cook because all three work centers are stretched along one wall.

Two new kitchen shapes growing in popularity are the G-shaped kitchen and the L-shaped kitchen with an island.

The G-shaped kitchen is an extension of the L-shaped plan, with an extra wall for cabinets and appliances. The L-shaped kitchen with an island offers additional countertop space without cutting off any doorways.

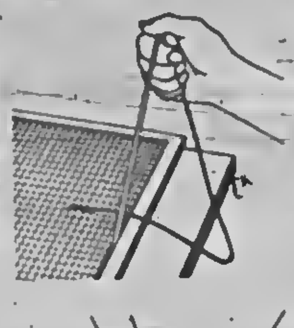
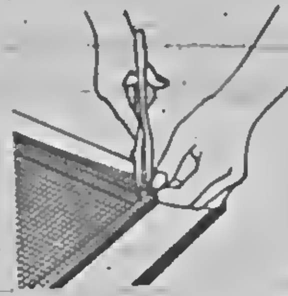
Easy Step Aluminum Screening Job Lasts And Lasts

1. Place screen panel on flat surface with the retainer spline groove facing up. Using a screwdriver, pry up the end of the spline and pull it out of the channel.

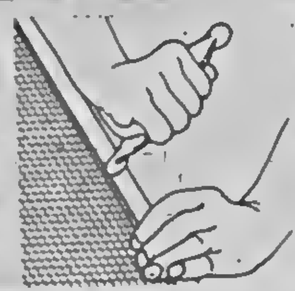
Remove old screen and clean all dirt and debris from groove. Retain the spline for use later unless it has become cracked or brittle in the case of plastic, or bent in the case of metal spline.



2. Measure and cut screening ¼" to ½" larger than frame on all sides. And cut a ½" diagonal corner off each corner of screening. This cut should be just at the outside edge of each corner of the groove.

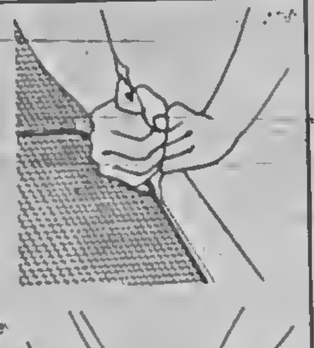


3. Weight down three corners of the screening. Then, using the convex side of a double roller, roll screening down into the groove on one side of frame. Make sure the aluminum screening is crimped and firmly seated at the bottom of the channel by using a 45° angle pointing towards the inside edge of the groove.

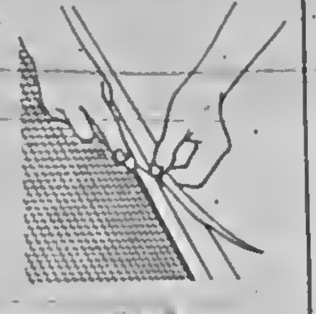


4. Seat spline firmly in the corner where you have just rolled the screening. Use the concave side of the roller and roll the spline all along this side.

Turn the screen and continue this procedure for remaining sides. Be sure to pull screening taut as you go.



5. Trim off excess spline and screening with a utility knife. Use an angle across the spline so the knife can't slip and cut the newly installed screening.



6. If metal spline is used, a putty knife may be used to bend screen edges into the groove and seat it firmly. Then drive the spline into the groove with a wooden block and hammer; butt joint the spline at corners.

Redwood in short lengths is an attractive alternative for home projects

Work a bit of magic and transform the house and yard into an outdoor living space that will not only be well used in summer but all the year 'round as well. Simpson Timber Company suggests some interesting, provocative and cost-effective ways to make this happen.

For instance, choose economical short lengths of redwood, often overlooked at the supplier, and Garden Grades of redwood that offer rustic knot characteristics and furnish a contrast in the plans. Put together patterns where short lengths are combined at right angles to achieve a pleasing parquet-like section of deck. Instead of using premium specified lengths to cover 14 feet of deck space, put easy-to-transport and easy-to-handle 6 foot and 8 foot lengths end to end reversing the order on each course to create and interesting staggered joint period. Choose square, hexagonal or octagonal modules fitted together to create any size decking desired. Imagination is the only limitation.

The short lengths are cost effective since the supplier is often anxious to move them rapidly and will make the pricing right. Further, they can be easily handled and transported in a car or wagon and the size adds to the versatility when it comes to actual construction.

Other alternatives to the deck picture are the utilization of garden grades of redwood with rustic knot characteristics on the deck surface. Knot-free Clear Grades of redwood are more suitable for deck or porch railings, planter boxes, and decks or patio furniture.

Redwood, with its natural tones of creamy sapwood and cinnamon colored heartwood, can be stained with a good quality semi-transparent stain to preserve the beauty of the grain and texture. Any tone of redwood can be achieved with this method. If left to weather naturally, redwood will become a soft silvery gray. Or a clear water repellent preservative will keep the wood from darkening, retaining a natural appearance. If this latter method is used, it will require renewing from time to time to retain the color desired.

There are some "do's" and "dont's" to be observed when working with redwood that will enhance the decks for a lifetime. Where redwood comes in contact with the ground or where moisture is a factor, only the heartwood of redwood should be used since it resists decay and insects. This is one of natural benefits of the species. Also, for exterior applications, use only corrosion resistant hot-dipped galvanized, stainless steel, or aluminum nails. These will last longer and will not stain and streak the wood as common nails will do.

More information on redwood for outdoor living is available through Simpson Timber Company, P.O. Box 566, Redmond, WA 98052, or by contacting any Simpson redwood dealer.

Short lengths of Simpson Redwood, combined at right angles, achieves pleasing parquet-like modular sections for this handsome deck.

Fate of water plant bond rests with voters

by DAVE KNIGHT

The engineers recommended it. The state encouraged it. The City Council approved it.

Now, it's up to the people to decide if they want to pay for it.

"It" is a $1.766 million lake water treatment plant proposed to replace Charlevoix's chemically tainted groundwater as a source for the city's municipal water supply. Facing city voters on May 2 is a $1.65 million bond issue that, if successful, will provide the major portion of funds necessary to build the plant.

The bonding proposition comes over a year and a half after the discovery of trichloroethylene (TCE) in Charlevoix's water supply. A suspected carcinogen, the industrial chemical has been detected in city water at levels ranging up to 117 parts per billion (ppb). According to the most recent test results, an aeration system installed at the city pumphouse this winter removes about one third of the contamination and has stabilized TCE levels at about the 35 ppb range.

Should bonding for the lake water treatment plant be approved, estimates are that an intake structure extending into Lake Michigan could be operational by late summer. The State Health Department has indicated that, with adequate chlorination and monitoring, TCE-free water from the lake could be used by the city as soon as the intake structure is completed.

Health department officials have also made it clear, however, that given the City Council's decision to tap Lake Michigan as a raw water source, nothing short of a fully-equipped surface water treatment plant will be acceptable to them.

Such a plant, says the Health Department, must include a holding tank and a filtration unit which, at a combined cost of almost $1.5 million, comprise the major expense for the plant and will take at least three more years to complete.

In an April 15 letter to the city, Timothy A. Benton, P.E., district engineer in the Department of Public Health Water Supply Services Division, clarified his department's position.

"It must be clearly understood that the Michigan Department of Public Health is not requiring the city to build a water treatment plant," wrote Benton, "The treatment plant was the city council's chosen alternative to replace the existing source facility that is contaminated by the volatile organic chemical compound trichloroethylene."

Benton cited the administrative rules of the state's Safe Drinking Water Act of 1976 that call for "disinfection, coagulation, sedimentation and filtration" in the use of surface water as a drinking water supply adding that "The complete treatment requirement was not something developed overnight or in a haphazard manner."

"The rationale used is based on over a hundred years of water treatment history as well as tens of thousands of cases of waterborne disease. The public health goals behind this department's public water supply requirements are necessarily preventive in nature rather than being reactive to epidemics," wrote Benton.

Surface water treatment was one of three alternatives considered by City Council as a means to provide city water free of TCE. Carbon filtration of the existing groundwater supply was rejected because of the high operating and maintenance costs involved as well as the system's inability to eliminate some chemical pollutants other than TCE. Drilling new wells was the other alternative turned down by the council because of the vulnerability of the groundwater to future contamination.

In a November, 1982 report comparing water quality of Lake Michigan to the groundwater aquifers suppling Charlevoix's existing water system, Granger Engineering of Gaylord stated that TCE and other similar volatile compounds could not exist in Lake Michigan because of the aerating effect of the wave action.

Recent testing has appeared to confirm this fact. Water samples taken from both the lake and from beneath the lake bed in which the intake would be buried have revealed no traces of TCE or other organic pollutants.

Lake Michigan is currently used as a drinking water source by several communities along the Lower Peninsula's western coastline including Traverse City.

According to City Manager Robert Hunt, even without TCE contamination, the existing city well is susceptible to other chemical pollutants. Though neither has yet shown up in the city water supply, both percholoroethylene and chloroform have been detected in the groundwater locally. These two organic chemicals are similar to

Township to vote on millage for water system improvement

While city voters ponder a bonding proposition for a new water treatment plant in the May 2 election, Charlevoix Township voters have their own issue to decide resulting from water problems.

The township seeks voter approval of one mill for 1983 and 1984 for water system improvements.

Those improvements consist mainly of a settling tank proposed to be constructed near the BMX track in the township's north side recreation park. Latest efforts by the township to develop a new north side well have been hindered by the cloudy condition of the water at the well site. The settling tank is designed to eliminate the cloudiness and provide the township with water storage capability.

According to Township Supervisor Oscar Stroud, the township is intent on developing a back-up system to be operational when and if future problems occur. Even if the township participates with the city on a new lake water treatment plant, said Stroud, a back-up system is important for both city and township.

If successful, the millage is expected to generate $40,000 for the project. A total cost figure for the tank has not been reached since engineering has not been completed for the project. Said Stroud, "We are still negotiating on the price."

Details of the proposed plant

As designed by the engineering firm of McNamee, Porter and Seeley, the proposed lake water treatment plant would be constructed in three phases. (The phased approach is not absolutely neccessary, however, and if federal grant funding is successfully received, the plant might be built all at once.)

Phase I would consist of an intake structure. A buried pipe would extend 1500 feet into Lake Michigan from the existing pump house location and terminate in an H-shaped intake in 24 feet of water. The intake itself would be buried under four to eight feet of sand which would provide additional filtration. The outfall of the city's sewage treatment plant is located about 3,000 feet from the proposed intake and is not considered by the designers as a threat to contamination of the water plant intake.

The estimated cost for Phase I, which also includes installation of chlorination equipment, is $275,000.

Phase II entails construction of a chlorine-contact storage tank, new low service pump station and miscellaneous piping revisions at the pump house site. This would be completed in 1984 and cost $390,000.

The third and most costly phase is the construction of a facility to filter the lake water. The filters would consist of a sand or mixed media whose chief purpose would be elimination of suspended particles in the water. This process is also aided by the introduction of "coagulant" chemicals that causes suspended particles to join together into larger particles that are more readily trapped by the filters. Sedimentation, a process in which the suspended particles settle to the bottom, is not being required by the Health Department in Charlevoix's case because of the "high quality" of the lake water.

With the building, tanks, filters, laboratory equipment and necessary plumbing, the total Phase III cost is estimated at $1.101 million. If construction on this phase is started in 1985 as proposed, completion of the entire plant would be in 1986.

Operating costs of the plant are estimated by McNamee, Porter and Seeley at $94,000 a year. This is the total, not addtional to present operating costs, and may vary as the city explores ways of reducing the manpower needed to monitor the system.

The new plant, located next to the existing pump house, would incorporate the facilities of the pump house, not completely replace them, says City Manager Robert Hunt. The only part of the existing system to be abandoned is the underground wooden intake structure, says Hunt.

Consolidation study faces critical election

by DAVE KNIGHT

Whether a charter commission shall be formed to study the feasibility of consolidating the City of Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township is the question to be posed to voters of both governmental units in the May 2 election.

The election marks a crucial point in efforts initiated by the city in February, 1980 to merge the city and township into a home rule city.

Should voters of both units approve the proposition, a charter commission will be appointed with equal representation of both city and township. The commission will then have either two years or two ballots to develop a charter for a new home rule city. Should the charter commission be unsuccessful in getting voter approval for a new charter within the two year period, the process may start over again immediately without a waiting period.

If the May 2 vote is "No" in either the city or the township, however, the consolidation process ends. Under state law, following a negative vote in either of the affected units, the Boundary Commission may not entertain another petition for consolidation for two years and a day.

According to State Boundary Commission Executive Secretary James S. Hyde, should the May 2 vote be affirmative and a charter commission formed, it would be the farthest any Michigan communities have gone in the consolidation process established by the state legislature in 1968.

There have been no successful consolidation efforts in the state since the 1968 legislation. In fact, said Hyde, of the "seven or eight" cases where consolidation has been proposed, none have gotten as far as forming a charter commission.

Hyde pointed out that the trend may change, however, with the legislative change sought successfully by the City of Charlevoix last year enabling a charter commission to consist of equal representation from each unit involved rather than representation based on population.

The city's most recent efforts to merge with the township began with the filing in February, 1980 of a petition asking for approval by the State Boundary Commission of consolidation. Testimony on the matter was examined by the Commission at at least two adjudicative meetings in Lansing and in August, 1980, a public hearing was held at the Charlevoix High School.

On June 3, 1982, the Commission issued the decision that consolidation posed "no detrimental effects" to the entire community, that it would have "no negative environmental impact" and that consolidation should be approved.

Provisions in the 1968 law state, however, that should a petitioner seeking an election successfully gather signatures of five percent of the registered voters residing in the area of consolidation, an election shall be held to decide whether the whole process shall continue. Such a petition drive was conducted last summer and the result is the May 2 ballot proposal.

Elected officials of the city have strongly and publicly sought a "Yes" vote. At their March 21 meeting, City Council members passed a resolution urging voters to approve continued study of consolidation. The resolution also called upon members of the Charlevoix Township Board to issue a similar endorsement.

The Township Board, however, decided at their April 11 meeting not to take a stand for or against the proposal.

The board did agree that the wording of the ballot proposal, which is dictated by state law, is misleading and that township voters should be informed of precisely what they are voting on. A letter to the editor from the board appears in today's Courier for that purpose.

Here are the rules for spring rubbish pick-ups

Springtime is cleanup time and the City of Charlevoix will help local residents in their cleanup efforts again this spring with a ward-by-ward schedule for brush and rubbish pickup.

City crews will authorized to haul away brush, tree limbs, appliances, furniture or other rubbish according to the following schedule. Those wishing to have pickups made must have the rubbish put out before the dates listed.

In the Second Ward (according to old boundaries, west of State St.): before Monday, May 2.

In the First Ward (according to old boundaries, north of the bridge): before Monday, May 9.

In the Third Ward (according to old boundaries, east of State St.): before Monday, May 16.

The following rules apply to the pickup:

1. All the rubbish must be out for pickup before the starting date in each ward.
2. It is illegal to place rubbish, brush or leaves at the sides of Charlevoix streets after the starting date in each area. Violators will be cited and the rubbish, brush or leaves will not be picked up.
3. Place all items for pickup in back of the curb on all streets with curbs or off the travelled portion of the road on streets without curbs.
4. Mark containers "SAVE" if you want them returned.
5. Large objects do not have to be placed in containers.
6. Brush and tree limbs must be cut into four foot lengths and must be separated from other rubbish.
7. No regular garbage will be collected.

According to City Hall, once the spring clean-up project is over, city crews will not be picking up any rubbish or brush from private property again until after Labor Day.

Questions on the pickup can be directed to the City Manager's office at 547-4161.

Charlevoix Yesterday

Resplendent in white uniforms and ready to follow their poised drum major, this marching band was photographed in front of their school, now the Charlevoix Middle School. Though the photo is undated, it appears to be from the early part of the century. No further information on the group was available. (Photo courtesy of Tinker Kirby.)

For Saints and Sinners

by Rev. Charles B. Hastie
First Congregational Church

Many will recognize the name of David Wilkerson, a clergyman of the United Presbyterian Church, who made a career of working with youth, and with notable success, in a charged inner city situation in New York, amid surroundings of the drug culture, broken homes, and juvenile delinquency. Here are some "Rules for Parents in the Words of Youth" from a piece he has written, "Parents on Trail".

1. Keep your cool. Kids need the confidence only a steady hand and a settled soul can offer.

2. Don't get hung up on a jag that keeps you away from home. Fathers should keep in touch with their families. Mothers should be home to supervise the children...

3. Don't get strung out. Stay away from liquor and sleeping pills.

4. Bug me a little. Use strict but loving discipline. Show your kids who is boss. Help them to anchor their ship.

5. Don't blow your class. Keep your dignity of parenthood. Stay on a pedestal if your children have put you there. Don't dress and act the way teenagers do. Let them know you are an adult.

6. Light me a candle. Show your children the way to faith. Give them a Christian example, the security of a living faith.

7. Take the world off my shoulders. Share your children's problems. Discuss morals, life and love, eternity, beauty, peace of mind, and values with them. Try to help them understand that the world can be a good place in which to live.

8. Scare the hell out of me. When you catch a child in his(her) first encounter with wrong, punish him(her). Be certain the he (she) understands what he (she) has done that is wrong, why it is wrong and that you are doing the punishing out of love and concern, and not to be vincictive. Never mete out punishment in anger.

9. Call my bluff. Stand firm and the bluffing will cease.

10. Be honest with me. Tell your children the truth about where you stand on any matter. Be truthful and generous with praise, and then, when it becomes time to criticize, they will believe you and respect your judgment.

Operation Petunia '83 to feature Ice Cream Social Operation Petunia will be back this year with more flowers, more fun and a need for more volunteers.

This was the announcement by Keep Charlevoix Beautiful last week following their April 16 meeting at Nanny's Old Place.

Planting Day will be May 21 this year, the kick-off date for Michigan Week. Dale Boss, chairman of the petunia project, told KCB members that 45,000 petunias will be planted this year in double rows along Charlevoix's main thorofare. That is about 15,000 more flowers than last year when the project was initiated.

Because of the upscaling, Boss also said that more volunteers will be needed to help plant on May 21. He asked that anyone with ideas on how to best accomplish the planting and weeding tasks contact him with their suggestions.

To make planting day even more festive, KCB announced plans at their meeting to hold an old fashioned ice cream social in East Park when the planting is completed.

The occasion will feature Keystone Cops, antique automobiles, period costumes and other related activities.

Elementary students to be fingerprinted

Hundreds of school children in Charlevoix County are to be fingerprinted as part of a new project dealing with the problem of missing children.

Operation Child Identification (OCID) is a nationwide effort to fingerprint young children to aid law enforcement officials in finding children who are kidnapped, snatched by estranged parents, who run away from home and who, in some cases, just vanish. According to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, over 150,000 children were reported missing in the country last year. Thousands were also found but were unidentifiable.

The Sheriff's Department, in cooperation with various local police departments, will be fingerprinting students at several elementary schools in the county as part of the OCID program.

The program is strictly voluntary on the part of the parents or guardians and they will be required to give give their permission. Only those children with written consent from parents or guardians will be fingerprinted.

Only one copy of the fingerprint cards will be made and that copy will go to the parent or guardian. No records of the fingerprints will be kept by the Sheriff's Department and the permission slips will be kept by the school.

Funds to cover the cost of printed materials used in the program have been donated by the Vandarwall Funeral Home for the Jordan Valley Christian Academy, Boyne Valley Printing for the Boyne City Elementary School and the Charlevoix County State Bank for Charlevoix Elementary School.

Other schools in the county who have expressed interest in participating in the fingerprinting are the Kids Korner nursery school in Charlevoix and the Boyne Falls Elementary School.

According to Sheriff George Lasater, the fingerprint records produced by the OCID program are to be kept at home by the parents. In the case of an emergency involving a missing child, said Lasater, the parents being able to supply such information as fingerprints can greatly assist law enforcement efforts in locating and identifying the missing child.

New coupon book to hit stores soon

Distribution will begin May 1 in the Charlevoix area of a newly published coupon book entitled the "All Season Free Money Book."

The book is the brainchild of Carol Bartley of Charlevoix who saw the concept used successfully in other areas and decided to develop it locally.

Said Mrs. Bartley, "The book is a good inflation fighter for consumers and should benefit the participating businesses as well."

The 8½" by 2½" book consists of 150 coupons for values worth an estimated $600. It features substantial discounts and some free items at various dining, entertainment and specialty shops in the communities of Charlevoix, East Jordan, Boyne City, Boyne Falls, Walloon Lake, Conway, Petoskey and Beaver Island.

According to Mrs. Bartley, the savings realized by using the first two coupons in the book alone will pay for the $14.50 cost of the book.

As of May 1, the book will be on sale at 25 area stores.

Mrs. Bartley said that she may expand the concept next year by including coupons for businesses and services other than the dining, entertainment and specialty shops now included in the book.

25-year milestone is tribute to commercial nuclear energy

Gil Keeley

The recent 25th birthday of America's commercial nuclear power program had special significance for one Michiganian. The milestone was a quiet tribute to Gil Keeley and his colleagues who have helped write nuclear history.

It began on Dec. 18, 1957, at Shippingport, Pa., only half an hour from downtown Pittsburgh. Quietly, in the early morning darkness, a new era dawned. For the first time, a power plant generated commercial electricity from nuclear power. Keeley was there, part of the team responsible for checking out the plant's systems, training operators and putting the plant into operation.

It wasn't the last time Keeley had a hand in nuclear history. Five years later he had moved to Consumers Power Company to help Big Rock Point, near Charlevoix, become Michigan's first (and the nation's fifth) commercial nuclear power plant. He has been with Consumers Power ever since, helping build a nuclear power program that in 1982 produced almost 19 percent of the company's electricity.

The success of nuclear power doesn't surprise him. Even in its infancy, Keeley and his colleagues saw nuclear power as the key that would end man's dependence on non-renewable fuels like oil and coal. "There was never any doubt that commercial nuclear plants would work," he says.

Experience has justified the optimism, says Keeley, pointing out that the technology has produced nuclear plants which are generating electricity safely, reliably and economically.

In fact, Keeley says the most frustrating problems have been bureaucratic, not technical. "Although the regulatory process has produced some benefits, it has become overly conservative," says Keeley. "It is slowing the construction of specific nuclear plants, and development of the industry in general. Take hearings, for example. If I averaged up all my time in the last seven years, I've probably spent over 50 percent of it in hearings."

But, Keeley is optimistic that will change. "Coal, oil and gas can't provide all of our future energy. Eventually, necessity will make the regulatory process efficient and reasonable—the same way engineers have made nuclear power itself reliable and efficient."

"It's the same old story," says Keeley. "It's a matter of economics and need. I just hope the changes happen in time."

Middle Schoolers head for Chicago

Charlevoix Middle School students in the program for the Academically Talented have been busy preparing for the long awaited trip to Chicago, a trip that has been two years in preparation.

The nine students making the three-day field trip have been earning money through various fund-raising projects for the past two years. They will be able to pay for their entire trip from the funds they have raised.

Students in the group are Barbie Boss, Rusty Coolman, Rebecca Christensen, Kristin Holmes, Michelle North, Ann Kroll, Laura Reibel, Dan Stanblin and Scott Stephan. Tom Sothard is in charge of the program at the Middle School.

The students, teachers and chaperones were scheduled to leave Charlevoix early Wednesday enroute to Kalamazoo where they will board the Amtrak for the trip into Chicago. After checking in at the Palmer House, one of Chicago's oldest and finest hotels, they will be ready to see the town.

First stop will be the Chicago Art Institute with its impressive collection of art masterpieces; next will be the Chicago Public Library, the second largest library in the United States. Other points of interest will be visits to the Museum of Natural Science and Industry, a theatre performance of "Zorba the Greek" starring Anthony Quinn, an elevator ride to the top of Sears' Tower, the world's tallest building, and shopping at Marshall Field's Department Store.

One unique aspect of this year's trip will be the return home. A commercial commuter plane has been chartered to return the party from O'hare Field in Chicago to the airport at Charlevoix.

WATER

From the very beginning, nobody has said that getting out of the TCE predicament would be cheap. In fact, one can extrapolate Charlevoix's groundwater problem to a national level and find the same costly nut to crack.

The problem is almost so massive as to defy solution. The Environmental Protection Agency estimated in 1980 that to contain toxic leachate in abandoned toxic waste dumps alone will cost $28 billion to $55 billion. Bringing the sites still operating up to standard will cost another $4.1 billion, says the EPA.

With half of the country relying on wells for drinking water, the pollution of America's groundwater poses a potentially devastating crisis, especially in view of projections that total water use in the U.S. will triple over the next 20 years.

The landlocked communities have no choice but to either eliminate the source of groundwater contamination or develop some sort of treatment of the water. As has been well documented, neither of these alternatives suit Charlevoix. We cannot find the source of TCE in our water and to treat it would be an expensive proposition with no guarantee of complete success.

We are fortunate to have an alternative.

A lake water treatment plant will be a wise investment in Charlevoix's future. It is not a cheap investment by any means but the security such a plant would provide, in both the areas of public health and the local economy, carries no price tag.

The time has come to move quickly and forcefully toward a positive solution of the problem. Over the past year and a half, confronting the fact that we have polluted water and wrestling with how to cope has been a sometimes difficult experience.

When the end of the story is finally written, let it reflect that Charlevoix was one community willing to pay the price for the quality of life on which its reputation is built.

Let it be a success story!

CONSOLIDATION

Aren't township folks just a little curious?

I mean, we all know that should the city and township consolidate, township taxes would probably go up but, really, how much? And what would be gained in return?

If I had lived in Charlevoix Township all my life and had seen the city try over and over to make a merger deal, I would be interested to find out just how hungry they are.

Under the old system where the township would have been outmanned by a 7-2 margin on a charter commission, I'd have had no part of it. But now, the township can go one on one with the city. It has the opportunity it never had before to cut a pretty good deal for itself.

In fact, the township would go into the game with a handful of face cards and some fairly sharp card players. If there is one thing distinctive about township residents, it is the confidence they have in their leadership. I would think they'd be confident enough to know that any charter written by a joint commission for a combined home rule city would have to have some substantial plums for the township before it ever got out of the meeting room.

Maybe the city isn't that hungry after all. Maybe what seems to be a conciliatory mood is just a front for a land-grabbing plot. Maybe all the township fears are justified.

If I lived in the township, I'd be curious enough to vote "yes" on Monday and find out once and for all.

Clockwise

Welcome back

by Bob Clock

ONE OF THE nicest things about spring in Charlevoix is the return of our "Snowbirds" from the South and West.

Among the recent returnees are the Gib Saltonstalls of Michigan Avenue who wintered in Florida and the Clem Wagners of Dixon Avenue who spent the winter in Arizona.

But it wasn't much of a vacation for either Gib or Clem — since they were both hospitalized part of the time.

SPEAKING OF HOSPITALS, it's nice to hear that dietitians at Charlevoix Area Hospital are putting renewed emphasis on nutrition, including lectures to community groups throughout the county on the subject.

I have long been of the opinion that good health starts with good nutrition — a subject that has been all but neglected in the past by the medical profession.

A friend received his M.D. degree a few years ago from the University of Michigan Medical School. Before he enrolled, I asked him to keep track of how much time he spent studying nutrition.

After graduation, he stopped at the house to report that nutrition had been "touched upon" briefly in a chemistry course. That was it.

It stands to reason that if your diet is deficient in the elements your body demands, you are more likely to fall prey to disease. Diet alone won't solve all of our ills, to be sure. But a proper diet certainly will help keep us healthier — longer.

I SEE BY the papers that Charlevoixans — both those who live in the city and those who live in the township — will vote next Monday on consolidation.

The ballot wording is somewhat confusing because the election is simply the first step toward consolidation. Before the two communities join hands, a charter must be drawn up that is mutually acceptable to both.

If such a charter is rejected by the voters of either community twice within two years, we are back to Square One.

Although many questions remain to be answered, I for one would like to see such a commission established simply to look into the pro's and con's.

Initially, I didn't like the idea of both the city and township having equal representation on such a commission because of the large disparity in our population figures. But I have been overruled on that issue by the state Legislature and am perfectly willing to play the game by the new rules.

So vote May 2. Your opinion on consolidation is important.

PROPONENTS OF consolidation, incidentally, point out that the boundaries between Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township are so hazy that we all claim to be "from Charlevoix" when we are more than 10 miles from home.

They have a point. Did you know that two of Charlevoix's most visible landmarks — the Elementary School and Charlevoix Area Hospital — are both located in Charlevoix Township?

Letters: Military balance is off

Editor:

The statistics given by Pres. Reagan clearly show our dismal rating in the military balance between our United States and Soviet Union. In spite of this poor ratio and the dangerous position that we are in, the nuclear freeze movement seems to be growing.

Will the leaders call for unilateral disarmament as the next step? This is pacifism, a surrender of our dear-bought freedom - freedom bought with someone else's blood.

Speak out, freedom lovers! Where are all the voices of those who resist being placed at the mercy of so powerful and pitiless an enemy as Russia? I would expect a deluge of letters to this newspaer advocating a return to a strong defense comparable to the Soviet massive build-up. Let us not forget George Washington's advice: "To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving peace."

Despite the establishment press attempts to whitewash the new dictator, Yuri V. Andropov, the truth is that Russia under Andropov will be even more ruthless in its goal of World Domination. Andropov was mastermind of the rape of Hungary in 1956, of Czechoslovaki in 1968, and of Poland in 1982. For the last 15 years, as head of the KGB, he has starved and tortured millions in the gulags of the USSR, personally overseen the brutalizing of dissidents, directed the training of terrorists throughout the world, and even administered a plot to murder Pope John Paul II.

The communists' newest crime, in a long list of merciless genocide, is a chemical or toxin weapon (specifically banned by international agreements) so instant and devastating. Called "silent death", its use in Afghanistan, Laos, and Cambodia has been verified.

In the 35 plus years of the atomic age, our government has tried, repeatedly and consistently, to ban nuclear weapons. The only requirement we asked of the Soviets was mutual on-site inspection. The Soviets just as repeatedly and consistently refused.

So what now makes the leaders of the nuclear freeze movement think that if we junk our nukes, the Soviets will, too? Naivs myopia?

Letters: Consolidation vote

Know what you're voting on

To The Editor:

A letter of information to the voters of Charlevoix Township concerning the election of May 2, 1983:

In 1980 the City of Charlevoix petitioned the State Boundary Commission to consolidate the City of Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township to form a home rule city.

The issue on the ballot May 2nd asks if there should be consolidation of the City of Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township. This wording is authorized by the State Boundary Commission Act.

What we are actually voting on is whether we should procede with the City in forming a Charter Commission. This commission will have two years to formulate a home rule government for the combined area. Approval of such a Charter would be by vote of the City Electors and the Township Electors, counted separately. If turned down by either one, the Charter can be presented again with changes if desired. If turned down a second time, or when a two year period should alapse (whichever is first) the two individual governments would retain their present status and the consolidation proceedings would be ended.

A "Yes" vote on May 2nd would mean that you are interested in exploring the possibility of consolidation with the City of Charlevoix.

A "No" vote on May 2nd would mean that you have no interest in exploring the possibilities of consolidation with the City of Charlevoix

And some thank-yous

To the Editor:

A special thank you to the Charlevoix School Board for their continued support of the program for the academically talented. To Mrs. Carol Elliott, the elementary school P.A.T. teacher, we applaud her enthusiasm, her efforts and her dedication to the program. To all citizens of the community who have supported the program, we thank you.

To the Editor:

We would like to take this opportunity to thank Mr. John McGoff for the assistance he afforded us on our annual spring baseball trip. The loan of his motor coach and the participation of Mr. Fred Annand made the trip both comfortable and pleasant. It also meant a significant savings to each of us who participated since we finance the trip ourselves.

Sincerely,

Peter Speiles,
Coach

Dear Dave:

I would like to thank you for the excellent sports coverage you and your paper gave the Charlevoix Basketball Team this year. The recognition for our young people helps them to know there are positive ways to release energy and also be recognised for it. I personally feel that your insight and genuine concern for high school sports is a big reason for the high interest in high school athletics. Thanks for your efforts.

Thanks,

Water plant bonding vote

TCE and are also considered potential health threats.

Hunt also doubts that the existing well will be able to provide the necessary quantity of water for the city as the demand grows. He points out that when Lake Michigan is low, the well is low, too and that at peak usage times the well is hardly able to provide enough water.

The existing intake flume consists of a wooden structure underground that was estimated in the Granger report to draw water in the ratio of 45 percent from the lake and 55 percent from the groundwater. The report estimated that the safe yield level of the existing well is 1.89 million gallons per day (mgd). The peak demand in Charlevoix occurs in July and in recent years has reached 1.8 mgd. The average daily demand is .7 mgd. Future projections estimate the peak demand to be 2.4 mgd by 1995. The proposed plant has been disigned for a 3.0 mgd flow which, according to the design engineers, would not only provide adequate capacity should Charlevoix Township decide to utilize water from the plant, but would allow shorter cycles and reduced operating costs.

Despite initial beliefs that a $1.65 million bond would result in as much as a 3 mill tax increase for city residents, more recent calculations point to an increase in property taxes of from 1 to 1.5 mills. Currently, the city levies 10.5 mills for operating purposes and 3 mills for debt service. An additional 1.5 mills for the water plant would make a total of 14.5 to 15 mills for city taxpayers.

The city's debt service obligations will be lessened significantly in the next three years, however, as two of the three debts being paid for are retired. Final payments will be made in 1985 for the sewage treatment plant and in 1986 for the storm sewer project, thus reducing the projected debt services by almost two mills. The third major debt for the new water tower will be retired in 1994.

A federal grant of $400,000 is also being sought by the city to help pay for a new water plant. If the grant is obtained, City Manager Hunt said that the city would not have to use the full amount of the $1.65 million bond issue. Hunt also believes that the proposed plant could be built for less than the $1.766 million price tag quoted by McNamee, Porter and Seeley. There are already indications, he said, that considerable savings may be realized in the construction of the intake structure. Originally the plans called for a concrete structure but the designers are now considering a PVC-type of material that would be much less expensive.

Participation by Charlevoix Township in the construction and ownership of the plant is also being discussed. Should the township decide to purchase a portion of the plant as has been proposed, the construction costs would be shared accordingly.

What will happen if the voters turn down the bonding issue May 2 is unclear. The Department of Public Health has not specified a level of TCE in city water they would consider acceptable and has given no indication that immediate action is necessary to completely eliminate the contamination.

In his April 15 letter, however, Health Department engineer Tim Benton implied that his department seeks a long term commitment by the city to develope a new water supply.

Wrote Benton, "The citizens of Charlevoix have the right to demand of their city a reliable municipal water system which provides an adequate quantity of drinking water of the highest quality. The construction of the proposed water treatment plant will satisfy those demands. The existing source has proven vulnerable to contamination, is of marginal capacity and is in need of replacement."

While the ballot reads "For consolidation of the City of Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township as a new home rule city - Yes or No", what it actually means is "Shall a charter commission be formed to study consolidation - Yes or No".

By approving the proposal, voters in either unit do not approve consolidation but rather approve of continued study of the issue.

Weddings

Dr. and Mrs. Bradford K. Grassmick

McDonough-Grassmick

Beaver Island native Pamela McDonough became the bride of Dr. Bradford K. Grassmick of Ann Arbor in a March 5 ceremony at the Martha Mary Chapel of Greenfield Village in Dearborn.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence McDonough of Charlevoix and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Grassmick of Saginaw.

Father Timothy Dombrowski officiated over the afternoon double ring ceremony attended by about 100 guests. The church was decorated for the wedding with lighted candles.

The bride wore a dress of ivory lace over taffeta, Queen Anne style with a cathedral train. Her waltz-length veil of ivory lace was trimmed with flower appliques. She carried a bouquet of freesia, carnations and heather.

Organ music for the ceremony included the Pachelbel Canon, Schubert's Ave Maria and Beethoven's Ode to Joy.

The maid of honor was Kathie Gonyeao of St. Clair Shores, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Deidre Keller of Royal Oak, Maureen Collins of Ann Arbor and Karen Wojan of St. James, Beaver Island. They all wore identical huckleberry silk gowns with high necklines, bodices of lace and long, cuffed lace sleeves. The attendants carried bouquets of freesia and heather.

Paul Wenzloff of Bay City was best man. Groomsmen were Thomas Dray of Los Angeles, Doug Wolkin of Denver and Alan Plona of Toledo.

A reception was hosted by the parents of the bride at the Botsford Inn in Farmington Hills.

Following a wedding trip to Cancun, Mexico, the couple is at home in Ann Arbor where the groom is a doctor of internal medicine and the bride is a registered nurse in the emergency room of St. Joseph Hospital.

'People of Refuge' to be shown

The inscription on the Statue of Liberty, "Give us your tired, your poor, your huddled masses yearning to breathe free," would make a good motto for the church, according to author and minister, Charles Swindoll.

He makes the point in the film, "People of Refuge", which will be shown Sunday, May 1, 7:00 p.m., at the Community Church of God, 202 W. Hurlbut Street in Charlevoix, according to Rev. Walter G. Hastings, pastor.

Unfortunately, says Swindoll, too many Christians extend quills like a porcupine instead of acceptance and understanding. Then, "the cold draws them together, but their quills stick not again and punch each other and drive them apart - it's sort of religious dance."

Master of the quip that prompts a second thought, Swindoll notes that for many people "the light at the end of the tunnel is the headlamp of an oncoming train." In the film he urges Christians to extend understanding to such people; not prickly put-downs.

Swindoll's books include the recent "Strengthening Your Grip and Improving Your Serve."

The public is invited to view the film. Admission is free.

Program to help combat world hunger

Rev. Walter G. Hastings announced today the Community Church of God congregation's participation in a unique program developed by World Relief to help provide food and aid for some of the 800 million people in the world suffering from chronic hunger and malnutrition. The "Skip a Lunch Feed a Bunch" program invites each person in the church to skip one lunch a week for up to 8 weeks. For each skipped lunch, a donation of $3.00 is placed in a "Skip a Lunch" bucket bank, which serves to remind families of their part in helping to alleviate world hunger.

The Community Church of God has designated April 24 through June 12 for the "Skip a Lunch Feed a Bunch" program. A special dedication to offer the money for God's use in helping people will be held on Sunday, June 12.

The donation to World Relief will be used in their ministry to people in need in over 43 countries around the world. As the official relief and development arm of the National Association of Evangelicals, World Relief has served as a channel for evangelical Christians to help hurting people in Jesus' name for over 35 years.

Among its many diverse projects, World Relief has delivered over 3,000 tons of rice seed to Cambodia and trained third world farmers in agricultural methods.

Planned Parenthood sets special cancer screening

Planned Parenthood of Petoskey will be holding a special cancer screening clinic on Wednesday, May 4, at it's office at 820 Arlington, Petoskey.

The clinic is offering an exam that will include a pelvic exam, pap smear, breast exam, instruction in breast self-exam, and blood pressure check.

Although Planned Parenthood offers this exam as one of its services throughout the year, May 4 has been set aside for just this service, and a reduced fee of $15.00 will be charged in order to encourage expecially older women and women with limited incomes to have an annual pap smear and to learn the importance of regular breast self-examination. Breast and cervical cancer are the most common forms of cancer in women. Regular exams are important because, if found early, they can be treated successfully without radical surgery in most cases.

For an appointment call Planned Parenthood at 347-9692.

Four-way relay race planned by Lions

The Charlevoix Lions Club has made plans for a "Journey for Sight 'Round the Town Relay" to involve four-person teams in running, rowing, cycling and walking in a unique relay race.

According to coordinater Dave Phillips, the race will begin at noon on Saturday, May 12 at the Charlevoix Golf Course clubhouse.

From that point, the first member of the team will jog from the golf course to Round Lake. At the lake, the second member will start from the north shoreline in a rowboat, to be furnished, and row across to the Belvedere Club.

From the Belvedere Club, the third member of the team will bicycle to the high school. The final leg of the race will be walked by the fourth member of the team from the high school to East Park and the finish line.

Teams will be circulating pledge sheets to help raise money for the Lions' statewide Journey for Sight project. The project's goal is to raise funds for the W.K. Kellogg Eye Center on the University of Michigan campus in Ann Arbor. The new facility is expected to provide for the state, region and nation a comprehensive referral center offering highly specialized eye care to over 34,000 patients yearly.

According to Phillips, the relay race will not only be for a worthy cause, but will provide local residents with a chance to "get outdoors and have some fun."

First State Bank, the Charlevoix County State Bank and Ski & Shore have agreed to provide t-shirts for the relay racers.

Anyone wishing more information on the race is asked to contact Phillips at 547-9281.

Hayes is finalist for federal judgeship

Charlevoix attorney Roy C. Hayes is one of ten candidates being considered by the state Republican party for the Federal District Judgeship vacancy created by the resignation of Judge Patricia Boyle.

Hayes, 43, is a former Charlevoix County prosecutor who has been in private practice in Charlevoix since 1978. An active member of the state Republican party, Hayes was considered for the position of U.S. District Attorney in 1981.

The list of ten finalists was released April 22 by state GOP chairman Spencer Abraham who explained that an original list of 30 candidates was reduced to the final ten by the members of the Michigan Congressional Delegation and submitted to the state party headquarters for review.

Other finalists are George E. Woods, U.S. Bankruptcy Judge, Barbara K. Hackett, U.S. Magistrate, Henry L. Heading, Detroit Recorder's Court Judge, Hilda R. Gage, Oakland County Circuit Court Judge, Stephen N. Andrews, Oakland County Circuit Court Judge, Rosa W. Campbell, Washtenaw County Circuit Court Judge, William J. Giovan, Wayne County Circuit Court Judge, Dona Scott Parker, Birmingham attorney and Michael K. Hegarty, Brighton attorney.

Abraham said that he and the Republican Congressional Delegation will make the final decision based "heavily" on recommendations provided by the state party review process.

Middle School to stage talent show

by ANNE KELLY

The first annual Middle School Talent Show will be held Tuesday evening, April 26 at 7:00 p.m. in the Middle School gym. Students under the direction of Roxie Loding have been preparing for the show with enthusiasm. Norm Probert will be the emcee for the program.

Behind the scenes work has taken as much preparation and organization as the performers have spent on their acts, according to Mr. Probert. Two high school students who have volunteered their time are Tim Noirot and Rick Bartz. Middle school students Jason Titsworth, Gary Miller, Dan Staublin, Stanley Duncan, Jerry Clark, Jon Eakes, Tom Wojan and Mike Gauthier have also lent a hand in the production on lighting, sound and general organization.

The program will include: two dance acts, two singg solos, two piano solos, two instrumental solos, a singing duet, a humerous skit, and a rock band.

ALICE F. SUPERNAW

Funeral services for Mrs. Alice F. Supernaw, 73, who died April 22 at her home here, were held Sunday at the Winchester Funeral Home. The Rev. Walter Hastings of the Community Church of God officiated. Interment was in Evergreen Cemetery at Grand Blanc on Monday.

Born in Boyne City Dec. 1, 1909, the former Alice F. Chapman moved to East Jordan at a young age and later to Shepherd and Alma where she had also attended school. On Dec. 13, 1931, she was married to Lawrence Camer at St. Louis. He preceded her in death in 1935. In 1945 she moved from Flint to Charlevoix where she was employed at the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services. On Nov. 11, 1951, she was married to Frank Supernaw who preceded her in death Dec. 28, 1978.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Hilda Wilson of Charlevoix; three grandchildren; a brother, Dr. Lincoln Chapman of Charleston Heights, S.C.; one sister, Mrs. Maude Burkett of Cadillac; two step-sons and two step-daughters.

The family suggests memorials to the Community Church of God.

Brass quintet, CHS choir to join for concert

The Charlevoix High School Choir and the Sine Nomine Brass Quintet will join in presenting a concert at the high school gymnasium at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, April 28, Steve Stargardt, vocal music director in the local schools has announced.

The 26 voice choir, appearing for the first time in the gowns they have made, will present a wide variety of vocal selections including a medley from "Annie", Shaw's "With the Voices Singing" and other popular as well as standard numbers.

The brass quintet is composed of five area teachers who have been playing together for the past 12 years. They are Terry Isenbarger, director of instrumental music in Charlevoix schools, playing the euphonium; Beverly Isenbarger of Bellaire, French horn, Jim Schoensee of Central Lake, trombone, Ralph Schweigert of Gaylord and James Bogetto of Boyne City, trumpet.

Mr. Isenbarger said the quintet would be playing several baroque type selections including Galliard Battahlia and Sonata from Die Bankelsangerlieder plus a Fats Waller number "Ain't Misbehavin'".

The concert will be presented without charge in the high school cafeteria.

Jane Sooy

Jane Sooy shares techniques that helped her walk

by ANNE KELLY

Thirteen years ago Jane Sooy woke up paralyzed from the waist down "cause undetermined". Specialists in Chicago, where she was flown for diagnosis and-or treatment could not shed light on the nature or cause of the sudden malady.

Today, Jane looks back on her long struggle to regain the use of her legs and to learn to walk again with a philisophical tone in her voice.

"A close friend referred me to two people who made the difference in my recovery; one was a chiropractor, the other was my 'Body Works' teacher Ann Rudolph."

From chiropractic Jane learned about and how to correct an alignment problem in her neck. From her teacher, Jane learned the recuperative powers of proper exercise and relaxation. She can now say that her condition was probably brought about by a combination of internal and external stresses including misalignment, tension and a chemical spray used in the family garden exposure to which, Jane believes, put her "over the edge". She can also attribute the progress she has made in overcoming her own handicap to the therapeutic powers of Ann Rudolph's exercies program.

Everyone has their own story of dealing with physical and emotional distress. Sometimes the complications people suffer are severe enough to find them seeking medical attention. Often the symptoms are minor: tension headache, backache, stiffness – problems that can be swept under the rug for future reference, until a major flare up.

The truth is, that the earlier the symptoms are recognized and treated, the more chance that there might never be a major crisis.

"The Anne Rudolph method counteracts some of the bad body habits that arise from the sedentary occupations and life styles of today; helps relieve excess nervous tension and helps eliminate many of the causes of premature aging." The Studio of Body Work brochure explains.

But the method of exerise that Ms. Sooy directs in her class is not a "quick fix" for ailments that have been building over the years. "It is a slow, stretching, deep muscle work that I teach," wrote Jane in 1981 series on Exercise in the Petoskey News Review.

"I have written on 'tension, the destroyer'", the article continues. "One of the great benefits of exercise is that you are moving in ways that are constructive. You are building your body (and therefore your mind) up, rather than down."

There are many programs of exercise for the choosing today. Ms. Sooy's Body Work Program is unique in that it unites mind and body in theory and practice. And Jane is testimony to the fact that it can work.

Question and Answers About the Proposed CHARLEVOIX WATER TREATMENT PLANT

Q. What is the May 2nd vote about?

A. City voters are being asked to approve a $1.65 million bond issue to fund most of the costs of constructing a new Lake Michigan Water Treatment Plant.

Q. Has the State required the City to build this plant?

A. No. The City Council, not the State, determined that Lake Michigan was the most reasonable source of water for Charlevoix.

Q. Why do we need a water treatment plant?

A. The City's current water supply is contaminated with trichloroethylene (TCE). Most experts believe TCE somewhat increases long term cancer risk.

Q. I've heard the City is aerating the existing water supply. Isn't that handling the problem?

A. The aeration is definitely reducing the amount of TCE in the water — from perhaps 75 to 100 parts per billion without aeration to around 35 parts per billion with it. The aeration system is not capable of removing more than about 1/3 to 1/2 of the total TCE in the raw water. Therefore, the TCE levels in the drinking water are still dependent upon the TCE levels in the raw water — and these levels seem to be going up.

Q. Is there anything wrong with the existing water system, other than the TCE problem?

A. Yes. TCE is a symptom of a larger problem, which is the shallow nature of the municipal well. The well is susceptible to contamination from a variety of sources, and there is evidence that other toxic chemicals present in nearby ground water could leak into the system, as well. There is also a question about the quantity of water which the existing well can produce. During dry years, when the Lake Michigan water level is low, the level in the well also drops, and has at times been barely able to provide adequate water for Charlevoix's needs. The City's engineers believe the existing well is operating near or at capacity.

Q. What is a water treatment plant?

A. The plant has three parts. The first is a giant pipe, or intake, which would channel water from Lake Michigan into the plant. The second part is a buried water storage tank. The tank allows chlorine to mix with the water before it enters the system, and also reduces the number of hours the plant has to be operated. The third part is a filtration or treatment building, where the water is put through several treatment processes to eliminate any contaminants before it is pumped into the system.

Q. Is chlorination necessary?

A. Yes. Any treatment process — whether it is aeration or filtration — can expose water to harmful micro-organisms. This is why the City currently adds chlorine to its water, and why it would continue to do so in a new treatment plant. However, because the quality of our raw water is good, the amount of chlorine added is rarely, if ever, detectable.

Q. Is the water in Lake Michigan fit to drink?

A. Yes. Lake Michigan does not contain TCE and is not considered susceptible to contamination by TCE-like chemicals. Many communities on the western side of the State — including Traverse City — drink Lake Michigan water. Within the past year, the City has conducted a survey of water records and a water sampling program to determine the quality of water along the Charlevoix shoreline. The results from the study were so good that the City may begin using Lake Michigan water as soon as the intake pipe is completed, and before the remainder of the plant is constructed. However, the City will still be required to complete the remaining portions of the plant, over a several year period.

Q. If water from Lake Michigan is that good, why do we need to treat it at all?

A. Both State and Federal laws require treatment of all drinking water taken from "surface water" sources, such as Lake Michigan. The main reason for this requirement is that surface water is highly susceptible to contamination, from exposure to the air and boats, and exposure to plants, animals, and humans and their wastes. While Lake Michigan may not currently be contaminated, there is a significant possibility of bacterial or viral infection of the drinking water, unless the water is treated before use.

Q. Then why should we risk drinking untreated Lake Michigan water?

A. Until the entire plant is completed, the choice is between using the existing water supply, which we know is contaminated with TCE, and using unfiltered Lake Michigan water, which does not appear contaminated at this time. Given this choice, the City has opted to begin using Lake Michigan water as soon as it is available, but to take all necessary precautions to minimize the risks of using unfiltered lake water. These precautions include (1) chlorinating the unfiltered water; (2) burying the intake pipe under the lake bottom, to improve the quality of the raw water; and (3) continually monitoring the quality of the lake water. If at any time the quality of the unfiltered Lake Michigan water deteriorates, the City will reinstitute use of the existing water supply at once, until all treatment facilities in the plant are operational.

Q. How about including outlying areas in the system?

A. The City has offered to build the plant large enough to serve Charlevoix Township's needs, if the Township is willing to pay for its portion of the plant. This matter is currently under discussion by both bodies.

Q. How soon will the plant be completed?

A. The intake pipe should be in use by late summer, the storage tank is slated for 1984. Construction of the filtration portion of the plant will begin in 1985 and be completed in 1986. This schedule could be accelerated if grants are received for construction.

Q. What will the bond issue do to my taxes?

A. Until word on the grant application is received, it is a little early to tell for sure. However, it looks like the water plant would increase property taxes by about 1.0 to 1.5 mills, or about $30 to $45 per year, for an average taxpayer with a $60,000 home ($30,000 assessed value). Earlier reports that the plant would initially increase taxes by up to 3 mills are not correct.

Q. Why do we need to abandon the existing system?

A. We don't! The present system has served Charlevoix well for over 50 years. About the only part of it to be abandoned is the wooden intake structure under the Lake Michigan beach, which would be replaced with a new pipe leading into Lake Michigan. The City expects to use and improve almost everything else, including the existing pumphouse building and equipment. The plan is to build upon what we already have, to provide a system which will last another 50 years.

Q. Is a water plant a luxury that the City should do without?

A. Absolutely not! Good, clean, secure water is one of the most basic human needs. An ample supply of it is essential to any program to improve or maintain the local economy. The City believes a Lake Michigan plant is the best method to provide that water, when all things are considered — including water quality, quantity, operating costs, construction costs, risks in development, security, and the expected life of the improvements. A water plant is a long term investment which will pay returns for generations to come.

Charlevoix's mother-daughter luncheon features antique dolls

by ANNE KELLY

Dolls are more than mere child's play these days. Like stamps, coins, comic books and baseball cards, dolls increase in value and become collectables as the years go by. The older they are, depending on their condition, the more valuable.

Featured appropriately at the recent mother-daughter luncheon at Charlevoix's First Congregational Church, was an outstanding display of antique dolls. Taken down from shelves, unwrapped from protective coverings, rediscovered in the bottom of attic trunks, the old Kewpies, Raggedy Anns and China Heads came in their slightly faded finery to delight older and younger viewers alike.

Contributing to the display were eight Charlevoix collectors and-or doll lovers.

Jean Giffin brought a Kewpie by Rose O'Neill, a Bisque head which had belonged to her mother, a paper doll and an 8" china glazed Victorian.

Edith Harris who told luncheon organizers that she was a bit worried about "her children because they weren't used to being away from home," allowed her Raggedy Ann and Bavarian felt doll to come for the event.

Frances Durance found an old German Bisque among the family treasures, Gail Duke, a 19" Shirley Temple and Rev. Hastie an antique wooded train and a doll fashioned from a wooded spool purchased in London.

The largest contributor to the doll collection was church member and local antique daaler from Lake Charlevoix Farm, Ruth Price.

Visiting in the Price home, a 1910 barn, spacious, gracious and lovely overlooking the Lake and the farm grounds, one soon gets in the mood to discuss antiques. A plaque greets callers at the side door: "On this site in 1897, nothing happened." In 1983, for lovers of Early Americana, everything is happening here. It's called preservation of a tradition.

Complete with a Shaker rocker, farm implements, "Grandmother's quilt," bookshelves lined with Civil War volumes and warmth of barnwood beams and seasoned pine, the Price home is furnished with all the trappings of authentic Early American primitive. Both Ruth, and her husband Bill, a Civil War historian, began antiquing before they were married. Their common interests led to collecting and the eventual antique business which evolved some time later. The dolls were an aspect of antique collecting which didn't follow for perhaps 15 years.

The Prices moved from Birmingham to their present location on

SPRING INTO SUMMER SWIMWEAR

If your summer weekends are as busy as your weekdays — with swimming, wind surfing, sailing, anything to keep you fit and active — you need a swimsuit that's up on all that.

Swimsuit shapes are sleek, as stretch nylon has just about swept the swimwear field. Whatever they do with detailing and colors, swimwear designers are fascinated with the way spandex in the nylon smooths the figure.

They also like the way stretch nylon takes colors. Bright colors and dramatic prints have been around for several years, but the blend of nylon and Lycra spandex has brought in many new engineered treatments of patterns, whose vivid contrasts stand out in almost three-dimensional brilliance.

That's why the one-piece suit is this season's favorite over the bikini. The maillot, as it's called, shows off colors and prints simply because there's so much more suit. It also accents a good figure and improves an average one.

This season's stripes are engineered to form hour-glass shaped front panels or a pattern of every which-way triangles. Floral themes often overlay stripes, or are engineered in striking color combinations. Whether used alone or as overlays, floral themes now are always dramatic in swimwear.

Top: Waves of color break across the body in this maillot that plays brights with white. The bandeau neck has a string-tie halter. By Going Places of nylon and Spandex. $40 at The Cottage in Petoskey.

Left: Catalina colors up a maillot, where smooth lines played against the texture to make the most of your every inch. Called matelasse, the finish is puckered yet it's sleek, shiny and sexy ... the look set off by contrast applique and tie belt. Nylon/spandex at Trademark Clothiers of Charlevoix.

Right: Flowers and stripes is the theme of this Danskin girls swimwear collection. This striking maillot with bandeau neck brings new excitement to the swimwear line for girls. Starting at $10.95 from North Country Kids of Charlevoix.

TRAVEL

Be Neighborly-Visit Mexico-and Save!

Wild stories are coming from Mexico - $2.50 steak dinners, hotels for $10.00 a night and much more! Could all these tales be true?

The seasoned traveler will state the age old adage, "you pay for what you get." True as that may be, before you put your luggage back in the closet, let us assure you that you will pay less in Mexico for more than a traveler did two years ago. The country is just abounding in good buys and these savings will probably continue with little drastic change in the economy for at least a year. So now is definitely a wonderful time to plan a late spring vacation to our Southern neighbor.

Let's show some of the highlights of cities on the Pacific coast of Mexico, often referred to as the "magnificent Mexican Riviera".

ACAPULCO

What's new in Acapulco, which for the last 25 years has been Mexico's premier resort - just about everything! True the climate is the same as always, superb. Acapulco has just completed a $300 million re-development program aimed at preparing this beautiful port city for the 21st century.

Acapulco doesn't stand on formalities. It's relaxing and informal with sandy restful beaches which invite the traveler for a sunny siesta. Beaches have been improved due to the redevelopment program with lifeguard stations and thatched markets nearby where local craftsmen can sell their souvenirs.

Shopping didn't originate in Acapulco, but it has been perfected to an art along the Costera M. Aleman - Acapulco's main artery. Thanks to the redevelopment projects, many new shaded parks are nearby providing a haven for the weary shopper.

In the evenings there's the impressive Acapulco Center which features such cultural events as Ballet Folkloric and Spanish flamenco, and great lively, elaborate discos abound.

PUERTO VALLARTA

Sun drenched Puerto Vallarta lies between the rugged mountains of the Sieria Madre and glorius Banduas Bay, north of Acapulco.

For years, Puerto Vallarta had been an isolated and sleepy village, keeping its tropical splendor to itself. Then there was a Burton and Taylor movie made on the nearby paradise - like Mismaloya Beach, and it immediately became a favorite new resort.

Puerto Vallata hasn't lost its small-town charm, and it has become a center for artists and artisans form all over Mexico.

Most of the hotels are located just outside town; most are new and contemporary. They're spread along 5 miles of glorious beaches against a backdrop of mountains. Even though Future Secretaries must be top-notch.

Doris Robinson

by ANNE KELLY

Becoming a secretary in today's business world is not a snap according to Doris Robinson, Charlevoix High School's Business and Publications instructor.

"You have to be really good – top notch – to get a job in the secretarial field."

The stereotype of yesterday's secretary who needed only to be glamorous and to know how to cater to her boss and make coffee, no longer survives.

Today's secretary is an assistant businessperson in many respects. She must type accurately and speedily, take shorthand, know accounting and-or bookkeeping, have facility with office machines especially word processors, know computers, punch cards, be knowledgeable in the area of public relations and be neat, punctual and organized.

Charlevoix High School provides a limited exposure to these skills. This year, students whose career goal is business oriented, are enrolled in typing (120), shorthand (10), and accounting (37). Next year the program will be expanded to include advanced typing, reinforcement shorthand, reinforcement accounting, filing, and general office procedures.

Students enrolled in business courses are advised to go on to college or business school if they want to land a good job. Two in the vicinity are: Davenport College in Muskegon, and Ferris State. Here they would be further exposed to word processors, computers, punch cards, reinforcement of the skills of typing, shorthand and accounting, public relations, and how to conduct interviews with a prospective boss.

A high school student aspiring to become a secretary might conceivably enroll in Ms. Robinson's Publications class as well. Here they are exposed to a variety of related skills while working on the school yearbook: layouts, copy, proofreading, use of copy machines, mimeograph machines, duplicators, and gestetner machine.

Ms. Robinson received her degree in education from Central Michigan University. She taught 2 years in St. Louis, Michigan before joining the staff at The Positive Image?

The career woman's guide to a positive image

By the year 1990, 70 percent of all women in the United States will have joined the work force. Quite an incredible achievement in the short time since the women's movement began. So short, in fact, that men are still having trouble adjusting to the everyday reality of women at work, not only in the typing pools, but among the ranks of the executive hierarchy.

How well a woman is accepted (and treated) by her male peers and superiors has a great deal to do with her conduct and appearance...her professional and corporate knowledge, mode of dressing...even how she smells.

If she arrives at an important meeting swathed in sheer chiffon, and enshrouded in an impenetrable cloud of perfume, it would be unfair to blame the man at the meeting if they didn't take her seriously.

On the other hand, we have certainly come a long way since the 1960s when, in order to be accepted and respected, women had to dress in mannish suits. Today, many women feel confident enough in their own area of expertise and in their own independence and femininity, not to feel they have to dress like a man in order to be regarded as a professional.

But for those who are wondering exactly what the mid-ground is between overt femininity and a man's suit, here's a quick and easy guide.

Skirts

If you've got to fuss with it to keep it looking right, forget it. If your skirt is slit, and you spend an inordinate amount of time fighting to hold it closed, don't wear it. Do wear comfortable dirndl, gored or pleated skirts that are easy to sit in while maintaining your composure. (Take a clue from the men: don't they look comfortable yet correct when they sit down?)

Blouses

If the lace from your lingerie shows through your blouse, it's too sheer. But there's no reason to discard it. If it has a nice collar and sleeves, wear it with an attractive vest or sweater vest and a complementary skirt. You'll have a whole new look.

Silk or silk-like blouses in solids or tailored patterns, with tab collars, cowl collars, matching bows or ascots are marvelous for the office. They convey a feminine yet confident professional feeling.

Sweaters

Sweaters are fine if they have an easy fit. But, if the one you're wearing looks like it's been grafted to your body, don't wear it to work.

The purpose of office clothing is to help you look professional, not distracting. If you were thinking of wearing your old college sweater to work - the one you wore to all those football games - forget it; you're in the big leagues now, on a more sophisticated team.

Shoes

Always keep them polished. Make repairs periodically to mend run-down heels and toes.

the Boyne City Road in 1976. Here, according to Ruth, they found everything they had dreamed of for retirement: proximity to sailing and skiing, a place to raise horses, and a location in which to continue their antique business.

For the display, Ruth combined her own "Frozen Charlotte" collection (small porcelain figurines with immoveable joints) with several dolls from daughter Sara's collection. Included in the Price's contributions to the luncheon display were: a 1934 "Shirley Temple" by Ideal, an Effanbee "Patsy" (1932), a "Sugar Baby" of 1930, a "Bubbles" (1924), an Italian "Lenci", a 1916 "Dream Baby", clothespin dolls, composition "Storybook Dolls" (Circa 1925), celluloid dolls of the 1920's, penny wooden dolls of 1914 Vermont, and apple dolls.

It's the age old dilemma: to save or to toss. But when spring cleaning uncovers a discarded, one armed "Flora McFlimsy," better think twice about the tossing.

"Reflections on a Class Reunion Rind"

by ANNE KELLY

Fifteen to twenty years ago, women now in their mid to late thirties were on the brink of their personal destinies. They had graduated from high school and many were, like myself, immersed in college coursework directed at a post graduation goal.

April 12, 1983:

Dear Anne,

When I received the mailing list for our class of 1965 from the Ohio Dominican Alumnae Office early this spring, my consciousness was abruptly jogged from home-school meetings, planning my garden and generally keeping track of eight fast moving children to those days of banners from the tower, Revels, and Monsignor Fick's great literature classes. It had been a long time since I had even taken time to thing about those years.. (follows announcement and etc. re. alumni day)

Sincerely,

Lucy Ryan Kilbane

Nineteen years ago, Lucy Ryan was the newly elected student governor at our college, I, the president of resident students. Today we are both rinsing diapers out in our respective bathrooms in different states. Lucy is taking time to reflect on these happenings, and she has three more children than I. It seems only right that I should do the same.

Actually, I had been reflecting lately. It was the result of a book group discussion during which an entire room of young women drinking wine and discussing "The Cinderella Complex" had come to the conclusion that we all had one (the complex) to some degree. You see, Lucy doing what she did in Columbus, Ohio, and we, choosing the kinds of lives that we had chosen in Charlevoix, Michgian, (with a few exceptions) basically had to compromise. We had to decide between family and career. Succumb or succeed.

What might we have done otherwise? Word of what wonderful accomplishments might have wafted its way to the 20 year "class reunion?" A mind boggling projection.

Lucy? Why she might have become an ambassador to France what with her expertise in French, her self assurance and finesse in public relations, organizational ability and perfect penmanship, always in black fountain pen ink.

I? Well, the poet laureate of the class of 1965 they dubbed me. Perhaps I might have scaled executive heights at Hallmark Cards until finally I established my own multi-million dollar card line.

Perhaps.

But think about what we did do. Not just Lucy or I, but those women torn between the need to succeed and the desire to become dependent that we left sipping on wine in the Charlevoix book group.

Most were married and had children, though not all. All had worked at a variety of jobs including: teaching, social work, programming, legal secretary, secretary to an ambassador in Paris, nursing, medical technology. Among the numbers was a librarian, an occupational therapist and one whose diversity in dabbling ranged from teacher of Outdoor Education to Dean of Student Personnel Services. One had climbed the third highest mountain peak in North America just for fun.

They had married into a variety of professions: doctor, computer engineer, president of a small company, counselor, school administrator, physical therapist, engineer, retailer, insurance salesman, dentist and city official.

With the exception of a divorcee and an engaged member of the group, all were well taken care of financially. What they were most frustrated about was not the fact that they had chosen marriage and family rearing over a career, but the fact that they felt a certain loss of self esteem along with reduction in professional growth as well as a certain frustration stemming from a definite lack of financial reward for tasks performed.

I (and I think I can speak for Lucy) found the carefree pseudo-responsibilities of college life to be nothing compared to keeping my head together when the flu runs through the family or we're out of milk at breakfast time, or there's no bread and I have to pack the lunches. Perhaps these are the real successes in life after all.

The need to succeed versus the need to the hotels lie directly on the beach, the pool areas are some of the most elaborate you'll ever see - just an ideal place to while away a vacation complete with waterfalls, and miniature islands decked out in full jungle regalia.

GUADALAJARA

Strolling mariaches, gentlemanly charros horsemen, and Mexico's national drink - Tequila - make Guadalajara the essence of Mexico. Although inland and far less popular to tourists than the port cities of the Mexican Riveria, the climate is great, the food excellent, and the atmosphere is exhilarating.

Only a few miles from Lake Chapala, and a couple of hours drive to the Mexican Pacific, rose-garlanded Guadalajara is a city with all the conveniences of a major Mexican commercial center. Sightseeing musts are the impressive State Capital, the University, Cathedral and Degollado theatre. Also Tlaquepaque is an artistic center featuring stunning local handiwork, and a visit to the Tequila bottling plant is great fun.

MAZATLAN

One of Mexico's great fun towns, Mazatlan is tops with fishermen and surfers, and offers some excellent championship golf. This vibrant, yet lesser known seaside resort - "the pearl of the Pacific" - has some of the best hotels found anywhere with outstanding restaurants, and nightlife that goes until dawn.

Some of the richest agricultural land in all of Mexico lies between Masatlan and Los Mochos. Exploring some of this territory will give a visitor an excellent concept of ranching life in Mexico.

belong to a spouse? Well, success can be measured on yardsticks other than title or [illegible] And personal growth can be as ongoing as our ability to take advantage of ever-present opportunities.

An 80 year old woman called me the other day, excited because it was spring and the sun was shining and because she had so much that she wanted to do that day that she didn't know where to begin. That's never-ending personal growth. An artist friend told me recently, that he wished he could add on twenty years to his life. He wanted to try so many things that he still hadn't experienced. He wished he could tell the kids that he sees idling their time away hanging out downtown to "get going - don't waste a precious moment of your lives." That's personal success to me.

As for the financial rewards of being a woman, the dilemma is open for debate. Just how much is a good woman worth, is a question which was posed by Nickie McWhirter a few years ago in the Detroit Free Press. She asked for a master plan for reimbursing housewives and working women for their efforts. To my knowledge the solution has yet to be proposed.

Reflections on a watermelon rind, Lucy. Tell everyone at alumni day I'm hanging in there happily.

Only 572 vote as city turns down water plant bond

The City of Charlevoix's plans to eliminate the industrial chemical TCE from its water supply were thrown into limbo Monday as city voters rejected a $1.66 million bond proposal to construct a lake water treatment plant that would replace the existing groundwater supply.

In extremely light voting, only 231 "yes" ballots were cast to 341 "no" votes. The 572 total ballots cast represent about 24 percent of the registered voters in Charlevoix.

The bond proposal failed in every ward. In the First Ward, the count was 105-yes to 116-no; in the Second Ward it was 62-yes to 114-no and in the Third Ward it was 64-yes to 111-no.

There was no indication from City Hall Monday evening as to how or if the city will proceed with plans to build the plant. The State Department of Public Health has stated that the TCE contamination of Charlevoix's water supply is not acceptible but the department has not given the city a deadline to eliminate the contaminant nor set a level in parts per billion that they would consider safe.

The search for the source of the contamination was scheduled to continue this week with hydro-geological testing of five sites in Charlevoix for buried metal drums that may be leaking the TCE.

Township sees to it that consolidation progress stops dead, despite city approval

The formation of a charter commission to study consolidation of the City of Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township was derailed Monday when township voters soundly rejected the idea by a 267-48 margin.

In the city, the ballot question passed easily 387-187 but an affirmative vote in each juristiction was required for the formation of a commission and for the consolidation process to proceed. If the city wishes to petition the State Boundary Commission again for the authorization to consolidate, it must wait at least two years to file.

The vote by ward in the city was First Ward, 172 yes and 52 no; Second Ward, 99 yes and 74 no; Third Ward, 114 yes and 61 no.

Water millage goes down, too

Charlevoix Township's request for an addtional one mill for water supply improvements was narrowly defeated by township voters by a 149-156 margin.

The millage was to have been used to help pay for a settling tank near the township's north side well.

Council refuses to reopen discussion on Dixon Ave. rezoning

by DAVE KNIGHT

City Council dodged an attempt Monday night to resurrect the issue of rezoning an E. Dixon Ave. property to accomodate a multiple family dwelling.

On April 18, the council rejected a request by Jack Uhrick, owner of the Lodge hotel, to rezone the vacant lot next to the Lodge from R-1 to R-4. Uhrick proposed to build a five-unit condominium townhouse on the property. The Planning Commission had recommemded approval of the rezoning request but strong oppostion from some Dixon Ave. residents prompted a 5-1 council vote reversing the Planning Commission's action.

At their April 25 meeting, the Planning Commission issued a request to the council to specify its reasons for the reversal. Both Uhrick and his attorney, Thomas Pointner, were on hand at Monday night's council meeting to seek reconsideration by council on the matter.

City Attorney Jeffrey Van Treese cautioned the council not to respond to Uhrick or the Planning

Tax increment financing tabbed for DDA's downtown improvement plans

by DAVE KNIGHT

When plans were unveiled in February for a multi-million dollar hotel and conference center on the north bank of the Pine River Channel in Charlevoix, the developers emphasized that they had no intention of seeing the ambitious renovation program stop at the bridge.

A solid commitment by the city to substantial civic improvements south of the channel as well, said developer Joel Altman, would be sought to tie the entire downtown area together into a cohesive, attractive environment. In fact, Altman said, without such a commitment, his plans would not proceed.

Cost estimates for the downtown improvements have now been completed as has a tax increment financing plan to pay for them. The plan has been presented to the City Council informally and will be the subject of a May 16 public hearing at City Hall.

Council must act on the plan no later than May 23, according to state law, for it to be enacted this year.

Spearheading the development plan has been the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) created in 1982 to promote economic growth and halt property value decline within the downtown Charlevoix area.

Proposed improvements, based on the city's Master Plan enacted last year, include reconstruction of sidewalks, curbs and gutters and street repaving in a $385,000 first phase and new street lights, traffic signals, street furniture and landscaping in a $305,000 second phase.

The total public investment for the improvements is estimated at $690,000.

Of that amount, the DDA proposes to issue $400,000 worth of bonds to be paid back with the additional taxes generated by the hotel-convention center project. Development costs beyond the $400,000 would be financed through tax increment financing and donations.

The concept of tax increment financing, established by the state in 1975, enables an entity such as the DDA to capture those tax revenues that are generated by increases in property values within a designated

School board finalizes June 13 ballot

The Charlevoix Board of Education, at its regular meeting Monday night, adopted the election resolution setting the date for the school election for June 13, heard a brief discussion on the proposed summer tax collection and the Downtown Development Authority among other issues.

The election resolution set the date for the election and the issues on the ballot as the renewal of 15.25 mills for one year and the names of candidates for the single four year term as John J. Crinnion and Robert Drenth, the incumbent.

At the same time, it was decided to have a straw vote on the proposed summer tax collection. This issue will not be on the regular ballot but each voter will be issued a ballot and asked to cast a vote on the proposal.

He was on probation for failure to appear for sentencing on an uttering and publishing charge and was also named in a warrant for arrest in St. Ignace for a residential burglary.

Womach concert set for EJ

Merrill Womach, vocalist, recording artist and inspirational communicator, will appear in concert on Sat., May 14th, 7:30 p.m., at the East Jordan High School.

Womach has been acclaimed for his four-octave voice which has excited audiences all across the United States and in dozens of foreign countries.

His greatest distinction, however, is his ability to inspire and uplift with his singing - perhaps the result of extraordinary circumstances which have occurred in his life.

On Thanksgiving Day 1961, the twin engine airplane he was piloting crashed and exploded in a massive ball of fire. Burned beyond recognition, Womach has accomplished what only a few have done from similar circumstances.

He has come back to not only fly his own airplane again but also to sing again - with a new face, fashioned by more than 60 skin graft surgeries, and with a voice that critics say is better than before the accident.

Mr. Womach's appearance in this area is made possible by the Presbyterian Church of East Jordan.

Ticket prices are as follows: Advanced Adult, $3.00; Adult at door, $4.00; Children under 12, $2.50; Preschool children free.

Schnackenbergs' North Country Kids hopes to fill local needs in childrens' clothing

Quick. Name one retail business the parents of four children can start with no prior retail experience.

If you said children's clothing, you're right according to Lee and Dick Schnackenberg who have done just that.

North Country Kids, located on Park Ave. where Mountain Rags used to be, is the Schnackenbergs' first foray into small business. Much of their motivation stems from what they saw as a real need in Charlevoix.

"As we brought up our children, we found it very inconvenient to have to go to Petoskey or Traverse City to buy a pair of socks or some underwear," said Lee.

So instead of going from Charlevoix to Petoskey or Traverse City for a good selection of small childrens' socks and underwear, the Schnackenbergs brought the socks and underwear - plus a storefull of other childrens' clothing - to Charlevoix.

Contrary to what some may think, it's not that difficult to set up a new business from scratch, says Lee.

"The salesmen are very helpful," she said, "Of course they want you to succeed as much as you do so they are very willing to tell you what's selling and what's not."

One of the hardest aspects of the clothing business to get accustomed to for the Schnackenbergs has been thinking two or three seasons ahead in the buying process.

"When we started putting the store together in February, we tried to order spring and summer items but the salesmen told us those things all should have been ordered in November," said Lee, "That was even before winter!"

Luckily there was still plenty of warm-weather merchandise available, however, and the Schnackenbergs have assembled a wide selection of moderately priced clothing ranging in sizes from toddlers' size one to preteen size 16.

They carry such well known brand names as Wrangler play and sportswear, Danskin tights, leotards and swimwear and soon will have Oshkosh B'Gosh products, too. The aforementioned socks and underwear - all cotton - are there as are such other neccessities as belts, hats and sleepwear, all in the moderate price range.

"We are trying to provide all the basic needs," said Lee who added that they may even add sneakers soon.

The Schnackenbergs moved from Howell, Michigan about 18 years ago and at the time, their friends thought they were crazy to leave civilization for the desolate North.

But life in Northern Michigan has been a dream for the Schnackenbergs who have a country home in Norwood Township. In fact, their pride in the North Country is so strong that when it got time to come up with a name for their new store, it just seemed appropriate to combine the North Country with the Kids.

The Schnackenbergs have done almost all the physical work on the store themselves. Dick constructed the racks and shelving inside and Lee painstakingly wood-burned the sign outside featuring a mischievious racoon in a tree. The interior walls are decorated with several colorful animal posters.

They also cooperate on running the business. Lee minds the store on weekdays and Dick comes in to help on Saturdays when he is free from his regular job at LexaLite. The store is open from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Dick and Lee Schnackenberg in their new store, North Country Kids.

TWO AREA MEN were in good condition at the Charlevoix Area Hospital this week following a two-car collision at 10 a.m. Friday at the intersection of Bridge St. and Lincoln. Warren H. Frank, Jr., 47, of East Jordan, was driving south on Bridge St. when he struck a car driven by John C. McDonald, 89, of Charlevoix which was traveling east and pulled out in front of the Frank vehicle. Both men were taken by ambulance to Charlevoix Area Hospital while the scene was cleared by Charlevoix police. McDonald was cited for failure to yield right of way.

Knight on the Town

Home free

by Dave Knight

Crows notwithstanding, Sunday was as peaceful a day as one could imagine in the cool woods of Sleepy Hollow.

As we've said before, Spring has a way of descending with more grace than any other of the four distinct seasons we are allotted in these parts.

The forest floor was still dominated by the chaff of winter; brown leaves, withered ferns and the like. But struggling to life through the clutter were the fiddleheads and green shoots that in coming weeks would flourish to replace the dismal scene with a rich carpet of vegetation.

Tiny minnows darted among the shadows in the stream and the dorsal fin of a brook trout made a sudden vee across the water's surface as it sought the cover of a fallen log.

A wayward boot found a soggy clump of earth and was sucked into the goop with a gurgling sound. The black mud was to stay aboard the rest of the day, showing up on various rugs and carpets at the most inopportune times.

No mushrooms, yet.

Somewhere beneath the leaves they were mustering, we were sure, just waiting for the oft-alluded to "warm spring rains" to tap them on their shoulders and say, "Come on out!"

But there was plenty to enjoy in the woods on May 1 without mushrooms.

Now it can snow again, if it pleases, for one freak storm or two. It can rain and sleet, too, for that matter. After Sunday's performance, we are assured that Spring has indeed arrived to stay and while it may dart tantalizingly in and out for a spell, we know it shall be the dominant season for at least the next month or so.

Clockwise

Snow hangs on

by Bob Clock

THE CALENDAR said it was May 1 — May Day — a day usually associated with spring flowers and all kinds of springtime events.

Yet there were still giant pockets of snow on Boyne Mountain when the Clocks passed that way Sunday afternoon.

In fact, there was enough snow on Hemlock from top to bottom for a fast run — but no skiers were in evidence as we tooled past on M-75.

Snow this late in the season seems strange — particularly after our mild winter. But we tend to forget that Boyne Mountain is in the snow-making business and probably much of what we saw was the man-made variety. Other hills in the area were sere and bare, probably a more natural landscape for this time of year.

However, ski buffs will only have to wait another six or seven months before the entire mountain is white again.

I READ WITH interest about the May Day riots in Poland and wondered afresh how much time must elapse — and how many lives will be lost — before the Polish government realizes it is fighting a losing battle against the Solidarity trade union.

Although the union has been outlawed for more two years, 100,000 Solidarity sympathizers demonstrated on May Day. It's safe to assume that if 100,000 defied the government outright, hundreds of thousands of others would have done so if they hadn't been afraid of reprisals.

Meanwhile, the Polish government has put former Solidarity leader Lech Walesa back on the job at the Gdansk shipyards. But they can't seem to strip him of his old popularity. Newsmen follow him wherever he goes and his most off-hand observations are published in the world press.

For a non-entity, Walesa is certainly making waves.

Over the weekend, Walesa suggested that the time has come for Polish government to sit down with Solidarity leaders and work out a compromise giving the little guy a louder voice in affairs of state the and a larger slice of the economic pie.

Unless Warsaw is willing to listen — and bend —, I predict Poland will bolt to the West before the decade is over — with a dreadful loss of lives and property.

IF YOU'RE OLD to remember World War II, you'll remember how often Danzig was in the war news. Bombs fell on Danzig and troops moved in and out of the Baltic Sea port. Then suddenly after the war Danzig was no more.

As you may have suspected, the city has resurfaced as the well-nigh unpronounceable "Gdansk" where Lech Walesa is supposed to be repairing forklifts at the shipyards.

Downtown development...

district. In this case, the district is roughly Bridge St. from Dixon Ave. to Hurlbut St.

The tax revenues captured are then used to pay for public improvements intended to encourage private development and stimulate economic growth. Tax increment financing was proposed for the first time in Charlevoix last year when the DDA sought, unsuccessfully, to employ it as a means of creating more parking space downtown.

The scenario proposed for the downtown improvement program is as follows. Assuming the entire new market value of a revamped Weathervane Restaurant, conference center and parking deck, the three houses to the east, the hotel on the Finn Lumber site, the Lodge and expanded Weathervane Motel is $5,500,000, the assessed value would then be half, or, $2,750,000. Of that amount, $1,250,000 would be subject to abatement leaving a captured value of $1,500,000. This, multiplied by a combined mill rate of .046 would yield $69,000 annually and, over the ten-year life span of the process, amount to $690,000, the estimated cost of the improvements.

The issue of tax increment financing's impact on taxing units other than the city is one involving short term sacrifices for long term gains, according to the DDA plan.

Property value within the development district would remain frozen for ten years as it applies to the school district, the county and the intermediate school district. Under tax increment financing, the normal increase in tax revenues would be captured for the public improvements.

The theory is, however, that because of the improvements, property values will be so much higher in ten years that the other taxing juristictions will eventually reap a much greater tax benefit than if the improvements were not done.

The proposed downtown improvements are planned on a block-by-block, pay-as-you go schedule after the initial $400,000 debt ceiling is reached. Under the timetable for the development plan, the Phase I improvements would be completed during 1984 and 1985 though some may have to be deferred from 1986 through 1993 depending on available funds. These improvements, as described by the M.C. Smith landscape architecture firm, include the following:

-New curb and gutter including "walk expansions" at intersections that extend six feet into the exsiting parking lanes and, after the crosswalk, taper back to the existing curb line. This configuration is designed to improve pedestrian traffic without creating a traffic hazard or snow removal problem.

-New sidewalk paved with 60 percent concrete and 40 percent brick to create attractive patterns and texture.

-Street repaving to accomodate the above changes.

The Phase II improvements could be started in 1984 and stretched over a ten year period to be completed in stages as funds are available. They include the following:

-New street light poles and fixtures are planned for installation at the same locations as existing street lights to minimize any extra wiring. Also planned is "pedestrian scale walkway lighting", or, additional lights to add dimension and safety to pedestrian walkways.

-Street furniture such as benches, waste containers, planters, tree guards and tree grates.

-Additional landscaping.

-New traffic signals, possibly for Bridge St. intersections at Dixon Ave., Pine River Lane and Clinton St.

City Council...

Commission without his input, however, and suggested that he be authorized to prepare a written response.

The council agreed with Van Treese's suggestion and closed the discussion on the subject.

On another zoning matter, the council denied a site plan proposed by Bill Peters for an addtion to his dry cleaning business, Hooker's Cleaners, on W. Hurlbut St. The site plan included a first floor addition built right to the rear lot line and the addtion of a second floor to the building.

Council rejected the variance for the elimination of the rear setback on grounds that it would set a precedent of violating the city's zoning code. The vote was 4-2 with Jeffrey Porter and Shirley Roloff voting to approve the variances.

In other action, the council approved a plan to resurface State St. from Hurlbut to Carpenter where storm sewer was installed last year.

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Wells, Jr.

Johnson-Wells

The Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix was the setting for the Saturday, April 16 wedding of Michelle M. Johnson and Donald E. Wells, Jr.

She is the daughter of Peter C. Johnson of Hazel Park and he is the son of Donald E. and Lura E. Wells of Charlevoix.

Rev. Larry Grooters of the Community Reformed Church presided over the double ring ceremony attended by about 300 guests. The altar was decorated for the service with white glads and large white daisies.

The bride was given in marriage by Orville and Darlene Powell. She wore a dacron polyester and organza gown fully lined in acetate taffeta with a stand up collar, front and back ruffle-trimmed yoke, empire waist, lace-timmed illusion sleeves and full skirt with attached chapel length train. A Juliet cap held in place her finger tip length veil of illusion. Her bouquet, designed by Mary Novotny, featured silk blue carnations and roses with cream rose buds and baby's breath.

Maid of honor was Julie Matthew, sister of the groom and bridesmaids were Julie Walker, Claudia Newson and Tina Grams, cousin of the groom. They wore lustrous polyester knit gowns with tops and jackets of ivory polyester chiffon and attached skirts of powder blue fabric. They carried lace fans with attached blue carnations and roses, also designed by Mary Novotny.

Shena Walker, was the flower girl and wore a gown of white dacron polyester organza like the bride's and a veil.

Music was provided by Mrs. John Boss who accompanied soloist Mae Charbonneau.

Best man was Michell Matthew and groomsmen were Rick Selessen, Bill Roloff and Rick Wells, cousin of the groom. Ushers were Calvin Olsen and Rick Wilson, the groom's cousins.

A reception hosted by the groom's parents was held in the Charlevoix VFW Hall. A rehearsal dinner hosted by the groom's parents and William and Bonnie Bellows of Charlevoix was held the Friday evening before the wedding.

Following a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the couple is at home in Charlevoix where the groom is employed by Bellows Electric.

Charlevoix County MAEH members are observing 'Homemakers Week'

All too few people realize the special skills it takes to be a homemaker in the 1980s.

There is one organization in the State of Michigan, however, that not only ackowledges the expertise it takes to manage a modern household but maintains ongoing educational programs to develop that expertise.

That organization is the Michigan Association of Extension Homemakers (MAEH), a non-profit organization which has 9,000 members statewide and 750 affiliated clubs including three in Charlevoix County.

According to Charlevoix County Extension Home Economist Sherl Rhoads, this week, May 1-7, has been designated as "Homemakers Week" by the MAEH and some its local members have taken the opportunity to explain what MAEH means to them.

The overall purpose of the MAEH, said Rhoads, is to develop informal, out-of-school educational programs in family living for homemakers. MAEH clubs meet each month, usually in members' homes.

Of the three Extension clubs in Charlevoix County, two are based in Charlevoix and one in East Jordan.

Dee Hoadley of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County MAEH chairperson, has been a member of the "Too Few" club for five years. She said, "As a member of MAEH, I've had many educational experiences such as workshops and college week at Michigan State University. I enjoy sharing social events and service projects with other MAEH members."

Melody Ritt, Charlevoix, is MAEH County Treasurer. In explaining the benefits she has realized from her association with MAEH, she said, "MAEH has given me the opportunity to learn, share and grow: Learning new skills and ideas at meetings and college week, sharing this learning with my local group and growing as an individual through this process."

The MAEH experience is much more than just education according to Mrs. Ritt who said, "A big part of MAEH are the friends you make and the connection felt with women across the state and the U.S."

Vicki Wheat is a member of the newly formed "CHARM" group in Charlevoix. She explains that the organization is concerned with education for rural women and also with international good will.

Said Mrs. Wheat, "Individual study groups can be formed by any interested group of people. They are encouraged to develop programs suited to their members, whether it be nutrition and health, preserving food, spending and budgeting, energy conservation, gardening...the list goes on."

"MAEH is good friends and neighbors sharing with each other what they do best in a setting so informal that we feel comfortable bringing our children along," said Sharmon Dulaney of the CHARM club.

"There are opportunities in MAEH outside the local study groups on county and state levels," she continued, "As well as informative newsletters, seminars and workshops on everything from canning to running a small business. MAEH is a link between wonderfully talented, intelligent and diverse women in Michigan who are working to improve the quality of life and communities - and loving it!"

To a homemaker, a favorite recipe is about as valuable a gift as can be offered. Sherl Rhoads asked some local MAEH members to share some of their personal favorites as a special recognition of Homemakers Week:

SUGAR COOKIES

Mix thoroughly:
¾ c. oleo or shortening
1 c. sugar
2 eggs
½ t. vanilla
Sift together and stir in:
2½ c. flour
1 t. baking powder
1 t. salt

Chill at least one hour. Roll out ¼ inch thick. Cut into desired shapes. Place on ungreased sheet and sprinkle with sugar (or save decorating until later). Bake until delicately done at 400 degrees - approximately 6 to 8 minutes. Yield: About two dozen.

Vicki L. Wheat

SCALLOPED CARROTS

4 c. sliced peeled carrots
1 small onion, chopped
2 Tbsp. margarine
1 can, condensed cream of celery soup
½ c. grated cheddar cheese
2 c. dry bread crumbs
2 tbsp. margarine

Cook carrots. Drain. Cook onions in margarine until soft. Stir in soup, cheese and carrots. Pour into greased 1½ quart casserole. Toss bread cubes with melted margarine. Spoon over carrots. Bake at 350 degrees about 20 minutes. Makes six servings.

Dee Hoadley

FROZEN SWEET CHERRIES

Prepare syrup by combining 1 part sugar to 3 parts water. Heat only enough to dissolve sugar. Cool.

Pit cherries. Put in freezer containers. Cover with cooled syrup, leaving head space. Freeze.

(Cherries don't become soft or mushy when thawed and are much like fresh cherries.)

Sharmon Dulaney

RAINBOW JELLO

4 (3 oz.) pkgs. Jello (lime, lemon, orange, strawberry).
1 cup white sugar
2 cups milk
1 pint sour cream
2 pkgs. Knox unflavored gelatin
2 tsp. vanilla

For each Jello layer, dissolve Jello in 1 cup hot tap water, then add ½ cup cold tap water.

Boil milk and add sugar to it. Dissolve 2 pkgs. Knox gelatin in ½ cup warm water. Add sour cream to gelatin. Add milk-sugar mixture to sour cream mixture and beat well. Add vanilla and whip. Grease a 13 x 9 x 2 inch pan with butter.

Make each Jello layer ahead of time so the temperature is cool enough not to melt previous layer. Keep stirring cream mixture to prevent lumping. Start and end with Jello layer. Cream layers should consist of about 1 and two thirds cups of mixture. Let each layer set before adding next layer.

LTC now owns 160 acres in Charlevoix County

Conservancy goal: To preserve wild lands

The following was contributed by the Little Traverse Conservancy.

A hilltop forest with an inspiring view of western Charlevoix County, a stretch of rugged Lake Michigan shoreline strewn with Petoskey stones, a marsh at the head of scenic Oyster Bay - wouldn't it be nice if areas like these could be preserved so they would always be available for people to enjoy?

Fortunately these areas, and a number of others, have been preserved by a group of people who care about the natural wealth and beauty of Northern Michigan and are doing something to see it stays that way.

On a field trip to the Loeb Nature Preserve on Lake Michigan, Little Traverse Conservancy members learn about the shoreline environment.

The Little Traverse Conservancy was formed in 1972 for the purpose of preserving significant natural land and open space in Emmet, Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Mackinac Counties. The organization now owns and manages nearly 800 acres, 160 of which are located in Charlevoix County.

Charlevoix attorney Thomas Pointner, the current chairman of the Little Traverse Conservancy, explains that the group was founded by individuals from the Little Traverse Bay area who became concerned over the rapid pace of development occuring at the time.

"We certainly weren't opposed to development," Pointner recalls, "But we recognized that certain lands are more valuable to people in the area if they are left undeveloped. These are lands whose value lies in their natural assets, not just their economic potential. By preserving them today we can insure that they will always be available - for this generation and for future generations."

Many residents of Charlevoix County have probably been to one of the Conservancy's nature preserves, the Charles A. Ransom Nature Preserve, 80 acres of hardwood forest and meadow at the end of Maple Grove Road.

The view from the parking area out over the large, sloping meadow is one of the most spectacular in the county. The long finger of the Leelanau Peninsula extends northerly beyond Charlevoix's South Point and on a clear day North Manitou Island crests the horizon.

A well marked nature trail with an accompanying brochure leads visitors on a one-mile or half-mile loop through the hardwood forest, explaining the interesting natural features along the way. The Ransom Preserve, says Pointner, is a perfect place for a family outing or a peaceful hike alone.

A similar nature trail is being planned for the Conservancy's Sleepy Hollow Nature Preserve, a 55-acre tract of hardwoods near the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix. A highlight of the trail, to be completed in the early summer, is a pristine stream that winds through a cool, steep-sided valley.

A third Conservancy Nature Preserve in Charlevoix County, and one of the groups's most recent acquisitions, is a 23-acre parcel at the head of Oyster Bay, known as the Barbara Douglas Dixon Nature Preserve.

The land, which include 900 feet of shoreline, is low and marshy. Little Traverse Conservancy Executive Director Louis Borie explains that because of the sensitivity of the area it will be left undisturbed, with no nature trails through it, for the forseeable future.

"The Dixon Preserve is excellent habitat for a variety of wildlife, including deer, fox and several kinds of waterfowl," says Borie, "Disturbing the area in any way would mean that some of the habitat would be lost."

"Though some Conservancy preserves have established trails and some do not, all of the group's land is open to the public for uses which are compatible with preserving the essential natural character of the land," Borie explains. He adds that hiking, bird watching, nature photography, cross country skiing and snowshoeing are popular uses of nature preserves.

Each of the Conservancy's nature preserves is managed by a volunteer Stewardship Committee or overseer with the guidance of the Executive Director. Borie points out that the Conservancy depends on many volunteers who assist not only with the task of managing nature preserves but also with office work, fundraising and special projects.

"We have a very committed group of volunteers and we're always looking for others who want to become involved," he says.

One of the Conservancy's most ambitious projects to date is the Thorne Swift Nature Preserve, a 30-acre sanctuary on Lake Michigan north of Harbor Springs. Under a cooperative development and management plan with West Traverse Township, a manager's residence, nature center, 30-car parking lot, boardwalk trails, observation platform and "shoreline use area" have been established. "We're very proud of Thorne Swift," Borie says, "The Lake Michigan access and the educational opportunities offered by the preserve are going to be a great asset to the area." Thorne Swift Nature Preserve opens to the general public May 28.

Besides Thorne Swift, the Conservancy's other Emmet County nature preserves include 100 acres of wooded sand dunes near Menonaqua Beach, 40 acres with 2,000 feet of shoreline on Round Lake and a large cedar swamp on Beach Road across from the Harbor Inn.

According to Borie, a directory giving descriptions and locations of all of the Conservancy's nature preserves will be published this summer. In the meantime, more information about visiting the nature preserves can be obtained by calling the Conservancy's office at 347-0091.

Yellow Lady's Slippers are found throughout the Sleepy Hollow Nature Preserve about seven miles south of Charlevoix.

Jack-in-the-pulpit is also common at the Sleepy Hollow Nature Preserve.

When Nurses Aide Carrie Brown retired after 29 years with Charlevoix Area Hospital, she was feted by colleagues from throughout her career, including other retired employees who returned last Friday for Carrie's retirement party. Carrie says she looks forward to enjoying life on her Norwood farm, where she has lived throughout her life. Asked if she was going to easily adjust to sleeping at night after 29 years on the nightshift, Carrie said, "If I can't, I'll get up and read." She was holding a collection of books given her by her friends. Celebrating retirement with Carrie were: (front row left to right) Claire Wilcox, Virginia Jarvis, Carrie Brown, Isabel Siedel, Joy Flating; and back row: Mary Boss, Hilma Hall, Edith Chamberlain, Sara Cummings, and Wilma Zoulek.

Hospital plans Health Fair

member of the hospital Health Education Committee which is organizing the event. "And what better way to treat our family than help keep them healthy?" Roeters asks.

The Health Fair is part of the hospital's continuing program to bring preventive medicine to the people it serves.

Visitors to the fair will be able to have their blood pressure checked, take a computerized stress level test through the Seventh Day Adventists, have their blood typed and checked for anemia, obtain an accurate weight on an electronic scale, be screened for glaucoma by a member of the East Jordan Family Health Center, check their pulse rate at rest and after riding an exercycle, and gather useful information from many other participants.

The hospital dietary department will provide information on good nutrition. The American Heart Association, American Cancer Society, American Diabetic Association, Health Department, Charlevoix County Hospice, CHIP Counseling Center, and Michigan Lung Association will be participating. The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department will be at the fair with information and tips on crime and rape prevention as well as other safety issues.

Dr. David Strawbridge will a booth at the fair with dental care demonstrations and information. The Charlevoix Ambulance Service will have an ambulance on hand for inspection.

The purpose of the fair, according to organizers, is to "help people assess their own health, better understand how to maintain good health, and gain a perspective on health care facilities and agencies in this area."

Each agency or activity will be set up individually throughout the lower level of the Lake Michigan wing of the Hospital. Participants will be able to select among the activities they wish to visit, speak with representatives of each agency and collect printed materials provided by the various fair participants.

The fair is designed to provide a broad exposure to the health care agencies in the area, and help stimulate people to take a greater interest in their own good health.

Wednesday, May 11, from 2 p.m. to 7 p.m., will be the Second Annual Charlevoix Area Hospital Health Fair.

4-Hers to show projects

Charlevoix County 4-H'rs will be showing their completed projects from the winter at the annual county Achievement Day to be held at the Civic Center in East Jordan. The date is Saturday, May 7, and the hours are from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Public viewing can begin after the midday break (11:45 a.m.-1 p.m.) and the public is invited to remain for the Style Show and awards presentation from 3 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. The day is planned to allow participants and viewers alike to still visit the Boyne City Mushroom Festival and also attend both daytime and evening Barbershop events.

Members and leaders will place exhibits and displays in the earlier part of the morning to be ready for evaluation beginning at 9:15. People from the community serve as evaluators and hold short interviews with each 4-H child. They talk about the project and what the member has learned. Evaluators need to have some knowledge of the project area they are working in, but even more important is the willingness to give children some time and attention as they talk about their accomplishments.

Following evaluation, ribbons are placed on all projects. Each member receives green participation ribbons for attending and either blue or red ribbons for their work. Outstanding projects receive gold ribbons as a special notice. In addition the county 4-H Council confers a number of $15.00 trip awards to members whom the evaluators agree are deserving of this reward for their efforts based on work plus the interview. The trip awards are redeemable for 4-H events in the county or on the state level.

Achievement Day closes with a program and style show during which members show ensembles they have made or assembled. This is judged by a panel of three. Members model by age groups.

Friends of 4-H, family members and members of the community are all welcome and urged to take part in Achievement Day by attending this event.

Local Humane Society members fly to Wisconsin for demonstration

Five members of the Charlevoix County Humane Society, at their own expense, flew to Madison, Wisc., recently to participate in a march against one of the seven Primate Research Centers in the United States.

There were among approximately 10,000 animal lovers who are members of the Federation of Humane Societies, United Action for Animals, Inc., and related groups who are protesting the unnecessary, repetitive, redundant and inhumane use of animals in research.

Ginny Heick, one of the members who made the trip, said the organization's efforts are being devoted to research accountability rather than the elimination of all research. "It is the inhumane methods used in experiments that are benefitting no one that we object to," Mrs. Heick said.

Others making the trip via Island Airways charter flight from Charlevoix were Jan Ballard, president of the Charlevoix County Humane Society, Mary Thaas, Beverly Schroder of Walloon Lake, Bard and Dick Wheeler of East Jordan.

Marches were made on all seven Primate Research Centers located throughout the U.S. on Sunday to call attention to the plight of the helpless animals.

Venetian Fest. goes European

by DAVE KNIGHT

Charlevoix's 53rd Venetian Festival, based originally on the colorful boat parades of Venice, will have an even more distinctive European flavor this year.

The Venetian Festival Committee of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce has announced that the theme for this year's celebration will be "A Continental Holiday".

Venetian Festival weekend will be July 21-24 this summer.

Committee members chose the European theme because of its easy adaption to float decoration ideas for both the street and boat parades and because it will accomodate the colorful pageantry of the Venetian Queen contest.

The queen contest, as in the past, will kick off Venetian Weekend on Thursday evening, July 21. Contestants will participate that evening in talent, swimsuit and evening gown competition at the Charlevoix High School gymnasium. Several musical acts are also planned for the pageant which will be climaxed by the crowning of the 1983 Venetian Queen by Kathy Pidek, the reigning queen.

Applications for queen contestants are now available at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce office according to pageant chairman Sandy Bonello. All girls between the ages 18 and 21 whose families either live or own property in the Charlevoix School District are eligible.

Again this year, local businesses will sponsor queen candidates. Sponsors will be provided, said Mrs. Bonello, to any contestant who needs one. The winner of the contest will also receive a scholarship and will be invited to represent Charlevoix at various other community festivals in the area.

The deadline for Venetian Queen applications is June 10.

Applications are also being accepted for float entries in the Venetian Street Parade, according to street parade chairman Marina LaBlance. The only major change in this year's parade is the starting time which has been moved to 11 a.m. from an earlier time.

Parade rules will be similar to last year's including bans on handing out or throwing any candy, literature or other items. Sirens will also be prohibited this year so that the bands can be heard. Parade applications and the complete set of regulations are available at the Chamber office. The deadline for parade applications is July 16.

Two popular musical entries will be returning from last year's street parade. The nationally known Stroh Highlanders will appear as will the comical Scottville Clown Band.

Begun last year as a successful new Venetian event, a dance in East Park is again planned to highlight the Friday evening festivities. Further details on the Friday night dance will be forthcoming.

On Saturday evening the spotlight will be on Round Lake for the Venetian Boat Parade headed by chairman John Coolman. Boats will vie for prizes in several categories of size and type in the most traditional of Venetian Weekend events. A concluding display of fireworks over Round Lake will add to the spectacle.

Also planned for the festival are the Venetian Footrace to be held Saturday morning, the Charlevoix Historical Society's annual luncheon to be held at their Harsha House headquarters Friday, a BMX racing series at the Charlevoix Township track both Saturday and Sunday, a model airplane rally held by the Charlevoix Area Buffs, and an afternoon of musical entertainment on the East Park stage following the street parade.

LIONS JOURNEY FOR SIGHT

DDA, School Board agree on TIF plan

by DAVE KNIGHT

A compromise agreement reached between the Downtown Development Authority and the Charlevoix School District on tax increment financing for downtown improvements was aired before City Council Monday night, making eventual council approval of the improvement plan next week all the more likely.

Vincent Olach, business manager for Charlevoix schools, told the council at their regular committee-as-a-whole meeting that the School Board had never opposed the concept of downtown development but had initial reservations about the tax increment financing method proposed by the DDA as a funding mechanism for the project.

Almost $700,000 of improvements involving streets, sidewalks, streetlights and landscaping is proposed for the downtown area south of the bridge to tie in with similar improvements planned as part of the Altman hotel-conference center project north of the bridge.

Under the original tax increment financing plan, the DDA would have captured all increased tax revenues over a ten year period resulting from improvements to a "captured area" including the following properties: the Weathervane Restaurant and two lots directly to the west, the Weathervane Terrace and expansion plus the three houses to the east, the former Fochtman property and adjoining parking ramp to be constructed, the Lodge and the former Finn Lumber property.

Under the proposal made by the School Board, however, at the close of each year, the state equalized valuation would be averaged for the entire city outside the captured area and the schools, along with all other taxing juristictions. That average inflationary increase would then be applied to properties within the captured area and the schools would receive the tax revenues accordingly with a five percent cap on increases for any one year.

Said Olach, "This way we will get the taxes we would have gotten anyway and be able to maintain our cash flow while still allowing the development and property value improvements to continue."

Olach said that the seven member school had agreed upon the compromise unanimously.

Michael Greeley, president of the DDA, told the council that he favored the school district's proposal saying, "I am leaning toward this because I would prefer an amicable settlement for all parties."

A public hearing will be held at the City Council meeting May 16 on the DDA improvement program and the tax increment financing. Council approval is needed no later than May 23 to enact the process this year.

Dr. Saltonstall honored by state assoc. for 50 years of medical practice

by PEG OHLE

Retired Charlevoix physician G. B. "Gib" Saltonstall was recently honored by the Michigan State Medical Society for his 50 years of medical practice.

Dr. Saltonstall, who came to Charlevoix with his parents at the age of two, graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1926 and from the University of Michigan Medical School in 1933. He returned to Charlevoix to begin the practice of medicine in 1934 and continued until his retirement at the end of 1978.

In an interview with the Courier at the time of his retirement, Dr. Saltonstall recalled that in 1942 he administered the first dose of penicillin used in the city of Charlevoix and in the 1930's performed the first direct blood transfusion at the old Charlevoix Hospital.

These events were only highlights of a long career of serving the residents of Charlevoix and environs, a career that included delivering more than 3,000 babies. Church and community activities and participation in the affairs of various medical societies also occupied much of Dr. Saltonstall's time. Among the offices he held was that of president of the Michigan State Medical Society, during the year 1958-1959.

Dr. G. B. Saltonstall

Dr. Saltonstall celebrated his 75th birthday last Saturday. While he no longer practices medicine, he maintains a small office in which to handle his personal affairs and goes to the Charlevoix Area Hospital twice a week to eat lunch with his former colleagues and new friends. "I keep in touch," he says.

Dr. Saltonstall did not go to Detroit to accept his 50-year pin from the Medical Society, preferring to wait until fall when he and his wife Charlotte will attend his 50th class re-union of the University of Michigan Medical School in Ann Arbor.

Both Belvedere and Chx. Township suits involve old, old documents

by PEG OHLE

Two lawsuits based on legal documents executed in the 1890's are presently in the active file of Charlevoix Circuit Court:

On May 2, 1891, the Charlevoix Summer Resort Association (now the Belvedere Club) deeded the Chicago and North Michigan Railroad (now the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway) "A strip of land for a right of way one hundred feet in width across the Charlevoix Summer Resort Grounds".

The deed, which was meticulously recorded in County records on May 3, 1891 in the handwriting of then Register of Deeds Orlando Blair, further states:

"If at any time the said railroad which may be constructed across said lands shall be abandoned, then...all rights herein conveyed shall revert to and become vested in the party of the first part" (Charlevoix Summer Resort Association).

A railroad was constructed across said lands, with the first train arriving on June 26, 1892, and the last train using the tracks "on or about" February 20, 1982.

The reversion clause has now become the basis of a lawsuit recently filed in Circuit Court in which the Belvedere Club is claiming title to the strip of land "free and clear of any easement". The Belvedere Club notes in its suit that the defendant (the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway) "has asserted and claimed some interest in said parcel of land and has negotiated with one or more parties for the possible sale of its purported interest." This claimed interest "constitutes a cloud on the title" of the Belvedere Club, the complaint adds. Therefore, the Club is asking that the Court decree that the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway has abandoned operation and grant a decree quieting title in favor of the Club.

The lawsuit is particularly relevant at this time since the Michigan Northern Railroad, which has been operating along the old Penn Central tracks to Mackinac City, had been negotiating with the Chesapeake and Ohio to buy the portion of trackage running through the Belvedere Club to make possible the shipping northward of cement from the Medusa plant. Presumably, Michigan Northern would have used the railroad bridge across Round Lake to connect with the portion of the old Chesapeake and Ohio tracks north of the bridge now owned by the State of Michigan. This trackage runs to Bay View.

The bridge is mentioned in the 1891 deed for right of way as follows:

"Second party (the railroad) also agrees as a part of the consideration of this conveyance that in constructing its bridge across Pine River, a suitable and sufficient space under said bridge and the approach thereto shall be made for the passage of row boats from Round Lake to Pine Lake".

As of last week, the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway had not answered the Belvedere Club's complaint.

On August 12, 1898, one Bessie W. Pattengill executed a quit claim deed to Charlevoix Township for a 66-foot strip of land "running from the extension of Bridge Street (now Michigan Avenue) near the East and West Quarter Line Road of Section 23 to the waters of Lake Michigan" for "highway purposes".

Although Charlevoix Township did not improve the property for vehicular traffic, the strip of land has been used through the years for foot access to the lake by residents of both Charlevoix Township and the City of Charlevoix. According to Charlevoix Township Supervisor Oscar Stroud, 84 present-day residents have signed affidavits saying they use the foot path.

In June of last year, property owners on either side of the strip of land, Virginia Y. Abbott and Elizabeth Hodgson, filed suit in Charlevoix Circuit Court to clear the deed and return the property to them. They based their suit on the contention that Mrs. Pattengill's quit claim was limited to highway purposes and that there was never a formal or informal acceptance of the deed by the Township.

The Township's "lack of action" in the past 84 years constitutes abandonment of the property, they further contend, adding that they have been maintaining the property despite "continued criminal trespass by third parties."

Following a pre-trial hearing in Circuit Court last week, Judge Martin B. Breighner disqualified himself from hearing the case because he had been "a property owner in a similar situation". It is expected that another judge will be assigned to the case within the next two weeks.

Sign up now for petunia planting assignments

Saturday, May 21 has been designated as Community Pride Day by Mayor Kenneth Staley and preparations have begun for the planting of 45,000 petunias in a double row along Highway 31 (Bridge St.) through Charlevoix.

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful president Bruce MacArthur and Operation Petunia chairman Dale Boss are urging all local residents to sign up for planting assignments by checking the sign-up sheets at both the Charlevoix County State Bank and the First State Bank.

According to MacArthur, the first 100 people to sign up for Planting Day duty will receive complimentary daffodils.

Computerized lists of last year's volunteers have been made as well as detailed maps with 12 designated sections to be planted. Volunteers may sign up to plant in areas most convenient to them or ask for areas to be assigned.

Sand and salt have been removed from the petunia beds by city crews and application of liquid fertilizer has begun. Weather permitting, said Boss, all beds will be rototilled and fertilized before Planting Day. Boss encouraged any property owners with problems unique to their site to contact him. He also is seeking residents with rototillers available.

Plans are proceeding for an old fashioned Ice Cream Social on Planting Day and will be spicified later.

Studio tour acquaints Crooked Tree volunteers with artists

A Charlevoix Artist's Studio tour took place on Tuesday, May 3rd for almost forty volunteers who work in the sales and rental gallery at the Virginia McCune Arts Center.

The group gathered at the Lodge at 10 a.m. for coffee and proceeded to the Sue and Russ Bolt Studio on Marion Center Rd. where Sue Bolt demonstrated the print process of making collographs.

Russ Bolt demonstrated the various firing processes, including the salt glazed process he uses in his out-door kiln.

After an hour's lecture an elegant luncheon was served at Elm Pointe.

Mary Latimer, Volunteer Coordinator, thanked the group for staffing the Art Tree Gallery at the Center and encouraged everyone to invite others to volunteer this summer.

Edith Gilbert, Volunteer Chairperson, reported that sales are way up this year since the shop has become better known in the area, and that may local artists benefit from the sale of their work through the Art Tree.

The second stop was at the studio of Walter and Peggy Midener on M 66 between Charlevoix and East Jordan. This husband and wife team share a joint studio, painting on one side and sculpture on the other with a friendly buffer zone of cozy chairs and tables in between. Since both enjoy listening to classical music while they work, they find working together most stimulating.

After a show and tell tour of the studio, the group moved on to The Crockery, also on M 66. Here Nancy Koncky demonstrated her weaving techniques on her various looms and Chuck Koncky demonstrated his throwing technique on the wheel.

The volunteers who come from a wide area that reaches all the way from Mancelona to Cross Village, gained a deeper appreciation of the work involved in creating a painting, a pot, a piece of sculpture or a poncho. Someone said, at the end of the tour, "I wonder why they don't charge more!" Anyone who is interested in working in the Art Tree at the Virginia McCune Arts Center is welcome to call 347-4337.

Gail Duke and Peg Johnson of Charlevoix watch as Sue Bolt conducts a demonstration.

Antrim Players to make stage debut

The Antrim Regional Theatre, a recently organized group of Antrim County players, will be presenting its first major production May 13 and 14 at 8:00 p.m. in Bellaire. "On the Bridge at Midnight" is a melodrama where the audience can hiss the villain and cheer the heroine. There are characters with pasts shrouded in secrecy and a wolf in sheep's clothing. There is an interesting mortgage and stolen papers. "On the Bridge at Midnight" promises to be an entertaining melodrama.

Director Steve Hurd says rehersals are in full swing as opening night grows closer. Jacque Caro, producer of the two night event, is busy heading up fourteen committees all of which are moving in double time. Nimble fingers have been flying as the costume committee works laboriously converting contemporary clothing into turn-of-the-century fashions. Hammers, nails, and saws are ready to go with Sherry Knapp as the general stage manager. Dawn Hurd is busy scouting around for various props to add to the authenticity of "On the Bridge at Midnight" sets. Antrim Regional Theatre members are looking forward to this first major production May 13 and 14 at the Bellaire High School Gym.

Local churches get together to open new thrift shop

by PEG OHLE

Ten Charlevoix churches have banded together to set up a thrift shop in downtown Charlevoix.

To be called "The Rainbow Shoppe", the store, located at 115 Antrim Street (between Kwikie Printing and Judy's Restaurant), will be stocked with clothing, household items, books, toys, sewing materials, tools, and similar items which will be sold to needy families at a nominal cost.

The Rainbow Shoppe will open the first week in June. It will operate five days a week, Tuesdays through Saturdays, with a full-time manager and two volunteers on hand each day to assist customers.

The Rainbow Shoppe will be operated by a Board of Directors comprised of representatives from area churches. The Reverend David Yingling of the United Methodist Church is president of the board. Other officers are the Reverend Robert Smith of the First Baptist Church, vice-president; Cathy Liotta, treasurer; Clara Loomer, secretary; and Cheryl Wilde, consultant.

The board as a whole is made up of two members from each of the ten participating churches -- Community Reformed, Community Church of God, First Congregational, St. Mary's Catholic, Assembly of God, Bethany Lutheran, First Baptist, Christ Episcopal, Church of the Nazarene, and United Methodist.

The Rainbow Shoppe will rely entirely upon volunteers, with each church providing six volunteers per month. Mary Ellen Riggle is coordinating the volunteer program.

There will be a pickup service for those wishing to donate items to the store, or church members may take them to their own churches. Pickup service may be arranged by calling Reverend Yingling at 547-2654 or 547-5168.

As president of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association, Reverend Yingling is excited about the ecumenical nature of the Rainbow Thrift Shoppe. "It is not just the ministers but the people of the churches working tohgether," he explains.

Besides providing low-cost items for low income families, it is hoped the thrift shop will provide a personal contact with the lonely, distressed, needy people of the area, Reverend Yingling added.

David Murray is shown with some of the boats on display at his new business, Murray Marine and Brokerage, Inc.

Murray Marine sells, services all types of boats

The drydocked flotilla of pleasure craft that now greets motorists entering Charlevoix from the south on Highway 31 marks one of the area's newest businesses, Murray Marine and Brokerage, Inc.

Occupying the building that formerly housed the local Michigan Liquor Control Commission office, Murray Marine opened its doors earlier this spring under the ownership of David R. Murray of Charlevoix.

Murray, 26, has lived and worked in Charlevoix for the past six years. He is the son of Robert and Nancy Murray of Charlevoix. At one time he operated the Wharf Arcade located beneath the Wharfside Market. Most recently, however, he has been involved in real estate and boat sales having worked for Northwest Marine last year.

When Northwest Marine decided to eliminate its marina operations and concentrate on real estate brokerage, Murray inherited much of Northwest's inventory and service operations.

He now employs three full-time certified marine mechanics who are on call seven days a week and can make service calls by truck to any point in the area.

Murray represents several boat manufacturers including Glasstron, Century and Chris Craft. His brokerage also offers many previously owned vessels of all sizes and types, many of which can be seen on display in front of the business. He features a full line of marine accessories and sells and services Mercury and Chrysler outboards. Boat storage is available at Murray Marine as well.

Murray is a 1975 graduate of Mt. Clemens High School and attended Northwest Michigan College in Traverse City where he studied business and obtained a private pilot's license.

Murray Marine is open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sundays.

Student artists to be featured in annual art show at K-5 school

by ANNE KELLY

The all-school art show "Art Has Class" will be held May 19 between 7-9 p.m. and May 20, 23, 24 from 9-4 at the elementary school.

At the elementary level, a variety of K-5 children's work will be on display. Middle School art instructor, Roxie Loding reports that she will try to get at least one piece of all her student's art work in the show. She would encourage those students who have done art work and taken it home during the year to bring it back to her for screening.

"I feel that it's very important to have the kid's work shown and for the community to see it," she explained.

Included from her students will be: drawings, paintings, sculpture, papier mache, mobiles, masks, weaving, collage, kites and silk screening.

High School samples will include: paintings, drawings, air sculpture, weaving, plaster sculpture, a puppet show with marionettes, a doll house and a batik bedspread.

Featured in the show will be the work of fifteen Charlevoix students whose art work was on display at the Virginia McCune Arts Center last month as part of the Crooked Tree Arts Council Youth Art Exhibit.

For Saints and Sinners

by Rev. Robert K. Smith
First Baptist Church

Looking at the calendar, I was reminded that graduation time is fast approaching. Having been a high school teacher, the juices automatically began to flow in anticipation. The caps and gowns, the procession to "Pomp and Circumstances", the presentation of the coveted "parchment" invoke pleasant memories. The rites of graduation have an old and hallowed tradition.

After the Napoleonic educational reforms in France, selected students at the age of thirteen would progress through seven years of secondary studies. Next came stiff exams. The successful candidate would receive his "ticket" to further study on a more advanced level. He became a "baccalaureate" or a "bachelor", an apprentice in the educational world. This status was the entrance level into college studies. The student could now begin his steps or degrees into more advance training, leading to membership in the masters guild or perhaps sitting at the pinnacle with the doctors of learning.

A significant part of academic life was paid to the spiritual life of the candidate. With the more or less traditional garb of the scholar, the recipients of the "baccalaureate" would process into the church prior to commencement to participate in a Christian worship service. They listened as the pastor delivered the Baccalaureate Sermon.

For some the Baccalaureate Service has become a dim or non-existent memory, but others remember when it was a required part of commencement. Judicial decisions have changed this, but nonetheless, it is a tradition worth sharing.

The Charlevoix Ministerial Association is reviving this honored service of graduation. Graduating seniors, their families, and interested friends will be able to experience what a myriad of scholars have enjoyed. Plan to participate in this voluntary service sponsored by the churches to be held at the First Congregational Church, Wednesday May 25, 7:30 p.m.

Best wishes seniors on your baccalaureate exams...sorry...I mean on your finals.

Opinion

Knight on the Town
Now what?

by Dave Knight

Answer: Aeration, filtration, floculation, capitalism.

Question: What are some approaches that have been mentioned to deal with TCE contamination of Charlevoix city water?

Capitalism?

Well, that's a new one but let's face it...we're open to just about any new ideas at this point.

Only partially in jest, First Ward City Council member Jeff Porter suggests that the city offer a $100,000 prize to anyone who can drill a well that will assure the city of a plentiful, pure supply of water.

Porter's challenge comes after a May 2 electoral rebuff by city voters of a $1.65 million bond proposal that would have financed a lake water treatment plant, the council's chosen solution to the contamination problem.

While the fact that the bond proposal failed was certainly significant and not entirely surprising given all the circumstances, it was the incredibly meager turnout at the ballot boxes that made a puzzling statement.

Less than a quarter of the registered voters in the city - only 572 - exercised their privilege.

What do we make of this?

Theory No. 1: People are convinced that current levels of TCE in the water do not pose a serious health threat and really don't care if it is eliminated or not, even if the decision affects their taxes.

Theory No. 2: Nobody campaigned vigorously either for or against the proposal so the voters were never stimulated to take a strong position on the matter.

Theory No. 3: Bond referendums, in general, when conducted at times other than general elections, just do not generate much excitement. The turnout for the vote on FAA flight station bonding, even more anemic than the May 2 vote, is further testimony to this.

Choose any or all of the above but don't file them under "Valid Excuses". Charlevoixians like to pride themselves on having such admirable traits as concern about environmental quality and close involvement in local government.

The May 2 performance at the ballot box, however, is a direct contradiction to both of these. We must deduce from the voter turnout that there is neither the level of concern about TCE contamination we thought existed nor much real interest in whether local taxes go up or down.

That's a real shame.

Elections aside, what happens with the city water system now?

There have been only informal communications between City Hall and the Department of Public Health since the bond issue failure. The ball would seem to be in the state's court but the Health Department seems to be in no more of a hurry to force the city's hand than the city is to have its hand forced.

Attention is now focused on the search for the source of the contamination. Highly sophisticated equipment is due in town in a matter of days to scan suspected sites magnetically for such culprits as buried drums.

Meanwhile, should the city decide to give a hundred grand to anyone who can drill a clean well, expect to see a lot of folks start digging up their backyards in a hurry.

Last report on Firebreaks details crisis handling

by MARGARET DUERR

The situation facing "Firebreaks" participants at the final session, last week, was set forth in a simulated newspaper account on the front page of the April 29, 1988 issue of "The World Times". In the simulated crisis, fighting between pro-Soviet and pro-Western forces in Yugoslavia already has claimed many lives on both sides. In East Germany, opposition to Soviet control resultd in defection of East German troops who fled across the border into West Germany. Soviet troops pursued them. By April 29, 1988, Soviet forces, led by a column of armored vehicles had penetrated 15 kilometers into West Germany. At this point, Charlevoix advisors to Kremlin and Washington leaders discussed the options open to them and decided what their next move should be. Fortunately for the future of the world, both sets of advisors in Charlevoix, decided to accept a cease-fire proposal offered by a neutral country and the United Nations, requiring a cooling-off period with multi-national forces supervising military withdrawals from disputed areas and requiring U.S.-Soviet talks to begin within one week, aimed at reaching long-term compromises.

Some of the conclusions expressed by Charlevoix participants were: Too much time was required to read through the material, leaving too little time for discussion and role-playing. The game attempted to cover too much in the time available. In spite of these drawbacks, all felt it had been an interesting and educational experience. Perhaps because of the difficulties they experienced in processing so much information and making meaningful decisions, they could better appreciate the problems our real leaders would face in a real crisis when lack of time to study and check information and weigh the options would be a factor.

Everyone agreed that improved techniques for high-level communication between Washington and Moscow are essential in a crisis. They decided to send a letter to the President urging that more sophisticated techniques be used to up-date the too slow "hot-line", which at present is the crisis link between the superpowers' capitals.

A final conclusion, set forth by Ground Zero, is that the threat of nuclear war is one that will not go away - ever. Even total nuclear disarmament, by all countries, if that were possible, would not guarantee permanent freedom from the threat of nuclear war because the knowledge of how to make nuclear weapons would remain. Therefore peace efforts must be directed toward averting the crises that could lead to nuclear war. It is important not to become too rigid about a particular policy. A solution that may be appropriated in one situation may not be in another. As any student of histroy knows, the world's political patterns and alighments are constantly changing. Education in science, in history, in languages and in understanding other peoples and cultures is essential for decision-makers, and for all of us who, in a democracy, are their advisors.

Clockwise
All's quiet here

by Bob Clock

NORTHERN Michiganians are fortunate that the climatological and geological calamities that are regular visitors elsewhere on the planet are virtual strangers to our corner of Earth.

Reference, of course, is to the earthquakes, tidal waves, monsoons, hurricanes, typhoons and other dire events that are gist for the daily news mill.

Oh, once in a while a tornado will strike down in these parts — as one did at Newberry last week. But tornadoes north of the 45th parallel are a fairly rare occurrence — just as they used to be rare in southern Michigan.

Probably the worst natural disasters we are asked to endure are occasional block-busting blizzards in January and February and high winds in the spring and fall. But that's about it.

PERHAPS our greatest blessing is that we are not subject to devastating earthquakes, like the whopper that caused millions of dollars in damage to Coalinga, Calif., last week.

How that community survived without loss of life is one of the major miracles of 1983, since the quake measured 6.5 on the Richter scale could have been far more devastating.

Earthquake expert Kazuya Fijita, an assistant geology professor at Michigan State University, says Michigan is located in the middle of a huge plate of earth and as a result is not very earthquake prone.

Since records have been kept, Michigan has registered only 20 seismic disturbances, all of them no more than cup-rattlers. And three of those — in 1905, 1906 and 1909 — are now believed to have been caused by collapsing mines.

Fijita warns, however, that Michiganians should not become over complacent.

"It's hard to tell about earthquakes in Michigan," he was quoted as saying by United Press International. "Unlike earthquakes on the plate margins, this area can be quiet for hundreds, thousands, or even millions of years and then — boom."

I SPENT A couple of years in Japan in the 1950s and can attest to the fact that the "booms" over there come almost every afternoon in the spring and fall. I'd be working at my desk when suddenly I'd get a funny feeling in my stomach. I'd look out the window and utility poles would be dancing along the railroad right of way.

You sort of got used to it; but you never really got used to it.

The worst quake I remember was in Yokohama in the fall of 1952. I was working in the Customs Building on the shore of Tokyo Bay when the earth suddenly started to jump up and down and roar. The sound was deafening — like a freight train tunneling at top speed under the building.

I ran to the front door of the building where a knot of Japanese workers had gathered. (Doorways are supposed to be relatively safe.) Across the street a huge brick smokestack was swaying at least 20 feet off center. I thought sure it would topple — but it didn't.

THE WORSE JAPANESE earthquake in modern times was the devastating Tokyo quake of 1923. Virtually all of the downtown section of the city was leveled, with the exception of Frank Lloyd Wright's earthquake-proof Imperial Hotel.

However, one of the floors cracked and Wright was puzzled because his floating slab construction should have prevented all damage.

Finally, hotel personnel remembered that the swimming pool had been drained prior to the quake, upsetting the weight balance.

Frank Lloyd Wright was vindicated.

Letters: Candidate's views

Why I'm running

Dear Editor:

As a candidate for the Charlevoix School Board I would like to let the voters know just why I am running for this office. I have been concerned about education and the direction it was taking for some time. In fact it dates back to the innovation of "modern math" and my concern was reinforced with the popular belief that education must be fun and enjoyed by the students. I had always felt I was a voice in the wilderness until recent articles in the "Readers Digest" and a recent cover story article in "U.S. News and World Report" echoed many of my beliefs and concerns. I felt there might be others who felt as I do and decided to run for the office. The recent presidents commission also brought out many of the problems that I feel can be corrected.

For the sake of brevity, I will over simplify. I am concerned for the student who wants to learn or can learn if properly motivated. I am concerned for the overburdened taxpayer who is forced to support an inefficient school system because of an excessively demanding tenure and certification program. The Charlevoix school system is too small to work with the current requirements of tenure and certification as they are now written. There must be some "give backs" in the name of efficiency, economy and, most importantly, quality education. I am also concerned for the qualified and dedicated teachers we do have in the system. There should be some method of rewarding these professionals without "rewarding" those few whose only claim for improved benefits is merely being in the school system for a long time.

I realize I have gored a few sacred cows; tenure, certification and a merit system. We know the present system is not working. The cost per student is increasing. The end product, an educated student, is of lower caliber then twenty years ago. Qualified teachers are leaving education for higher paying jobs in industry. As they leave the educational system must do with what, or who, remains.

There is too much to cover in this type of letter. I would like to talk to anyone or group that might be interested. I realize one vote on the school board will not turn the system around, but if we are to have change, it must start sometime. I can be reached by phone at 547-2659.

Thank you,
John J. Crinnion

A great performance

To the Editor:

We would like to commend the high school and middle school bands, along with Terry Isenbarger, director, for their excellent performance on Thursday evening. There was evidence of musical knowledge, discipline, skill, and initiative on the part of many of the musicians. There has been such an improvement in the past two years. We can be proud of the boys and girls and grateful to Terry.

Church of God hires Mr. and Mrs. Bos as Ministers of Visitation

The Community Church of God in Charlevoix announced this week the hiring of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Bos on the church staff as Ministers of Visitation, according to Rev. Walter G. Hastings, pastor.

Andy and Helen Bos are lay ministers whom the congregation has called to serve on a part-time basis for about six months. Their primary responsibilities will be in visitation, plus assisting in various pastoral duties.

Andy Bos took an early retirement six years ago from an executive position with the Upjohn Company in Kalamazoo, Michigan, where he had served for thirty years. In addition to that, he and his wife Helen, had owned the Bos Insurance Agency in Kalamazoo for a period of ten years.

Andy and Helen Bos left the business world feeling called to serve God in full-time lay ministry. During the past six years they have served in a variety of ministries, including interim pastor at two churches, leading Marriage Enrichment and Spiritual Enrichment Seminars, visitation workshops, a short-term teaching ministry in Jamaica, and as cooks and custodians at a Christain camp. They have traveled about 20,000 miles each year, conducting up to thirty different ministry events a year.

In previous years the Boses had served in a variety of ways as lay persons in their local church, including teaching, youth work, and music. They have five sons and one daughter, all of whom are married, and eighteen grandchildren. They celebrated their forty-fourth wedding anniversary this past year.

The Boses will be residing at 103 Maple Street, North Point, in Charlevoix. The members at the Community Church of God invite you to join them in welcoming Andy and Helen Bos to Charlevoix.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Bos

Her continuing efforts in nursing were recognized and rewarded by Michigan State University in 1975, when she was awarded the Outstanding Nurse Alumni Award-Community Health Care.

District Health Department No. 3 will gain a great deal from the over nine years of experience that Mrs. Paxton has had with the Michigan Department of Public Health, as a maternal child health nurse consultant; and the time she has spent with the City of Detroit Health Department, as a public health nurse and nurse clinician.

In addition to her public health experience, Mrs. Paxton has been a clinical instructor at Saginaw Valley College. She has been a Lecturer in Nursing at the University of Michigan.

During the time that Mrs. Paxton was employed by the Michigan Department of Public Health she developed high regard for the nursing staff of District Health Dept. No. 3. In commenting on the public health nurses Mrs. Paxton said, "I have been impressed by the nurses and the high quality of nursing care given by them at District Health Department No. 3. I am pleased to work with the nurses in providing community health services."

Carol and her husband David have one child, and live in the Harbor Springs area. David is employed by Great Lakes Health Care in Indian River. As a family they enjoy outside activities that Northern Michigan has to offer, such as hiking, camping, canoeing, and cross country skiing.

Rayders drop doubleheader to Sault Ste. Marie

The Charlevoix Rayder baseball team dropped two close games to Sault Ste. Marie Thursday, the first by a 3-0 score and the second by a 4-3 margin.

Charlevoix will host Rogers City here Thursday and play at Elk Rapids Saturday and at Petoskey Monday.

The Soo pitcher, Blair, allowed only two hits as his team scored all three runs in the fourth inning on two walks, an error and hits by Makin and Blair. Chris Putman, the losing pitcher, allowed four hits. Jeff Trimper collected two hits including a double off Blair. Anderson and Peller accounted for the other two hits by the Soo.

The second game was a pitchers' battle with Makin allowing one and Jody Putman and Mike Herriman who relieved him in the fifth giving up eight hits between them.

The Soo scored in the top of the second on an error and a base hit. Charlevoix scored two runs in the bottom of the second on five walks to go ahead 2-1. The Soo came back to score two runs in the top of the third on two hits and an error only to have Charlevoix tie the score in the bottom of the third, sending the game into extra innings. A home run by Anderson in the top of the seventh gave the Soo the victory.

Cris Havens had Charlevoix's single hit. Makin had two, Rambo three including a double, Peller and Holt singles and LaJoi the home run that won the game for the Soo.

Rayder pitcher Chris Putman bears down.

Miller to head BMX association

Dan Miller was elected president of the Charlevoix Township BMX group at a meeting held recently at the Marion Township Hall.

At the same time, Sheilah Warner was named vice president; Susan Coen, secretary and Myrna Cortis, treasurer.

Larry Pop was named headtrack and starting gate official; Mrs. Coen, First Aid; Rosemary Dixon, registration; Tracy Curtis, track director; Louis Raymond, admission gate and bike inspection; Mrs. Warner publicity and advertising.

The first races will be held at the track at Shanahan Field on May 26 and 29 it was announced. This will be the first of 11 races to be held at the local field this season.

The group is presently seeking sponsors. Any sponsors signed by May 15 will have the sponsor's name on all advertising it was announced.

It was also announced that any new driver registering between May 5 and May 29 will be able to enter the first race without charge.

Full membership in the ABA is $19.00; insurance only is $12.00.

The Charlevoix track is one of 13 in the Mich-4 area that extends from Marquette in the north to Ludington and Mio in the south.

At the meeting, the schedule for the season was discussed and new rules reviewed. Riders are advised to make themselves aware of the rules.

The membership was advised that the Medusa Cement Co. had supplied materials for a new starting gate at the track.

A concessions booth will be operated at the track this summer and a flea market featuring bike parts and equipment will also be held at the track.

The track, which is now open, will be open for practice from 7 until 8:30 p.m. every Thursday. Meetings will be held at the track Thursday prior to every home race it was announced.

The Charlevoix race will pay four places. At double point races, six place trophies and two medals will be offered if it is an eight-man main event.

At the present time, there is great need for people to work at the track. Interested persons are asked to contact any officer or project chairperson.

Pre-numbered Motto sheets will be available at the gate this season.

The BMX group is in need of three walkie talkies and radio. Anyone having this equipment and would like to donate it to the group is asked to call any officer or project chairperson.

The group expressed its gratitude to Tom and Kay Wanek for their work in behalf of the BMX project. The couple is leaving the community for southern Michigan.

David Batdorff

Batdorff is first local winner of Medusascholarship

Each year the Medusa Corporation awards scholarships to graduating seniors of dependent children of its employees and retirees.

This yeard David Batdorff, who will graduate from the Charlevoix High School June 5, has been named as the recipient of one of the three scholarships awarded on a competitive basis. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Batdorff. Mr. Batdorff has been a repairman at the South Point plant here since 1977. This marks the first time a Charlevoix graduate has received the scholarship since the plant opened here in 1967.

Other recipients of the scholarships are Diane Olayer who will graduate from the Mohawk Area High School at Wampum, Pa., where her father, Joseph, is a production utility worker at the Wampum, Pa. plant and Joyce Tharpe who will graduate from Perry High School at Clinchfield, Ga., where her father, Richard, is a truck driver at the Clinchfield, Ga. plant.

The award is for $1,500 for the freshman year, with annual renewals for the normal four-year college program, providing the awardee maintains high academic proficiency, a full schedule of classes and otherwise remains in good standing at the college or university of their choice.

Batdorff plans to study science, engineering or computer programming at Huntington College in Huntington, Ind.

As a student at the Charlevoix High School he has been on the honor roll for all four years of his high school career, co-captain of the Rayder varsity football team and active in Campus Life.

He enjoys cross country skiing, swimming, golf and most other participation sports plus music and painting.

Scholarship recipients were selected by a committee of three non-employees of the Medusa Corporation. This year's committee consisted of a professor from John Carroll University, an admissions administrator from Case Western Reserve University and a high school principal of Fairview High School located in one of Cleveland's immediate suburbs.

'Blithe Spirit' is fun and lively

Play review

by DAVE KNIGHT

The Little Traverse Civic Theatre finds itself in a situation not uncommon to civic theater groups.

With an abundance of female acting talent available, the challenge is to find scripts with strong - and numerous - parts for women. The problem is that there just aren't that many such scripts around.

"Vanities", which the LTCT staged earlier this season, is one.

"Blithe Spirit", which opened at the McCune Art Center last week, is, happily, another.

Noel Coward's delicious farce proves to be the perfect venue for three outstanding local actresses. The trio of Pat Stedman of Harbor Springs, Kate Schafer of Boyne City and Beth Strawbridge of Charlevoix make this play worth seeing.

"Blithe Spirit" is billed as a "comedy classic" which means that just about everybody has either seen it or done it. But that only adds to the directorial challenge for Doug Flewelling.

Briefly, the plot involves a husband (Gene Beach) whose deceased wife comes back as a meddlesome ghost (Beth Strawbridge), through the efforts of a wacky medium (Pat Stedman), to complicate his life and that of his present wife (Kate Schafer).

Coward provides crisp dialogue of quintessential British repartee and Flewelling is correct in establishing a lively pace from the start. He should be careful, however, not to sacrifice articulation, so important to the British dialect, for speed. Some of Beach's early expository lines were lost on opening night.

Schafer appears totally at ease with her part thus creating a nice rapport with the audience. Her character, actually the only sane one, must go through more transitions in the play than any other and she makes them all seem logical.

As Elvira, the first wife, Strawbridge is delightfully playful yet cunning and, in the end, more human than ghost. Jill Leestma has done a very nice job on makeup and costuming for Beth.

Stedman is the one who really makes things pop in this production. She has so much fun with her role as the eccentric Madame Arcati one hates to think of her having to wash the makeup off and go back to being normal.

Madame Arcati is right out of a Guindon cartoon. She's weird, batty, loud and funny...and she knows it. Stedman milks this, sweeping across the stage like a huge bird, commanding people hither and thither in a booming voice. She provides a hilarious counterpoint to the prim and proper British, something Coward loved to do every chance he got.

Supporting players Beverly Holden as a nervous maid and John Holec and JoAnn Molera as witnesses to the shenanigans are all perfectly cast and add to the fun.

"Blithe Spirit" will be presented May 12, 13 and 14 in the Ross Stoakes Theatre of the McCune Art Center in Petoskey. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

Kiwanis cites Hamilton for over 20 years of service as sec.-treas.

Every club has one.

Correction - every successful club has one.

One member, that is, who can be depended upon to file reports, take minutes, send letters, keep the books and generally take care of all the chores, important and trivial, that nobody else seems to want to do.

For the better part of the past 21 years, Ralph Hamilton has filled that role for the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club. Though he has served in other capacities from time to time with the club, Hamilton's term as "executary" as he calls it has been almost constant.

It was therefore fitting that, to mark his retirement as secretary-treasurer, the Kiwanians declared last Tuesday, May 3, Ralph Hamilton Day and devoted their regular noontime meeting at the Grey Gables to honoring his contributions to the club.

Wisely, the club isn't letting Hamilton get away with having nothing to do. He has now been appointed Club Historian and will be working on the club's 50th anniversary which will be observed in December, 1984.

While Hamilton appreciated all the attention, he didn't think it his retirement as secretary-treasurer was such a big deal.

"I've retired at least three times over the years," he jokes, "But somehow I always seemed to end up with the job again after somebody couldn't or didn't want it."

"He has done so much for us," said Kiwanis President George Sevastian, "And Ralph has also done so much for the community as well."

Hamilton, a Charlevoix native, has lived and worked in the community almost his entire life. He has been involved in several civic functions over the years including an eight-year stint on the City Council and a key role in reactivating the Charlevoix Historical Society.

For Kiwanis, Hamilton has held the offices of as president, District Lieutenant Governor, and State Chairman. He was named a Distinguished Kiwanian and was a director of the Kiwanis Foundation for several years.

Hamilton has been associated with the club since 1948 and in that time has seen it jump to several different meeting places and times as it grew to its present size of about 50 members.

"It's a service club whose main job is working for the good of the community," says Hamilton, "I think the job we do along with Lions and all the other service clubs is very important to Charlevoix."

In his honor, the club presented Ralph with an engraved plaque on Ralph Hamilton Day, a plaque with a golden quill to mark his tireless efforts as head scribe and bookeeper for so many years.

Retiring Kiwanis secretary-treasurer Ralph Hamilton, left, is congratulated by Kiwanis President George Sevastian at the "Ralph Hamilton Day" observance held by Charlevoix Kiwanians last week.

BODY PAINTING was again one of the most popular activities at the Spring Carnival held recently at the Charlevoix Elementary School. the yearly carnival is sponsored by the school's Parent Advisory Council.

Win ribbons at Ind. Arts Fair

Nine of the 18 entries in the 55th annual Michigan Industrial Arts Fair at Grand Rapids by the Charlevoix High School and Middle School were awarded ribbons.

Ribbons were presented to the top 10 entries in each catagory according to grade level and type of project. Entries had won first or second place ribbons at the recent Region 14-15 Fair at Kalkaska to qualify for state competition.

The high school had four entries, two in metal work and two in drawing. An architectural house plan drawing made by Shawn Purvis received a seventh place ribbon and a belt sander by Mike Pischner, a tenth place ribbon.

At the Middle School level where mechanical drawing was introduced into the curriculum for the first time, Terry Bongr received an eighth place and Robert Sharrow a ninth place ribbon. Two others, Kevin McLenon and Eric Seelye received certificates for participation.

Three middle school students had entered metal hammers they had made. Jim Cluk won a fourth place, Kevin McLenon a fifth place and Joe Sewell a sixth place ribbon for their entries.

Kent Seymour was awarded a sixth place ribbon for a wood turned bowl and Brian Slattery a sixth place ribbon for a wrought iron stove tool.

Approximately 22,000 projects and drawings were entered in the state fair held at the Civic Auditorium in Grand Rapids under the sponsorship of the Michigan Industrial Arts Society.

Region 14-15 entries dominated the fair, winning approximately 40 percent of the awards including three of the four grand awards for the most outstanding projects and one of the 11 divisional awards, Jinsky said.

Instructors are Brian Certa and John Mills at the high school and Jerry Puhl and Jim Jinsky at the middle school.

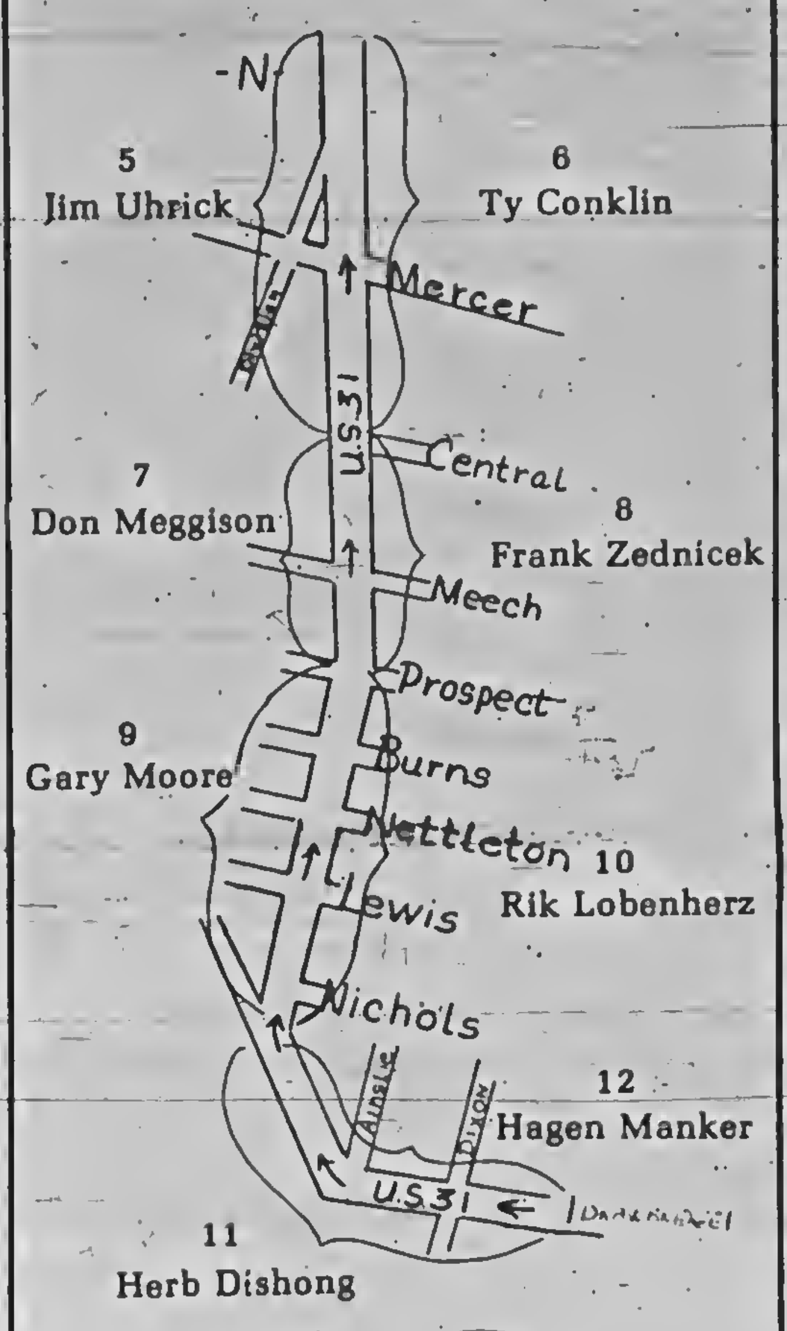
Planting Day at hand for Operation Petunia

North Side Block Captains



Majorette
Doris Lundteigen

by DAVE KNIGHT

Dawn's early light on Saturday, May 21 will find 900 flats of 45,000 petunias on the curbs of Charlevoix wating to be planted by 600 volunteers in the second annual production of "Operation Petunia".

Half again as ambitious as last year, organizers have prepared to plant a double row of the multi-colored petunias along Highway 31 through the city on what has been proclaimed Community Pride Day. Last year's single row involved a mere 30,000 plants and planting was completed by 10 a.m.

This year, the object is to start the planting at abont 8 a.m. and have all flowers in the ground by 11 a.m. That will be just in time for an old fashioned ice cream social in East Park complete witb genuine Keystone Cops all the way from Detroit, period costumes and horse drawn carts.

Preparation of the four miles of flower beds was completed Tbursday, May 12 under the direction of Operation Petunia chairman Dale Boss. Beds were first vacuumed of sand by city crews and then fertilized with liquid cow manure and rototilled by county "Workfare" crews.

According to Boss, the beds are all set for Planting Day.

Volunteers are instructed to report for duty to any of the 12 block captains who will be overseeing the work. The "Good Guys in White Hats" will be easily spotted in their white pith helmets.

According to Boss and Bruce MacArthur, president of project sponsor Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, volunteers of all ages can get involved. Young children under Middle School age should be accompanied by parents.

The first two Middle School students to report to each block captain will receive certificates for free Big Macs at McDonalds.

Those volunteers not physically able to do the actual planting will be assigned to help the block captains.

Coffee and soft drinks will be provided to planters by 7-11 owner Ken Gray.

A command post, (wo)manned by City Council member Shirley Roloff will be set up on Highway 31 South at Harbor Industries to register additional workers.

Following the planting will be a new addition to Operation Petunia this year, the ice cream social for planters and the general public in East Park. Non-planters will be asked for a $2 donation at the ice cream social. But judging from last year's experience, said MacArthur, there will not be many non-planters as the "whole town" appeared to turn out for the event.

Making a special appearance at the social will be four members of the Detroit Police Department garbed in the authentic Keystone Cops uniforms they wear on special duty in that city's Washington Park district.

Making the trip to Charlevoix will be officers Martin Bandemer, George Aubrey, Frank Nazar and Daniel David. The idea of inviting Keystone Cops was conceived by KCB vice president Earl Perrault and Duffy's of Charlevoix owner Gary Zundel who made the arrangements.

The four will enjoy a complimentary weekend in Charlevoix including two nights at the Weathervane Terrace, meals at Duffy's, the Fireside, the Argonne and Juillerets, all donated.

Also on hand for the ice cream social, according to chairman Alvin Ranger, will be the mother of Tom Kneeland to make some of the Tom's Mom's Cookies that have become local favorites.

Charlevoix Historical Society member Bill Price plans to give free rides in his antique horse drawn surry - with the fringe on top. Other Historical Society members have been asked to come dressed in appropriate, old-time costumes.

Additional flats of petunias have been ordered this year, said McArthur, for local residents to plant at their homes and tie in with the city-wide petunia theme. All five of the colors to be planted along the highway will be available at Greenleaf Country Gardens at both their Market Mall location downtown and on Old Norwood Road. They are to be available at special prices through June 1 or as long as they last.

State presses city on TCE problem

by DAVE KNIGHT

Mum was the official word at Monday night's City Council meeting in regard to a May 11 letter from the state Department of Public Health regarding the city's intentions on dealing with tricbloroetbylene (TCE) contamination of its water supply.

Council did agree, however, to meet with Health Department personnel on June 13 to discuss the matter.

Health Department district engineer Timothy Benton responded to the May 2 defeat by city voters of a bond issue to build a lake water treatment plant saying, "This is unfortunate as it leaves the city with a water system that is contaminated..., is vulnerable to additional types of contamination, is of marginal capacity and without the financing to solve the problem."

Benton asked Council to specify its Council approves tax increment financing

by DAVE KNIGHT

Tax increment financing for up to $690,000 worth of downtown improvements took a step closer to reality Monday night as the City Council unanimously approved the plan proposed by the Downtown Development Authority (DDA).

The only major changes in the plan since its council review a week previous were the addition of the property just west of the Weathervane Terrace expansion to the "captured area" and the elimination of a 5 percent cap on increased tax revenues in the captured area for the schools and other taxing juristictions.

Under a revised plan, the schools and other units will receive the lesser amount of either the average tax increase of the entire city minus the DDA area or the average tax increase of the captured area, north of the bridge.

In another related matter, Council agreed to sponsor an application by the Altman Development Corporation for a $1.1 million Federal Urban Development Action Grant. Should the grant be approved, the funds will be loaned by the city to Altman as a mortgage on just the proposed conference center and parking deck at the site of the former Fochtman Oil Company.

Knight on the Town

Setting the table

by Dave Knight

There can be no better reputation for a tourist area than that of being a good host.

Plentiful lodging, fine restaurants, unique shops, ...these are important to the success of any vacation spot. But they are only physical attributes that can be developed anywhere. What vacationers remember much more distinctly - and what determines whether they'll be back - is how they were treated.

Plain and simple.

With the summer season fast approaching, I think it is timely for us in Charlevoix to re-dedicate ourselves to being good hosts. In fact, I think it important enough to warrant this front page editorial comment.

We're not talking about a new industry in town. Charlevoix's dependence on tourism goes back to its earliest history. In one of the first promotional albums published around 1890 (which features the artwork found on page two of today's Courier), Charlevoix is described as "the most natural location for resorting...that is known in the west."

The booklet goes on to sing the praises of Charlevoix's clean air, good fishing and romantic scenery. But it also makes a point to say "Come to Charlevoix and you will find the open right hand of friendship always extended."

As far back as 100 years ago, Charlevoixans realized the importance of being good hosts. The concept is nothing so radical. What is radical are the many plans for private development and civic improvement underway to make the community a physically more attractive, accomodating place to visit. We have detailed those plans often on these pages over the past months and find them encouraging.

Also encouraging are the promotional efforts being undertaken by the Chamber of Commerce, county government and others.

But promotion and development are only part of the commitment to being a good host. That commitment must be made by the entire community and must be firmly in place before a single brick is laid or brochure printed.

Capt. Gene Bridge of Charlevoix pilots an ocean going tug and has visited some of the most exotic tourist meccas in the world. He and his wife Ginny spent a vacation layover in the West Indies this winter. He writes:

"It was during our week's stay on Barbados that we were so impressed with the overall general feeling of happiness throughout the island. We noticed that on nearly all the shops, restaurants, hotels and public buildings' doors and windows were small placards, decals (and, yes, bumper stickers, too!) that read "Make a friend for Barbados today.

"Of course what we are talking about here is the tourist dollar which all of the islands depend on so much. I can tell you that one would be hard pressed to find a sales person that wasn't courteous and smiling (even though they knew that 90 percent of the people in their shops were just browsing). Or to find a waiter or waitress that wasn't super pleasant (even though he or she knew that a 10 percent tip was already figured in the check).

County served over 3,000 meals in April

by PEG OHLE

The Charlevoix County Commission on Aging served 3,016 meals during April at its meal sites in Charlevoix, Boyne City, and East Jordan.

Of these, 343 meals were served in Charlevoix, 1,218 in Boyne City, and 1,455 in East Jordan. In Charlevoix, the meals were cooked and served in the lunch room of the high school four days a week. Meals for Boyne City and East Jordan were cooked at the Senior Center in East Jordan and served five days a week in the City Building in Boyne City and in the Senior Center in East Jordan.

In addition to those eating at the meal sites, 81 shut-ins received home-delivered meals in Charlevoix and 513 shut-ins received meals in the Boyne City-East Jordan area.

Those participating in the Commission on Aging meal program are not charged a set price but instead are asked for contributions. So far this year, the contributions have averaged 60 cents in Charlevoix, 66 cents in Boyne City, and 69 cents in East Jordan.

In April, the cost of each meal averaged out to $1.61 cents, so there was a deficit of almost $1 on each meal served. This was made up by a United States Department of Agriculture grant, in-kind services, and other government sources.

Dist. Health Dept. may add to WIC

by PEG OHLE

District Health Department Number 3 has announced that it will receive sufficient funds from the State of Michigan WIC (Women's, Infant's, Children's) program to add 500 to 600 persons to the program during the next few months.

The State has been awarded $3.7 million from the Federal Jobs Bill to help Michigan address health problems of more pregnant women, infants, and children.

Nurse Linda Yaroch of the Health Department told members of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week that as of January of this year, 351 women, infants, and children in Charlevoix County were receiving WIC aid. Of these, 141 were residents of Boyne City, 36 residents of Boyne Falls, 71 residents of Charlevoix, and 126 residents of East Jordan. In the four-county Health Department District, approximately 1,300 residents were receiving WIC aid.

The WIC program provides nutritonal food for eligible children under the age of five, and pregnant women. The food is provided through coupons which are cashed at local food stores for specific nutritional foods such as milk, eggs, and cereal. WIC also puts Health Department nurses in contact with persons whom they might not otherwise see, thus enabling the nurses to assess their general health. Education on proper eating habits is also a part of the WIC program.

While recipients of WIC aid must meet certain financial need criteria, the guidelines are not as strict as for some other types of programs. Ms. Yaroch pointed out that only 31 percent of the District's WIC program participants have incomes low enough to qualify for Medicaid.

CG to observe Armed Forces Day

The Charlevoix Coast Guard Station will observe Armed Forces Day, Saturday, May 21, with an open house at the station located on the channel between Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix adjacent to the railroad bridge, Chief John G. Foster, Commanding Officer, has announced.

Tours of the station and related facilities will be conducted from 12 noon until 4 p.m. to acquaint the public with the facility Chief Foster said.

The Coast Guard Auxiliary headed by Velda Richter of Petoskey will be on hand to do any motor boat examination requested and to answer questions Chief Foster added.

Charlevoix has been the site of a Coast Guard facility since 1889 when the first Lifesaving Station was constructed on the Pine River Channel. The present station was constructed in 1962.

The station is reached via Dixon Ave., Chicago Ave. and Coast Guard Drive which runs parallel with the C & O Railroad tracks.

The public is invited to attend the open house.

He puts the "Vane" in Weathervane

by DAVE KNIGHT

Will Case-Daniel, metal sculptor from Suttons Bay, did not make the decision easy for the owners of the Weathervane Terrace expansion project.

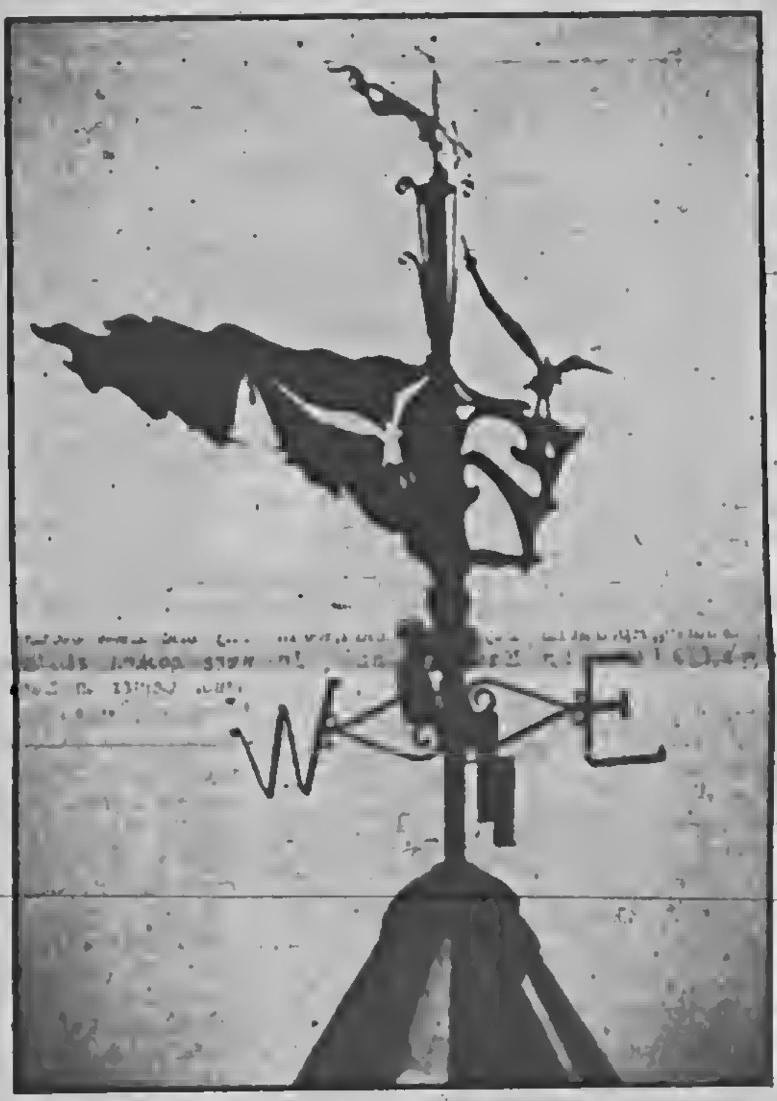
Commissioned to create a weathervane for the highest of the three new towers on the 33 new units being constructed, Case-Daniel produced three pieces worthy of consideration.

When the voting was over last Thursday, the winner was an all-metal work featuring three wind indicators of varying sensitivity incorporated into a pennant-like theme with cutouts of a sailboat and seagull. It was immediately hoisted into place by a crane before a recount of the vote could be taken.

Two other choices offered by Case-Daniel included weathervanes with more variations on the seagull theme using stained glass and brass trim. Those will be offered to future buyers, he said. Case Daniel is primarily a jewelry designer but he also designs and builds custom works such as the Weathervane's weathervane, a seven-foot sculpture that doesn't look nearly that big from the ground.

Because of the difficulty cutting through heavy gauge metal, Case-Daniel sent the main portion of the vane to a metalworks firm which used a laser device to make the delicate cutouts. Not much is wasted - even the cutouts were returned and incoporated into this and other works. One can see the gull that was cut out of this piece attached on the oppostite sude.

On the very top is a tiny wind indicator, about three inches long, which will turn "if a fly buzzes by" said Case-Daniel. Next level down is a brass indicator that will respond to beezes from 5 to 10 miles an hour. The major part of the vane, the pennant, will indicate only the prevailing winds and will not turn at every puff or gust.



The weathervane features three separate wind indicators.

Even driving through the countryside in our rented "Moke" (small jeep-like vehicle not much bigger than a golf cart) the natives cutting sugar cane or just sitting on the steps of the general store would look up, smile and wave greetings. So what if perhaps some of this 'happiness' might have been put on just a little for the stranger...heck, it works! We knew as we boarded our flight for Curacao that we would come back to the island some day."

Gene hits the proverbial nail squarely.

He's going back to Barbados, not to sample the fine rum or lounge on the white beaches but because he was treated like a welcome guest...by everyone he with whom he came in contact.

Being a good host must be a community-wide commitment in Charlevoix. Those who will leave the task to only the motel owners, waitresses and gift shop clerks don't realize that it is the overall atmosphere of hospitality in a community that a visitor remembers.

And those who believe the tourist dollar benefits only the motels, restaurants and gift shops are badly mistaken. The $2 million or so spent in the area by tourists last season eventually bought a wide variety of goods and services in the community. More importantly, it created jobs.

Toward making Charlevoix a good host, we can all help set the table.

Each one of us must consider ourselves and our employees ambassadore in every sense of the word. Sure we all know where the public beaches are but how about the nearest public phone? Where can a dog be walked? What days are the parking meters in force?

When a person asks "What's there to do in town?" we'd better be able to tell him or he won't be around for long.

Hospitality is sometimes unspoken. Clean, bright windows and nicely swept sidewalks tell the visitor immediately "We fixed the place up for you. Hope you like it!"

Even little things like offering some helpful directions or being patient in a shopping line or just smiling are things we can all do.

Did anyone say this business of being a good host was always easy? I didn't.

My first job in the tourist industry was shoveling manure behind a stagecoach ride in a theme park. Spend a summer at the south end of a northbound team of horses and you'll know how hard - really hard - it is to smile at the camera as some eager vacationere record their experience on the Instamatic.

Just to help me - and the rest of the 300 people who worked at the park - remember, management had printed on every paycheck: "This is tourist money." Slightly crass, but it got the message across.

Being a good host is not demeaning. It is not undignified. To the contrary, it is honorable the world over and can be very, very satisfying, not only in the monetaristic sense. It can foster the pride we all have in Charlevoix and remind us how lucky we are to live here.

This season, every day and in every way, let's tell our guests:

"Welcome! We've been expecting you! Glad you could make it!"

Chances are we'll see them back next year.

Clockwise

So long to a good neighbor

by Bob Clock

MEMBERS OF THE Clock family are among the many Charlevoixans with warm memories of the late Albert (Bert) Lehman who made his home on Lewis Street for almost 20 years.

Bert was a good neighbor in every sense of the word — as everyone living in the vicinity could attest.

If you needed a particular tool to do a particular job around the house, you could be sure Bert had just what you needed in his basement workshop. And after you borrowed it, you could be sure Bert would show up at the back door a few minutes later to help you get the job done.

There isn't a plumbing fixture or electrical outlet in our house that Bert hasn't worked on at one time or another.

He had a knack for working with his hands — although it bothered him in recent years that stiffening joints (and missing fingers) prevented him from doing the things he used to do.

"But even though he couldn't do the job himself, he could tell you what had to be done on the telephone," commented another good neighbor, Freda Stewart.

Bert also was an expert gardener, producing in his backyard most of the fruits and vegetables he and his wife Stella needed to see them through the winter. It was nice to have an expert just across the alley with advice on how to battle cutworms, blossom-end blight and infestations of aphids.

His raspberry patch was the envy of the neighborhood and I can't tell you how many other patches he started with shoots from his own garden.

BERT WAS BORN in Tunbridge Wells, England, in 1901, the son of a German father and a British mother. Because of the German connection, the family was persecuted by the British government at the start of World War I and the family high-tailed it to the United States, settling in the German colony in Cincinnati.

Bert never had many good things to say about his homeland.

"Wouldn't you like to go back, just to see how it's changed?" I'd ask.

Bert would shake his head. "No, I've had it with England. I'm an American now."

BERT TRAVELED in the West as a young man, satisfying a boyhood yearning to mingle with cowboys and Indians. Later he moved to Detroit where he worked in the auto plants and became an excellent machinist. Still later he moved to Munising where he owned and operated his own charter fishing boat and worked as a school janitor. He retired in the early 1960's and moved to Charlevoix where Stella was born and raised.

Bert was an avid reader and kept abreast of everything happening in the world.

During one of my last talks with him he made a very sage observation about the English language.

"Isn't it astounding," he commented, "that the sum total of human knowledge — all of the literature, all of the mathematics, all of the science, all of the history, from the pyramids right down to space exploration — can be summed up in 26 little letters and 10 digits? That just occurred to me last night and I am amazed that I never thought of it before.

BERT'S HEALTH started failing rapidly about a month ago — heart problems complicated by kidney problems. He was in and out of the hospital a couple of times, but nothing seemed to help.

"This dying," he said to me one day as I stood at the kitchen sink helping him with his dishes. "This dying is a pain in the ass."

Bert was never one to mince words.

Saturday evening, May 7, Bert sat down at his kitchen table to have a pot pie for supper. He liked pot pies because they were easy to fix. Mrs. Pat Pence, who lives across the street, found him there the next day after she noticed he hadn't opened his drapes.

What a nice way for a good neighbor to go.

intentions to his department in light of the bond proposal defeat. He reminded Council that neither "extraordinary measures to reduce levels" nor "health advisories for the general public" have been demanded by the Health Department to date because of the city's ongoing progress in solving the problem.

He warned of possible stronger action on the part of the state if the city does not continue working on the problem, however, saying, "Since the proposed plan to replace the existing source has been set back indefinitely, a re-evaluation of the department's position as well as a review of the long-term health effects and possible precautionary measures that should be taken due to the longer exposure will need to be made."

Council passes TIF

Stipulations made by the city were that the parking structure be available for public parking, that the conference center be made available to other motel and hotel operators in the city for a fee and on a reservation basis and that the planned hotel complex across the street be run as a commercial short term lodging operation for the life of the mortgage.

Letters: Firebreaks Response

Not our decision

To the Editor:

I would like to respond to the article "Future of the World Being Decided in Firebreak's Game" by Margaret Duerr. With due respect to Mrs. Duerr I can't see the future of the world decided by anyone other than God almighty. There are no fictional scenarios being played out on this earth, the communists are dead serious and so should we of the free would be serious in opposing their tyranny.

The world is now engaged in a deathly struggle - the forces of darkness against light - the forces of war against peace - the tyrants of slavery against the children of liberty. We cannot ignore this battle, any more than we can ignore the criminals in our streets. To ignore either is not to keep peace; it is to entertain the enemy. Thus, as we assess current and unfolding world affairs, we must face this question: Can a christian be a pacifist? or, should a christian be a pacifist?

If by the term "pacifist" we mean someone who prays for peace, someone who walks in peace and works for peace, someone who is willing to take a stand for a just peace and pay its price, then all christians should be pacifists.

But if by "pacifist" we mean those who would buy peace by selling themselves, and us to the tyrant - those who are not willing to protect their loved ones - those who will not defend the defenseless - those who will not keep strong this land that shields their lives and liberty, or those who permit others to fight the battle and then come forth to enjoy the fruits of victory - those who yield to the atheistic forces that suppress the freedom to proclaim the Gospel - if this is what it means to be a pacifist, then the christian cannot go along!

Are we not urged to love one another? Are not all men our brothers, all women our sisters in Christ? Where is the love in sitting back while your brothers and sisters are slaughtered by a godless tyrant? Where is the love in standing by while barbarians invade, enslave, ravage and ruin? Where is the love in being mute and motionless while others are fed into gas ovens, or machine gunned at the side of some communal grave, or getting a bullet in the neck for no reason at all?

To mutter pious mouthings in the face of such depravities is not love, it is total selfishness. It is not christian; it is a cop out. And in it there is no honor, and no true peace.

Some may rationalize that such indifference and such indolence is peace - and peaceful. Pacifism that permits others to be sacrificed on the altar of despotism is, at the very least, misdirected piety. It is born of the same stupidity and fear that gave us Munich. It spawns the same myopic mentality that would have us coddle the criminal in our streets and prisons and throw the victim to the ground. It promotes the distorted reasoning that we should unequally yoke ourselves with the forces of darkness - that we should play footsie with our enemies and abandon ourselves to their holocaust.

Jesus said in Luke 11:21,22 "When a strong man armed keepeth his palace, his goods are in peace."

In I Timothy 5:8 it says "But if any provide not for his own, and specially for those of his own house, he hath denied the faith, and is worse than an infidel."

If anyone wants to read a scenario that is based on God's word, read the Book of Revelation. Besides learning of what's going to happen for sure in the future, it promises a blessing to all who reads it: In Revelation 1:3 it says, "Blessed is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of this prophecy, and keep those things which are hidden therein, for the time is at hand."

Thank you,
Robert L. Olson

Save the schooner

Dear Sir and people of Charlevoix,

I have before me a picture from the March 23 issue of the "Charlevoix Courier", which shows Cap. Allie Moore driving a home made dog sled, "while executing his clown tricks". Allie indeed was a "legendary Charlevoix native" and those who were most fortunate, as I was, to know him and call him friend, will never forget him, and his many talents.

One of the talents that he possessed, as a result of personal experience, was his ability to build ship models of the Great Lake Schooners that he knew so well. One of these models, a small scale sailing model of a two masted schooner, which Allie built, so he told me, from a Dory, is presently rotting away on the banks of the Pine River near the Weathervane Inn...and those who knew Allie and his charming wife think that this neglect of a precious treasure created by one of your most "legendary natives" is a disgraceful and outrageous insult and an appalling example of municipal myopia!! A number of Charlevoix people either saw Allie sail this beautiful model on Round Lake, or have pictures of his sitting down inside the little boat, manipulating the various lines and levers that enabled the model schooner to sail as a real ship might do.

I strongly urge the city of Charlevoix to wake up and do something to rescue and restore "The Victory" which is the name Allie proudly gave the little model schooner, before it disintegrates further and falls down the bank..to the disgrace and shame of the city of Charlevoix, and the deep disgust and anger of Allie's friends!

I am sure that the city fathers can discover some way to obtain possession of the model schooner, remove it from its weed infested location and place it under shelter, where it can be cleaned, preserved and rebuilt.

If it is a matter of money, you might consider taking some of the taxes that you increasingly extort from the people of your city, both natives and those, like myself, who suffer increasing taxation without representation, and use it for this most worthy project..before the ravages of the weather and the indifference of those who live where Allie did, cause Allie's well done schooner model to rot beyond repair.

I ferverently hope that this summer, legal and effective ways are carried out to save for those of us, and our children, one of the many good works of a man, who was our friend, and who gave so much of himself to Charlevoix ... and to its children..

Most Sincerely, and with urgency..Get Moving!
Thomas L. Ramsey
Temperance, MI

P.S. Perhaps you could organize a city or county wide project names S.O.S (Save Our Schooner) or S.A.S. (Save Allie's Schooner) to collect donations or fine and-or money to be used to purchase, restore, and fittingly display this municipal treasure. (Believe me, if there is any way that I can obtain the schooner model for myself, I intend to do it.)
T.R.

Energy power

To the Editor:

Since World War II the government of the United States of America has considered that the oil reserves of the Middle East to be worth going to war to defend from the Soviet Union. If the Soviet Union did not have large oil reserves of their own that threat could have been more serious. In the future there is the possibility of the Soviet Union and the United States expending more nuclear energy to destroy each other over Middle East oil than there is energy in the oil of the Middle East: The nuclear energy available in the United States stockpile of uranium 238 already mined and stockpiled, if used in breeder reactors, is equal to five times the energy in the oil reserves of all the OPEC nations combined.

Nuclear energy can be used for either destructive military, or constructive peaceful, uses. The United States has led the world in the research and development of military uses of nuclear energy, fission bombs, fission fusion bombs, fission fusion fission bombs, nuclear powered submarines and surface naval vessels. Peaceful development of nuclear energy in the United States has been secondary to military development. One nuclear powered passenger ship and one merchant ship were developed, tested, and retired, while a nuclear powered fleet of submarines and surface naval vessels remain in operation. United States nuclear power stations are upscaled versions of naval power plants.

Newbreeder nuclear reactors could supply the world with power for decades using known uranium reserves, while breeder reactors could supply the world with power for centuries using known uranium and thorium reserves. United States research and development in this technology is lagging behind the rest of the world. The Soviet Union, West Germany, Japan, France, England and India have breeder reactor programs.

Poppy Days plans are set by Amer. Legion

Plans for the Annual Poppy Days were completed at the recent meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary which followed the monthly potluck supper held recently with members of the Leslie T. Shapton Post of the American Legion.

Mrs. George Lochner, Poppy chairman, reported that the poppies made at veterans hospitals along with posters and cannisters had arrived. She asked all members to assist in the annual Poppy sale. Funds derived from the sale will be used to aid veterans and their children. The sale is scheduled for May 19-21.

Mrs. Lester Smith will make the wreaths of poppies to be placed at the veterans' memorials.

Following the annual Memorial Day parade on Monday, May 30, veterans and auxiliary members participating in the parade will gather at the American Legion post home for refreshments. Mrs. Gertrude Holt, Mrs. Clarence Goldstick, Wanda Scheff, Mrs. William Farkas, Mrs. Ray Wood and Mrs. Lochner volunteered to make cakes for the event.

Mrs. Josephine Bindi reported that ten handkerchiefs and scarves had been sent to the VA hospital at Battle Creek where veterens may use them for Mother's Day gifts. She also reported that 17 cards had been sent to shut-ins and others who have been ill.

Plans were also made for serving a dinner to the members of the Michigan Chapter of Submariners of World War II who, with their wives, will be meeting here over the Memorial Day weekend.

Hostesses at the May meeting were Mrs. Farkas, Mrs. Holt, Mrs. Scheff and Mrs. Ivy Woodcock. Mrs. Goldstick and Mrs. Lochner will host the June meeting.

Final plans were also made for the salad-casserole luncheon to be held at the post home Wednesday, May 11. The hours will be from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Ticket price is $2.75 and $2.50 for senior citizens.

Voisin named Band Boosters' president

Don Voisin was elected president of the Band Boosters at a recent meeting of the organization. He will succeed David Fowler in the position.

Other officers elected at the same meeting are Kenneth Gray, vice president; Jan Raecke, secretary; and Terri D'Angelo, treasurer.

During the past year the Band Boosters have held several fund raising projects which resulted in a total of more than $1,200 raised to support the instrumental music projects in the Charlevoix schools. Chief among these this year has been new uniforms for the Middle School bands. At the recent meeting, the uniforms were ordered and will be here for use this fall. The funds will also be used to purchase medals and new uniforms for the marching band flag corps. High on the priority list for the future will be funds to purchase a portable band shell.

Fund raising projects included the Bean Soup supper sponsored by the Band Boosters along with the Band Festival concessions booth and the sale of "Go Rayder" stickers.

Terry Isenbarger, director of instrumental music in the Charlevoix schools, expressed his appreciation of the support given the program by the band boosters and the community.

CHIP program to discuss drug abuse and family

Charlevoix families are invited to attend a two-part program, presented by Bob Sell of CHIP Counseling Center, addressing the particular problems introduced into family life by alcohol and other drugs, Wednesday, May 18th and next Wednesday, May 25th, 7:30-9 p.m., at Bethany Lutheran Church in Charlevoix.

Material presented will highlight the role of the family in promoting healthy communication and action to prevent some of the all-too-common destructive patterns when use and-or abuse become involved. Time allowed will offer flexibility for discussion of particular concerns of the participants.

People of all ages took part in the Charlevoix Area Hospital's Second Annual Health Fair last Wednesday.

Designed to increase public awareness of preventive medicine and health care issues, Charlevoix Area Hospital's Health Fair featured a variety of exhibits and activities. Blood pressure checks, blood tests for anemia and blood typing, computerized pulse rate tests were very popular. Literature provided by such organizations as the District Health Department, Planned Parenthood, Charlevoix County Hospice, the Cancer Society, the Lung Association, and dentist Dr. David Strawbridge was also available.

Local Cub Scouts became more aware of their own health as they lined up for blood testing and blood pressure checks, (above). The computerized Stress Testing, (below) offered by the Seventh Day Adventists, helped visitors to the Health Fair see how well they were handling stress in their daily lives.

Charlevoix Area Hospital nursing staff and representatives of local health care agencies conducted the activities and talked with interested visitors.

"How to start own business" is Extension program topic

For Saints and Sinners

by Dave Yingling
United Methodist Church

A challenge is offered to us, a challenge that Paul offered to the Corinthians. That challenge is to be, "Fools for Christ".

What is a fool? Webster says a fool is a "person lacking in judgement", "a person who is victimized", "a harmless deranged person", "a person who has a lack of good sense or judgment", "a comic player", "a person who spends time aimlessly", "a meddler, a jester." I like the last few meanings. Is that a description of today's "average" Christian? Well — maybe?

Let's look at what Paul says to the Corinthians (verse 8), "You have everything you need! Already you are rich! You have become kings, even though we are not! Well, I wish you really were kings, so that we could be kings together with you." (G.N.)

Paul describes the Corinthians as they acted – full, rich, kings – not as they acturally were – quarrelsome, petty, and immature.

Here we see Paul using irony in hopes to shame his critics into belief. Is he speaking to today's Christian?

Verse 10 - "We are fools for Christ' sake, but - you are wise in Christ."

A "fool" is a meddler. Someone who asks questions - "How come" or "why?" There are no assumptions nor are there acceptances of the status quo!

A "fool" is also playful. That is, a fool can bring to the seriousness of life a sense of humor that cuts through the sometimes felt anger or hostility. A fool can help us laugh at ourselves much like Alan Alda did in his role as Hawkey in "Mash". Without that playful nature we would collapse under the weight of cynicism and pessimism.

The message of God's love and Christ's resurrection is joyous, celebrative, not "doom and gloom."

Paul called the Corinthians "wise". In what way were they "wise?" They were "cold, calculating, private and fearful." Wise in that sense was "normal" behavior in Paul's day and to a degree ours too.

What Paul calls us to is "foolishness" - to "bless people - when we are insulted", "to love, when we are hated". Christian humility was and is a virtue. This kind of behavior looks kind of crazy, kind of deranged, sort of foolish, and very, very Christian.

RUNNING IN THE RAIN was the first leg of the Charlevoix Lions' Journey For Sight Relay race held Saturday. The other legs of the race involved rowing in the rain, bicycling in the rain and walking in the rain. Despite the inclement weather, 12 teams participated in the race raising thousands of dollars in pledges for the University of Michigan's Kellog Eye Center. Shown above is the first heat of the race which started on the Charlevoix Golf Course and finished in East Park.

Chx. Township ready to turn on the water

All systems appeared go as of last week for Charlevoix Township to put its north side well on line.

At the May 9 meeting of the Charlevoix Township Board, Supervisor Oscar Strood announced that the northside well was operational and that, following a final series of tests, it could be supplying water to northside township residents by this week.

Difficulties with a cloudiness of the water have hampered development of the well which was drilled last year to replace the former northside well that collapsed.

Plans to add a 100,000 settling tank to the system were stymied May 2 when township voters turned down a one-mill water system improvement proposal. The tank, however, is not an absolute neccessity to the township system and northside well water has been approved by the Health Department for public use.

In other action, the Board:

-Accepted the resignation of JoAnn Elzinga as township clerk. Mrs. Elzinga resigned the position effective June 30 because of a planned move to Hayes Township. She has been township clerk for six and a half years. The Board will appoint a new clerk to complete Mrs. Elzinga's current term which expires in November, 1984.

-Was presented a bill for $6581 from Attorney Roy Hayes who is representing the township in the matter of the dispute over a right-of-way extending to Lake Michigan off the west end of Division. Judge Martin Breighner has disqualified himself from the case bringing the litigation to a standstill until the Surpeme Court appoints a new judge.

-Named Mrs. Pat Sherman to the Board of Appeals.

-Decided to send the City of Charlevoix the bill for election costs on the consolidation election held May 2.

Construction up but not for local residents

by PEG OHLE

Housing construction is up in Charlevoix County, but few County residents will live in the houses that are being built.

That is the assessment of Howard Carson of the County Department of Building Inspection, who reported to the Board of Commissioners last week.

"Most of the building that is being done are second homes on lake property," Carson told them. "Beaver Island, Walloon Lake, Lake Charlevoix, they're all being built up by out-of-town people who will spend, sometimes, only a couple of weeks a year in the houses."

These second homes are keeping local contractors busy, Carson said, to the extent that some are now turning down more business. "As a matter of act," he added, "I know of at least three houses that are being built on spec by contractors from down below."

The upswing in building activity was just beginning to show in April, when the Department of Building Inspection issued 42 permits.

Thirty-one CHS students inducted into local National Honor Society chapter

Thirty-one new members were inducted into the Charlevoix High School chapter of the National Honor Society at an impressive ceremony witnessed by parents, friends and fellow students at the high school cafeteria Friday.

He then addressed the subject of service; Michael R. Jim Laffan of Petoskey, who heads the Campus Life program in northern Michigan, as the guest speaker, addressed the subject of "Choices" urging the students, as leaders of tomorrow, to make wise choices. He concluded by asking "What is the most important time? place? person? and then answering his questions by stating that the most important time is NOW; the most important place is HERE where you are at a given moment and the most important person is the person you are with at that given time and place.

Miss Thompson inducted the new members as their names were announced by Mr. Bergmann. Mr. Martin administered the society pledge. Amy Sell, the 1983-84 president, then welcomed the new members. CHS students participate in special day

Ted Miller, foreign language teacher at Charlevoix High School, participated in a recent Foreign Language Day at Central Michigan University at Mt. Pleasant along with 48 Charlevoix High School students.

The students were among some 1500 from all over the state who observed and participated in song, dance and skit competitions in French, German, Russian and Spanish.

Of the Charlevoix contingent, 32 were Spanish students and 17 were French students. Miller said that the students enjoyed the cultural presentations as well as the opportunity to meet foreign language students from other schools.

He added that he is seeking assistance from anyone in the community who can instruct the foreign language classes in international dances, especially Spanish or French.

Sothard's Honors Program teaches students to help themselves to goals

by ANNE KELLY

When Tom Sothard was 13, he mortgaged his coronet for $175 in order to raise money for a trip to Chicago with three friends. All the parents involved were supportive and in agreement over the specifics, but basically the kids were on their own. He never forgot the value of that experience.

So it was that soon after assuming the role as moderator of the Middle School Honors Program, 4 years ago, that Sothard devised a way to afford his students with a similar experience.

Students begin earning money and salting away the funds in 6th grade so that by the time they reach eighth grade they have enought to make the trip. Fundraising includes: bake sales, a cut of Courier subscriptions, dances, raffles, a booth at the Venetian Festival, and a car wash. Monies netted this year amounted to about $2400. Next year the goal is for $3000.

The Chicago trip, recently taken by 9 eighth grade students along with Sothard and nine other chaperones included visits to the Museum of Science and Industry, Marshall Field's, the Water Tower Place, Shedds Acquarium, Adler Planetarium and a theater performance of "Zorba the Greek". They traveled to Chicago from Kalamazoo by train and returned to Charlevoix by chartered plane.

Just how does one qualify for the Honors Program? Sothard explained that students in the program usually average in the top 8 percent of their grade and have excelled in both the Metropolitan and Otis-Lennon school ability tests. Those results combined with teacher referral and parental evaluation are pretty good indicators that a student is prime for the acceleration and enrichment which the Honors Program provides.

Convinced that the two skills which must be mastered if one is to be truly educated are math and language, Sothard has chosen math as a major emphasis of his program. As he explained, "math is one area that advanced students surveyed later on had found least challanging and fulfilling." He feels that his students appreciate the challange of accelerated work and makes sure that the five hours per week that they meet is both math oriented as well as providing a smattering of other subjects. Honor students have been offered exposure to Algebra, French, typing, tutoring, and the micro-computer.

As extra curriculars, students have visited Interlochen, participated in regional math competition, visited a courtroom and Advance Power Plant and have heard speakers from different countries. They turn in research papers every marking period and will have read many classics before high school.

One class provided an energy audit which they prepared for the Board of Education. They learn to manage money in planning for their trip and have chess tournaments.

If asked for a philosophy in educating these advanced students, Sothard would admit to being "as interested in attitude as in content." He enjoys watching students undergo a great deal of emotional as well as intellectual growth over the three years. He feels that the kids gain a certain sense of self confidence and work up to their potentials with the renewed challenge the program offers. They seem to enjoy and be stimulated by working among students of their own ability level.

A graduate of Northern Michigan University in Business Administration, Sothard earned his M.A. in Educational Administration from Michigan State. He worked for 3 years in a residential treatment center for emotionally disturbed boys before joining the Middle School staff in 1974. Here he learned a little bit about what was failing these boys in public education and is "hopefully" applying that knowledge in working with his students today.

Charlevoix County made a big purchase last week. It bought $2,704,385.82 worth of delinquent 1982 real estate taxes.

This is the unpaid portion, 18.71 percent, of the $14,455,954.90 in real estate taxes levied for 1982.

As a result of the purchase, those still owing 1982 taxes will pay them direct to the County rather than to the Township or City, with the County collecting and keeping the delinquent tax fee as well as the original tax bill. As of this month, the fee is seven percent, but it increases one percent a month.

The County will return the $2,704,385.82 to eight school districts, 15 townships, three cities, one village, two Intermediate School Districts, and the County treasury in the amounts due them. As in past years, this will assist the school districts and local governments in their financial planning.

The money will be distributed as follows:

Townships, cities, and village, $332,002.58; school districts, $1,948,863.13; Intermediate School Districts, $123,947.88; and Charlevoix County, $299,552.43.

County introduces economic plan

by PEG OHLE

The overall goal of Charlevoix County is to attain "A physical, social, and economic environment that provides every individual the opportunity to achieve, limited only to the extent that these actions do not threaten the health, safety, and general welfare of others".

With these words, the Charlevoix County Planning Department introduces it 1983 Overall Economic Development Plan. The Plan further defines physical, social and cultural, and economic goals.

The physical goal is set forth as "An orderly development pattern that provides for all types of uses, with particular emphasis on preserving open space, including agricultural, timber production, and mineral extraction lands for present and future use, along with maintaining in a natural state, lands that are unique and sensitive in the County (wetlands, groundwater recharge areas, sand dunes, and high risk erosion areas).".

The physical goal is broken down into several categories – residential, commercial, industrial, agricultural, recreation, and unique and sensitive lands.

The social and cultural goal includes "Public facilities and programs that provide the necessary services required by our population, that can be economically

Petunias are in; 45,000 planted easily

by DAVE KNIGHT

Any fears that an increase of 15,000 more flowers would make the second annual version of Operation Petunia too much for Charlevoix to handle were dispelled in short order Saturday morning.

Even with fewer volunteers than last year on hand to plant a double row of multi-colored petunias along both sides of U.S. 31 through town, the project was completed in almost record time.

A total of 45,000 petunias now line the city's main thorofare in what has become, in its second year, a new Charlevoix claim to notoriety.

The first of twelve designated sectors to be completed was on the north side. Block captain Rik Lobenherz reported that his team was done at 9:10 a.m. Lobenherz cited the vigorous encouragement lent by his assistant, Cissy Bickersteth, as instrumental in the rapid finish.

Just about all the flowers, on both north and south sides, were in the ground by 10:30 a.m., roughly 30 minutes ahead of schedule.

The weather also cooperated nicely as hazy skies cleared just as planting was being completed to provide beautifully sunny conditions for the Ice Cream Social held for Operation Petunia Volunteers in East Park following the work.

Saturday's activity began long before most city residents stirred.

The Dale Boss and Dawson Way families were on the job at about 4:30 a.m. distributing by truck five flats of petunias to markers at every 100 feet of roadway.

By the scheduled start of planting time at 7:30 a.m., all 900 flats of the flowers were at curbside awaiting the planters.

Each of the twelve teams headed by block captains had their own system but most agreed that the 20 ten-foot templates constructed and donated by Clarence Goldstick were the keys to finishing the project ahead of schedule. Using the templates, a team of two would proceed the actual planters and mark exactly where each flower belonged.

President Bruce MacArthur of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, sponsor of Operation Petunia, said that an orientation meeting for block captains held Friday evening at the LaCroft lounge was also very helpful this year.

The planter winning the distinction of having traveled the farthest distance to participate was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Heininger who came from Aspen, Colorado.

Winning a sailing spin on Round Lake for having the largest family out planting were the Rich Kelly's. The complimentary ride was provided by Cliff Biddick and the Charlevoix Yacht Club.

Two dozen certificates for free Big Macs, courtesy of McDonalds restaurant, were handed out to the first Middle School students who reported to their block captains.

Said MacArthur, "I think those Big Macs really helped get the kids out of bed."

At the Ice Cream Social following the planting, four members of the Detroit Police Department dressed in authentic Keystone Cops uniforms were special guests.

Also on hand was Mrs. Dorothy Kneeland, mother of Tom Kneeland who has made Tom's Mom's Cookies nationally famous. Mrs. Kneeland distributed 400 of the popular chocolate chunk cookies to the volunteers in the park.

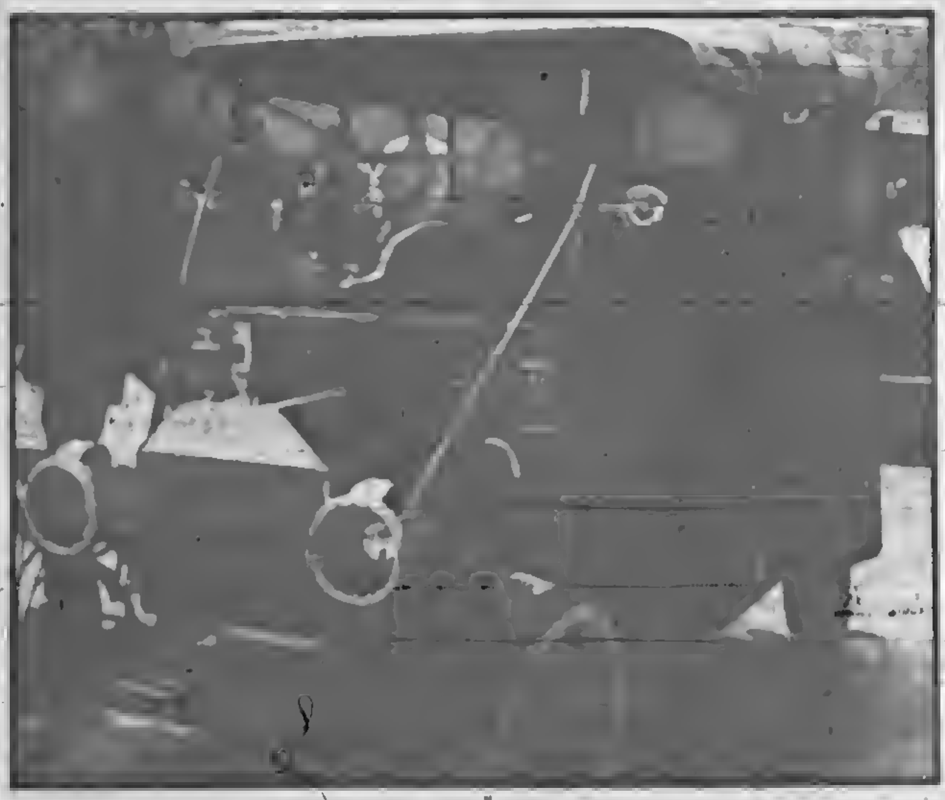
Although members of the public who did not participate in the planting were invited to enjoy the Ice Cream Social for a $2 donation, organizers reported that everyone who came to the park had planted petunias and that not a single $2 donation was taken in.

Substantial donations have been received, however, for the Operation Petunia Auction scheduled for August according to MacArthur. The auction is the major source of funds for the petunias.

Donations so far include two cars, two boats, a color television and a fishing trip.

Anyone wishing to make a donation for the auction is asked to contact Kate Burlew at either 547-2216 or 547-5675.

Cash donations are also being accepted; they are to be sent to Alyce Lesser, P.O. Box 123, Charlevoix, 49720.



Detroit police officers George Anbrey, left, and Frank Nazar found the perfect setting for their Keystone Cops uniforms in John Gaskin's vintage Ford Model-T.

"General" Dale Boss, originator of Operation Petunia, and his wife Marilyn saw that everything went smoothly Saturday.

Big Rock goes into three-month shutdown for refueling, tests

by DAVE KNIGHT

Inservice inspection of the Big Rock nuclear plant's reactor vessel is due to get underway in a matter of weeks following the scheduled shutdown of the plant May 13.

Ultrasonic tests of welds, nozzles and other reactor vessel penetrations are to be conducted by the Rockwell International firm and are required by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) every ten years.

The shutdown will also allow refueling of the plant, an annual procedure during which about 20 fuel bundles are replaced and other annual maintenance and inspection procedures that can only be done while the plant is "cold".

According to Big Rock public affairs director Robert Grupp, the plant is expected to be out of service until about mid-August because of the NRC-required ten-year inspections.

To facilitate inspection of the reactor vessel, Consumers Power Company, owner of the Big Rock plant, originally requested permission to install a temporary rack in the spent fuel pool that would enable all 84 fuel bundles to be removed from the reactor during tests.

The request was dropped, however, when the company decided that the lengthy application procedure would interfere with the plant's shutdown scheduling.

The company's revised plan is to take 61 of the 84 fuel bundles out of the reactor and store them in the available spent fuel racks. The 23 bundles remaining in the reactor will then be moved around as different sections of the reactor are inspected.

Said Grupp, "It would be easier to take all the fuel bundles out of the reactor but the company decided not to pursue the matter under the circumstances."

Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix (CCC) filed to intervene in the Consumers' plan to temporarily move the 61 fuel bundles to the spent fuel pool citing inadequate safeguards against overheating in the pool among other issues. Big Rock has authorization from the NRC to store up to 193 fuel assemblies in its spent fuel pool. There are currently 132 in storage.

Grupp said, however, that Consumers Power officials have "answered all concerns" and that the shutdown and inspections will proceed as planned.

He added that the issue of temporary storage of fuel bundles in the spent fuel pool should not be confused with the company's ongoing efforts to gain approval for increased storage capacity in the spent fuel area on a permanent basis. The Atomic Safety and Licensing Board is still deliberating on that request.

The 90-day outage at Big Rock will not have any effect on Consumers Power service to local customers since the 65 megawatts of electricity produced at the plant, about one percent of the total Consumers grid, will be easily made up by the company's other generating plants and power purchased from other companies.

The work force at Big Rock will not be affected either, said Grupp.

"In fact," he added, "Because of the ten-year inspections, we have more people than usual working at the plant, many of whom are staying in local motels."

A NEW FLAG for the City of Charlevoix's Utility Department building on Ferry Ave. has been donated by the Charlevoix Veterans of Foreign Wars and its Auxiliary as part of the VFW Americanism program. The flag replaces one that was stolen. VFW Auxiliary President Mrs. Larry Finck, right, presented the flag last week to James Whitley, left, longtime superintendent of the city utility crew and a VFW member, and his son Edward, the present superintendent.

Board approves equalization report

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners recently approved an Equalization Department report which increased the value of property within the Charlevoix School District by 3.76 percent.

This increase is approximately the same as the 3.7 percent average County-wide increase, which runs from 5.28 percent in the Boyne City School District to a decrease of 4.86 percent in the Vanderbilt School District.

Other increases (decreases) by School District were East Jordan, up 4.20 percent; Beaver Island, up 2.43 percent; Petoskey, down 1.13 percent; Ellsworth, up 2.09 percent; and Boyne Falls, up 3.96 percent.

According to Equalization Director Joan Blanchard, this year's increase in County valuation is the lowest since 1976, when County property values increased 2.47 percent. In 1982, the increase was 9.64 percent.

This year's increase was brought about by new construction amounting to $5,561,475, new personal property amounting to $2,266,540, and assessors' changes to bring values up to 50 percent of true cash value as required by State law.

The Charlevoix County Equalization report has been forwarded to the State for review.

$2,500 awarded in Road Comm. suit

After hearing five days of testimony, a jury in Charlevoix Circuit Court last week found the Charlevoix County Road Commission guilty of maintaining and continuing a nuisance.

The verdict grew out of a suit filed by Jack and Ramona Bancroft of Mancelona claiming that Mrs. Bancroft suffered injuries in a two-car automobile accident at River and Springvale Roads in Melrose Township on October 3, 1981.

Among citations against the Road Commission were a missing "Yield" sign and loose gravel at the intersection.

Deciding that the Road Commission's maintenance and continuance of a nuisance (not properly maintaining the area) caused injury to Mrs. Bancroft, the jury awarded her $2,500. They had been asked to consider $200,000.

Members of the jury who decided the case were James Bishaw, Lynn F. Matusiak, Louise Putman, Clare Schmidt, Susan Bice, and Alan L. Thier, who served as foreman.

Opinion

Knight on the Town

Birth of a navy

by Dave Knight

Sometime next week we should expect to see the dock space just north of the bridge occupied again by the familiar dinner cruise ship that has become such a popular local attraction over the past two summers.

But it won't be the Bay Queen.

Not to worry...it'll be the same boat but this summer John McGoff's floating restaurant is to be re-christened the "Star of Charlevoix".

Since its debut in Round Lake two years ago, the dinner cruise concept as developed by McGoff has proven more successful than most people would have ever expected, including Mr. McGoff. Over 30,000 meals were served on the Bay Queen last year and bookings for this summer's schedule are already well into June and July.

Ms. Ann Hendrickson, who managed the Bay Queen operation in Charlevoix the past two years, is now in Chicago where she is cranking up a dinner cruise operation based on Charlevoix's. The venue there is a brand new, state-of-the-art craft seating 450 in plush, enclosed comfort, built especially for McGoff and named the "Star of Chicago".

Thus the name change for the Bay Queen, which, by the way, should be about in Detroit right now for a couple parties before completing the voyage from winter quarters in Sanford, Florida to Charlevoix.

According to recent reports, the progeny of the Stars of Charlevoix and Chicago may soon populate all the major coastal cities of America. McGoff is definitely planning to secure another boat for Florida and, says Ms. Hendrickson, it is not too wild to anticipate as many as 100 similar operations being established in river, lake and ocean ports all over the country and the world.

When you think of it, there are certainly plenty of prime locales; St. Louis, San Francisco, Boston. Closer to home, there are interests in Traverse City that are going to be after some of the action in the near future.

When, in ten years, John McGoff has a fleet rivaling the U. S. Merchant Marine, just remember:

It all started right here.

Letters: Water vote

Apathy to blame

Dave Knight:

Our city council in their own inimitable fashion, once again using their omnipotent capability, did select the Water Treatment Plant as the best solution to the Charlevoix city water problem.

At the time of decision there was considerable opposition and controversy. However, the council remained firm in support of their decision. As the election date approached there was not a single council person who came forth with that same support and determination. Had they individually or collectively taken such a positive stance and actually worked in support of their own decision, the election results could have been more representative than 24 percent of the voters. Which in turn could have been positive instead of negative.

This of course is the second special election, paid for by the voters, which was based upon the city councils selection and support of a specific proposal. Considering that the majority of the council members have sat on the council for many years it would appear that they should have a better rapport with their constituents.

This criticism is not entirely of the council but, instead it is of voter apathy. After all the council is but the employee of the voters who are the employer. If, the employer (voters) does not actively monitor and direct the employee then the employer (voters) can not deride or censure the employee for mistakes or misdirections.

Remember, this was not the election for this year or future years. So, let's all get off our apathy and become concerned in the business and direction of our city. After all it is OUR city.

Paul Burlew

Clockwise

Quality sells every time

by Bob Clock

IT IS NOT surprising that the world is beating a path to Tom Kneeland's kitchen door in Charlevoix.

Kneeland is the originator of "Tom's Mom's Cookies," a product so delectable that even the White House is sending in orders.

The secret to Kneeland's success simply is making a chocolate chip cookie so far superior to others on the market that, well, there's no comparison.

And the excellence of his product is no secret at all. He simply uses big, mouth-watering chunks of hand-chipped chocolate instead of those little tear-shaped morsels you buy at the grocery store.

Tom's Mom makes other kinds of cookies, of course. But I haven't tried them because I can never get past the chocolate chips. If I should try one of the others, I would be fraught with indecision every time I walked past the Yellow Submarine, Tom's home port.

ALL OF WHICH brings up a major problem in my life: I am a creature of habit.

For example, I profess to be a connoisseur of Chinese cooking. But Judy says I can never be a true connoisseur because all I ever order in Chinese restaurants is egg foo young.

"So I am a connoisseur of egg foo young," I argue. "I have never had two orders of egg foo young that tasted exactly the same. I am curious as to how many different varieties of they same thing they can come up with."

"But you grouse and complain about all of them, because Chinese restaurant egg foo young never tastes the same as it does at home," Judy points out.

Of course, she's right. I know one restaurant at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., that can ruin a perfectly good batch of egg foo young by putting peas in it. Peas pods are OK, because they stay crisp and green. But peas are too starchy and they sometimes turn grey.

The same goes for mushrooms. They lend a nice flavor, but they aren't very attractive.

So while Judy dabbles in veal subgum almondine, sweet and sour chicken nuggets and Peking duck, I specialize in egg foo young.

And chocolate chip (pardon me, chocolate chunk) cookies.

They tell me it's not much fun to be set in your ways, but it is sure easier than agonizing over menus.

THE SECOND annual Invasion of the Petunia People is now history — and Charlevoix will soon have the flashiest main street in North America.

Some folks on East Dixon even are talking of extending the petunia motif in front of their homes and along their driveways, making it sort of an extension of Bridge Street.

The day may come when every street in Charlevoix will be bordered with petunias every summer.

The extroverts, of course, will plant pansies.

Economic plan

provided for and delivered at a minimum cost to the consumers of the specific facilities and services, and to those paying a share of the cost of all the facilities and services".

There are three subdivisions of the social and cultural goal: transportation, housing, and community service and facilities.

The economic goal looks for "An economy that provides jobs meeting the skills of our populace, with adequate compensation for those desirous of employment; that makes better use of our natural resources, with special emphasis upon our renewable resources; which builds upon and diversifies our employment base over time, resulting in an expanded opportunity for year-around employment."

In the economic goal are included employment, tourism, commercial, industrial, and natural resources endeavors.

Charlevoix County's high unemployment rate, especially during the non-summer months, is noted and three methods suggested to solve the problem:

Strengthening the tourist industry by sustained promotional efforts, increasing and improving our attractions and facilities, including such things as boat slips, bathing beaches, fishing sites, campgrounds, motels, hotels, and restaurants.

Improving employment opportunities by providing suitable sites and structures in which commercial service and industrial firms can locate – particularly industrial parks, and improving community facilities such as sewer, water, and roads.

Increasing the number of jobs available that utilize our renewable resources, such as wood and agricultural products. Producing more timer would seem to be a distinct possibility on Beaver Island and in the Eastern portion of the County proper. Agriculture could expand employment, especially in the processing and marketing ends, of produce, milk, and meat, the report indicates.

Projects already being pursued toward achievement of some of these goals include sewer, water, and road improvements of the industrial parks in Boyne City, Charlevoix, and East Jordan; water system improvements in all three cities as well as the Village of Walloon; waterfront redevelopment in Boyne City; convention center development in Charlevoix; downtown redevelopment in Charlevoix; tourist facility improvement (park and beach) in Boyne City; riverfront park improvements (erosion control) in Boyne City; marina improvements in East Jordan; tourist park improvements (boat launch ramp and finger piers) in East Jordan; Whiting Park (Charlevoix County) improvements (erosion control); Elm Pointe Park retention in East Jordan; Pine River Channel (erosion control) in Charlevoix; timber stand survey in Charlevoix County; and a fire station for St. James and Peaine Townships.

Free cheese to be distributed

appear that the milk will arrive in time for this month's distribution. He said that both milk and cheese are expected to be ready for distribution by next month.

The amount of cheese available for the May distribution is less than in previous months but, said Knapp, a change in the rate of issuance should accomodate the same number of households that have been served before.

This month, one block of American processed cheese will be given to those households with between one and four members. households with between five and nine members will receive two blocks and households with ten or more will receive three blocks.

A household of one with an annual income of $6,075 or less qualifies for the cheese distribution. Each additional household member adds $2,100 to the maximum annual income.

According to Knapp, over 2,000 families in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties were recipients of government surplus commodities last month.

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Terry L. Mol

Jannausch-Mol

Beth Jannausch and Terry L. Mol were united in marriage on Saturday afternoon, May 14, at St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix.

The young people, who have been making their homes in Midland, are the daughter and son, respectively, of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Jannausch and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Mol, all of Charlevoix.

Approximately 125 guests witnessed the double-ring rites performed by the Rev. Robert Bissot of Alpena and the Rev. R. Dale Magoon of Charlevoix, assisted by Jeffrey A. Jannausch.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a light ivory chiffon gown with a sweep train. Her headpiece was made of light ivory illusion held with a cap of seed pearls and lace, and her bouquet was composed of orchids, sweetheart roses, stephanotis, and an ivy-covered heirloom prayer book.

Marie K. Jannausch of Traverse City, a sister of the bride, served as maid of honor, and Mrs. Dale Cramer of Coopersville, another sister, and Kathleen Eardley of Grand Rapids served as bridesmaids. They wore cloud-blue chiffon floor-length gowns and carried sweetheart roses with staphanotis and ivy.

Michael W. Mol of Prudenville, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man, and Don Mol, another brother, and Eric Sloan, did double duty as groomsmen and ushers.

Mrs. Robert Tollas, accompanied by Margaret Thomson, provided vocal music for the occasion.

A reception at the Bay View Inn, hosted by the bride's parents, followed the wedding ceremony. The rehearsal dinner was held Friday evening at the Grey Gables, hosted by the bridegroom's parents.

Following a wedding trip to St. Maarten's in the Caribbean, the newlyweds will be at home in Midland, where the bridegroom is a civil engineer with the Dow Corning Corp. and the bride is a social worker.

Memorial Garden to be enlarged

The Memorial Garden, established and maintained by the Charlevoix Area Garden Club, is undergoing 'growing pains' according to committee members. With help from Site Planning & Development, the garden will be enlarged this year allowing for available funds. Shrubs and trees are made possible through contributions from the public. The garden, located on the islands of Mercer Blvd. and the end of E. Dixon Ave., was established by the club in 1977, at which time the city council, by resolution, stated the two islands were to be included in the city park system. Modification can come only through a public hearing.

To date contributions have been made in memory of: Frank Webb, Daniel Schoelberger, Harley and Mildren Ochs, Hubert Olach, Doris Oehs, Irene Young, Marian Purdy, Edward Golden, Mable Cromwell, Floye Martin, Jerrine Durni, Franklin Curtis, Dorothy Parker, Frank P. State grant will allow sheriff to initiate Concentrated Road Patrol

Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater has announced that his department has received a $28,441 grant from the State of Michigan for the Concentrated Road Patrol program.

Under the program, the Sheriff's Department will provide additional patrols on secondary roads of the county as requested by county residents. The patrols, said Lasater, will be over and above whatever patrolling is currently being provided.

Lasater explained that with the grant funding, any resident of a township or village in the county may contact him personally at 547-4481 to request additional patrolling of a stretch of roadway on which there have been chronic problems with traffic violators.

Information to be included when requesting additional patrols includes the specific area to be patrolled, time of day and day of the week the traffic violations occur and the description of the violator's vehicle if available.

When the grant program is completed, each citizen who requested the concentrated patrol will be provided with a document from the sheriff detailing the number of hours deputies patrolled the requested area, citations, warnings and arrests made in the requested area.

Lasater added that the grant, administered under Public Act 416 (Sheriff's Secondary Road Patrol) was accepted by the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners.

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX COUNCIL MINUTES

May 16, 1983
8:00 P.M.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met in a regular meeting on the above date and time in Council Chambers, 210 State St., Charlevoix, Michigan, with Mayor Staley presiding.

Present: Councilmembers Block, Olach, Porter, Timms, Roloff, and Wood. Absent: None.

The Minutes of the regular meeting of May 2, 1983 were approved as presented in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes Book.

Richard Force, Engineer with McNamee, Porter and Seelye reported on the following bids as opened at 2:00 P.M. on this date for Phase I construction of a City Water Treatment Plant:

Bidder	Bid Security	Base Proposal	Alternate Proposal
Luedtka Engineering Co., Frankfort, Michigan	5%	$543,600	$543,600
Durocher Dock & Dredge, Inc.*, Cheboygan, Michigan	5%	572,000	585,000
Tom Shaw, Inc.*, Cheboygan, Michigan	5%	619,781	13,100
Lakeshore Contractors, Inc.*, Muskegon, Michigan	5%	496,300	529,300

*Durocher Dock & Dredge Inc., Tom Shaw, Inc., and Lakeshore Contractors, Inc., included a differential unit price of $150, $105, and $90 per ft., respectively.

Mr. Force stated that some interested contractors did not bid on the project due to the defeat of the bond proposal to finance the plant at the May 2, 1983 special election. He also stated that he felt the bids were exceptionally high due to the fact that those contractors who did bid the project may not have looked at it closely as they did not feel the project would materialize.

A Public Hearing was held regarding the Site Plan presented by R. Gordon Meyers for a carry-out delicatessen in the Market Mall.

Moved by Councilman Olach and supported by Councilman Block to concur with the recommendation of the City Planning Commission to approve the Site Plan as presented by R. Gordon Meyers for a carry-out delicatessen in the Market Mall.

The City Manager stated that adoption of the resolution would not result in any financial commitment by the City. Al Baka, a representative of the proposed project, reported that the project is in a "go" situation and that the Weathervane Restaurant will be open for business this Summer.

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Councilman Porter and supported by Councilman Olach.

Resolution No. 83-5-7
Authorizing Grant Application
RESTAURANT/HOTEL/CONFERENCE CENTER PROJECT
City of Charlevoix, Michigan

WHEREAS, the City has approved site plans for renovation of the Weathervane Restaurant, conversion of the former Fochtman garage to a conference center, construction of a new hotel on the site of the old Finn Lumber Company, and erection of a parking garage; and

WHEREAS, this project will create jobs, add income to the community, reduce the seasonal nature of the local economy, and support existing businesses; and

WHEREAS, the conference center will help sustain local motel and hotel operators, encourage off-season visitor traffic, and improve Charlevoix's standing as a year-round resort; and

WHEREAS, none of the project can be built without the parking structure or conference center, and these facilities are not economically feasible to construct with conventional financing;

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX, that it hereby authorizes the City Manager to make application to the Federal Urban Development Action Grant (UDAG) program, in an amount not to exceed $1.1 million dollars, which amount will be loaned to the developer of the proposed project as a mortgage on the conference center and parking structure; and

A Public Hearing was held regarding a proposed ordinance to adopt the Downtown Development Authority's (D.D.A.) proposed development and tax increment financing plans. Mike Greeley, Chairman of the D.D.A., stated that one parcel of property, located west of the Weathervane Terrace Expansion Project, has been added to the tax increment financing district. He also stated that the formula for determining the amount of taxes in the tax increment financing district which will be returned to the taxing units had been revised and would be more advantageous to the taxing units. Vince Olach, of the Charlevoix Public Schools, stated the new formula is acceptable to the Board of Education. Mr. Olach read the following statement on behalf of the Board of Education:

The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education wishes to go on record as being in support of the D.D.A. as a viable organization and vital to the renewal of the City, but also must go on record as opposing any type of Tax Increment Financing which diverts anticipated revenue from the schools and from the purpose for which they were voted.

The City Manager stated that Council would retain control of D.D.A. operations through required Council approval of their budget, bonded indebtedness, and site plans.

For two 1983 grads, diplomas are special

by ANNE KELLY

Graduation day at Charlevoix High School will be especially memorable this year for two Charlevoix adult graduates. Both Veronica "Ronnie" Elzinga and Mary Young will be graduating with thier sons on June 5th.

To earn their diplomas, Ronnie and Mary needed a lot of extra support from their families. Sometimes they had to rush through dinner or leave dishes in the sink or chores unfinished in order to make it to class twice a week. Ronnie even found herself studying in the bathtub for extra time and privacy. But they have both fought the good fight and have all but won. First there was the preparation, study and review for the General Education Development (G.E.D.) test which is a survey and evaluation of all areas of high school course work. Then there were the requirements to be met in History and Government.

Not and easy task, but most rewarding, they both agreed.

"I found out how out of practice in thinking I had become," explained Mary. "But I wasn't going to let my two kids graduate before me... It's a lot harder to have to fit in school work when you've got all the responsibilities and demands on your time," she believes. But it will be well worth the effort when she receives that diploma. Although there are no immediate career plans in Mary's future, she hopes to continue taking an ocassional course to "keep her thinking" while spending extra time with the kids at home. Between them, Mary and her husband have brough nine children into their marriage, some from former marriages. In addition they have provided foster care for another three. Personal satisfaction at attaining the high school diploma was the major motive in Mary's determination to go back to school and graduate.

"I couldn't have done it without my husband's encooragement," contined Ronnie. Husband Tom was there to help Ronnie tell her story, a touching story of love and support in the face of tragedy.

"For the last five years my husband has been ill with a very rare disease called Bechels Syndrome... we talked about it and knowing that I will have to enter the work force, I realize that education is the factor you need to succeed." The Elzingas have three children. Ronnie plans to become a legal secretary one day and to continue working toward that goal by attending North Central Michigan College this fall.

Ronnie encourages all adults who, for one reason or another, dropped out of high school as she did, to return and get that diploma:

"I urge anyone, at any age to finish their high school. The staff at Charlevoix High School will give you all the help you need to further your education.

I feel very fortunate to have a school system such as Charlevoix's to be here when I needed it. I will feel very honored when I march down the aisle with my oldest son, Tom, at graduation in June."

For Saints and Sinners

THREE PATHS

by Rev. Charles B. Hastie
Interim Minister
First Congregational Church

When Clark Pohling, one of the four chaplains who died on the USS Dorchester, was an undergraduate at Hope College, he wrote his father, Dan Pohling, this question: "Dad, what do you know about God?" The distinguished minister took time to answer his son as thoughtfully as he knew how. "Clark," he replied, "What I know about God is mighty little - less now than I thought I knew when I sat where you sit. But, son, what I do know, by the test of experience, changes my life."

What do you and I know about God? I give you three paths to the presence of God from the pen of Edward Increase Bosworth, long-time professor of theology at Oberlin, in a little volume "What It Means to Be a Christian" which is a classic of religious living. "Three definite acts there are which help achieve the kind of habitual awareness of God which ought to be characteristic of Christian experience," he wrote. "They are: dropping a grudge, beginning to pray, and righting a wrong."

A personal grudge is a terrific thing. As long as it stands, it will be a barrier between the person who cherishes it and God. If we nurse a grudge along, we can be sure that it will be devastating in its effect on our religous faith.

Beginning to pray is a second path toward the awareness of God. Dale Carnegie's book, "How to Stop Worrying and Start Living" reads like an anatomy of despair buttressed by the life stories of people who have been through the mill and wrought triumph out of frustration. With repetition amounting to formula the turning point in their spiritual journeys is an act of surrender to the assistance of a power beyond themselves. How true in our personal lives. "The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous person availeth much."

Dr. Bosworth's third pathway to awareness of God is righting a wrong. If we want to experience a lift of the spirit which perhaps we have never known before, get into the fight for a cause which commands our whole approval. Who was it that said, "Normally I weight 180 pounds, but when I am right, I weight a ton!" Active participation in the struggle for right is religious endeavor. The living God is present in it. Mighty little there is to know about God in this life. But what there is to learn through dropping a grudge, beginning to pray, and getting into the fight for right against wrong can change a life, and it can help change the world.

Area VIP program unites volunteers with probationers

by PEG OHLE

To most people "VIP" means "Very Important Person".

In Charlevoix and Emmet Counties, it also means "Volunteers in Probation".

This newly-formed organization is made up of local adults who act as friends to men, women, and children who are serving court probation terms. Each volunteer meets with his or her probationer individually for an hour a week and attends monthly meetings with VIP groups.

A pamphlet put out by Volunteers in Probation explains that all three local courts – Circuit, District, and Probate – have approved the establishment of the VIP program because they believe crime is a community problem, not solely a police, court, or institution problem.

"We believe volunteers, through a personal relationship, can help people find satisfaction from acceptable behavior," the pamphlet continues.

The need for a VIP program, especially for children, is graphically illustrated by the fact that, nationally, over 50 percent of serious crimes are being committed by 15 percent of our population – children under 17 years of age. Arrests of children are increasing seven times faster than arrests of adults.

It costs the State between $4,000 and $12,000 a year to keep a person in jail or an institution. It is conservatively estimated that 74 percent of those institutionalized will return to crime and re-enter the institutions.

It is known that many delinquents are at a turning point. With proper help, most can go on to lead useful lives. With no one to turn to, they may become habitual criminals. Over a period of years, court personnel have become over-burdened because of the number of probationers assigned to them. Consequently, they simply do not have sufficient time to spend with individual probationers. This is where VIP comes in.

The local VIP group has just completed a series of three training sessions for volunteers, conducted by Gayle Gennett, a counselor at the Charlevoix High School and a VIP member. Another series of training sessions will be held next fall, but interested persons need not wait until then to come a volunteer.

The following persons will be happy to answer any questions about the VIP program: Nancy Ritsema (coordinator of program), 547-9188; Linda Mansfield, 582-6444; Rev. Bob Kyser, 347-3225 or 347-4792; Gayle Gennett, 547-2811;

Gordon VanWieren, 547-6573; Rev. Jim Raum, 547-5711; Dr. Ernest Shelley, 839-2303; Leslie Cunningham, 547-2145; Enid Olsen, 347-6917; or Chuck Rettstadt, 526-6064.

Mackinaw City plans annual fort pageant

An event which occurred 220 years ago will be commemorated this weekend at Mackinaw City.

The 21st annual Fort Michilimackinac Pageant and Parade will portray the capture of the Fort from the British on June 2, 1763 by a band of Chippewa Indians who gathered nearby, ostensibly to play a game of baggatiway (la crosse).

The three-day event begins at 10 a.m. Friday and continues through 4:30 p.m. Sunday. It will include a band competition, muzzle-loader shoots and competition, knife and tomahawk throw, frying pan throw, and fire lighting contest, as well as the pageant, which will be staged at 2:30 each afternoon.

PIK program involves about 100 farmers in county

by PEG OHLE

About 100 Charlevoix County farmers are participating in the Federal Government's PIC (Payment in Kind) program, according to Elaine Richardson of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee.

Under the PIC program, by agreeing not to plant a portion or all of his usual acreage in corn, a farmer will receive from the government an amount of corn equal to 80 percent of what he might have grown.

This is corn that is presently stored in government warehouses. When it is "paid" to the farmer, it is his to use or to sell.

While corn is the main crop being placed in the PIC program in Charlevoix County, there are also a few wheat farmers participating, Ms. Richardson says.

This one-year program is designed to clear out government warehouses and hopefully increase the price of corn and other grains. It is expected that corn acreage in Charlevoix County will be reduced by about one-third this year.

Farmers engaged in the PIC program will not be permitted to plant other crops in the reserved acreage but must provide a ground cover for the acreage.

The Hoopla of the Annual Charlevoix Chamber Dance

by ANNE KELLY

The high school might have its prom, but Charlevoix's social set has its own spring hoopla. The annual Chamber Dance is the Junior-Senior Prom, the Spring Fling, the Place-To-Ba-Far What's Happening Now.

This yaar's celebration at tha Balvedere Casina included cocktails, a Grey Gables catered prime rib dinner, an evaning of entertainment featuring "The Associations" of Detroit and spontaneous performances by local celebrities throughout the evening.

They come to the Chamber Daaca sporting anything from tuxedos to sport coats, evening gawas to jampsuits. They represent a cross section of Charlevoix: junior and senior mambars of tha commanity, local merchanta and professionals, friends and neighbors. They hava one thing in common: they come to have a good time.

The return of "The Associations" who appeared at the dance two years ago, was all thal was needed to complete the festive mood. The group's popularity was evident as the dance floor filled up to overflowing for the very first number and few dancers sat down until the end of the first set.

Flamboyant displays in shades of the "Alligator" and a unique performance by the Head Shop Four, kept the evening from waning into melancholy.

Where else but in Charievoix conid a bunch of early morning petnnia plaaters metamorphoalze into foot stomping swingers compiëta with an Alligator prom queen by evening?

Charievoix reaily know how to get down and roll out the barrel, folks. They come to have fun, and they do.

PRETTY KNITS TO KEEP YOU COOL

Summertime is a time to be active, to be out of doors and take advantage of the sunshine, the warm breezes and all the leisure activities you love. And no matter what your preference — from sailing to bike riding, to just relaxing — you'll look your fashionable best in one of these sporty knits!

Wear these pretty toppers over pants, culottes, your favorite mini-skirt or summer's classic standby — white jeans. They're loose enough so they won't restrict your movement, cool so you'll be comfortable when the temperature rises.

TIME FOR AN AEGEAN ODYSSEY

By Bayside Travel

The isles of Greece,
the isles of Greece
Where burning Sappho lived and sung.
Where grew the arts of war and peace.
Where Delos rose and Phoebus sprung!
Eternal summer gilds them yet
But all, except their sun, is set.

Byron, a Grecophile who died for his love, wrote those verses more than 150 years ago. Eternal summer shines still on the splendors of Delos, Crete, Pergamum and Ephesus: go to the Greeks and be revived. And going there as the ancients did, on Homer's wine-dark sea, is particularly nourishing. More than just nourishing if you've noticed the latest report in the Wall Street Journal, the US dollar is doing very well in Europe and the Greek Isle. So we would suggest that such a trip is not only nourishing, uplifting, and fun but also a good buy for your US dollar.

One thing that everyone wants to know is the weather. Greece enjoys mild Mediterranean climate with more than 300 sunny days a year. In the middle of summer the heat is often tempered by fresh breezes from the sea and mountains. The nights are invariably cool and pleasant. Spring and Autumn are cooler extentions of summer. Many pleasant sunny days in winter. Weather Temperatues in Athens:

Month	Average	Low/High
January	48°F	42-43
February	49°F	43-56
March	53°F	46-60
April	60°F	51-68
May	68°F	60-77
June	76°F	67-85
July	83°F	72-86
August	83°F	72-86
September	75°F	66-83
October	67°F	60-74
November	58°F	52-64
December	52°F	46-57

There is a tour for almost every traveler's taste and interests, or use the low air fares directly out of Detroit to Athens and do your own independant tour. Whatever your decision concerning tours, Athens is a must on your itinerary. It is a city which offers atiquity as well as modern luxury.

If you're a "land lubber" that's fine but for those who want only so much sand in their shoes, there are some wonderful Greek Ilse cruise tours to consider. One of the fun factors about Greek Cruises are that your fellow passengers often vary more in nationality and background from those Americans encounter on Caribbean cruises.

Now if you can't decide on cruise or land tour, you have the possibility of doing both. Many tour operators have anticipated your dilemma over this choice and offer a combination tour.

To sight just one of many such tours, Maupintour Company follows Alexander the Great's route of conquest and influence with visitors to Athens, the mineral springs of Kamena Vowla and Volos to Mt. Pelian, and Litthoron to Mt. Olympus. Then on to a four or seven day cruise of the Aegean Sea.

Retrace the fabled voyage of Jason on your cruise through the Aegean Sea, and perhaps on to the eastern Mediterranean. The Greek registry ships used on these programs are acclaimed to be among the best Greek Isles cruise liners, all tried and proven.

Enjoy the large and elegantly appointed lounges plus roomy decks for strolling, spacious dining rooms and fine Continental cruising. Deck chairs and an outdoor pool add to your leisure fun.

Greece is no single element ... not past ... not present ... not geographic entity. Greece, like fine metal crafted year after year into diverse shapes, is the memory of 3,000 years of western civilization. The country is lively and joyous beneath the warm sun, bathed by crystalline light and the incredible azure seas.

All that this sparkling air embraces becomes transcended. No wonder this is the land of Olympian gods. The environment is meant for greatness. Here are the sources of some of the world's greatest literature, philosophy, architecture, art, drama, medicine and athletic

Crooked Tree Arts Council presents Duo Classico in Concert

Crooked Tree Arts Council will present Duo Classico in concert featuring Mary Endress, a soprano and Robert Guthrie, guitarist, Friday, June 24 at 8:30 p.m. at the McCune Arts Center in Petoskey.

Robert Guthrie is an artist of world class claibre. A reader's poll of Guitar Player Magazine voted him one of the leading classic guitarist. He has been a faculty artist at the prestigious Aspen Music Festival since 1976. Mr. Guthrie has been Chairman of the graduate guitar department at Southern Methodist University for nine years, and is on the faculties of Yale University, New Haven, Connecticut and the Queens College, New York City. He has also just been named Distinguished Artist Teacher for Eastfield College, Dallas, where he will give guest Masterclasses. His guitar transcriptions currently appear via Cavata Publishers.

Mary Endress was discovered to be a prodigious musical talent at age six. Her exceptional abilities led her to very successful radio and TV appearances as a young child, singing a variety of music from country to classical. She collaborates in all kinds of chamber music, from Baroque cantatas to Leider evenings and is one of a handful of real art song specialists in this country.

Her partnership with eminent guitarist Robert Guthrie as the Duo Classico began in 1979. The Duo Classico tours the United States to outstanding popular acclaim in cities such as Chicago, Boston, New York, Dallas, Salt Lake, Seattle, Denver, plus appearances in Mexico.

Use Color for Fashion Economy

Women who yearn for a new fashion look but are faced with budget limits can look to the new trend in rich colors available in today's legwear.

Color is an inexpensive yet dramatic way to extend your wardrobe without overextending your checkbook. Smart pantyhose in fashion's newest shades and textured looks can revitalize an outfit that's a "golden oldie" — giving it a look that's fresh and new.

Here are a few more fashion suggestions from the people of Hanes Hosiery to help you make the most of your fashion dollar:

- Give your favorite black dress three completely different looks by wearing with pantyhose in white, Jet black or one of the new important shades of gray.
- Accent the continuing influence of black and white with ultra sheer hosiery in Pepper Red.
- Choose pantyhose with a texture. The delicate side stripe of tiny checks gives an elegant look for day or evening.
- The still popular chino-khaki tones will look even smarter boldly accented with teal or red hosiery.

Have fun with color — at little cost — as you use pantyhose and knee highs to complete your look for the new season.

County using Big Rock spent fuel case as leverage?

by DAVE KNIGHT

Big Rock nuclear power plant officials have accused the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners of using its influence on the plant's pending application for enlargement of its spent fuel pool as leverage to coax more funding from Consumers Power Company for emergency preparedness.

Appearing before the Board at its regular meeting May 25, Big Rock plant superintendent David P. Hoffman said be was "surprised and disappointed" to learn that the Atomic Safety and Licensing Board (ASLB), which is bearing the Consumers Power Company request for permanent expansion of the plant's spent fuel pool capacity, had been contacted by the county regarding the need for more money.

The object of Hoffman's concern was a May 18 letter to the ASLB from County Commissioner Thomas Breakey, laison to the county's Emergency Services program, and F. Earl Muma, Emergency Services Director for Charlevoix County.

Muma has requested $40,000 for items including training, a part-time secretary and additional equipment.

In the letter to the ASLB, Breakey and Muma maintain that the effectiveness of the county's Emergency Operationa Center (EOC) is hampered by a lack of training for the personnel who would be involved in an evacuation neccessitated by a nuclear accident at Big Rock.

The letter states that while 65 percent of the EOC staff has been trained, a lack of funds has prevented the training of many law enforcement personnel, ambulance attendants and drivers of the school buses which would be used to transport county residents in an evacuation. Included with the letter to the ASLB were copies of letters to Muma from school district superintendents of Boyne City, Ellsworth and East Jordan indicating that their respective school districts were not willing to pay for bus driver training.

In their letter, which was on County Board stationery, Breakey and Muma also cited a need for more telephones in the EOC and portable two-way radios.

In prepared comments to the County Board last Wednesday Wednesday, Hoffman said, "Mr. Muma has told us that he sees our spent fuel expansion case as his only leverage in obtaining additional funding. Unless he exercises some leverage now, before the fuel pool case is decided, he has told us that he believes he never will get additional funding. We can't help but believe this is the spirit in which you wrote to the Licensing Board last week. And I am disappointed by the (Board of Commissioners') action."

Consumers Power Company is seeking permission from the ASLB to increase the capacity of the spent fuel storage pool at Big Rock from the present authorized maximum of 193 fuel bundles to 441. Since the spent fuel pool is at near capacity now and transportation of spent fuel to another storage site is banned, authorization to add the additional spent fuel racks is considered crucial to the plant's continued operation.

Hoffman chided the Board for its willingness to spend money on attempts to secure new employers such as the FAA flight service

Salmon weir issue far from settled

by PEG OHLE

The recent planting of 300,000 chinook salmon fingerlings in the Jordan River was enthusiastically heralded by fishermen throughout the area.

The next chapter in Jordan River fishing history is now being written by the Department of Natural Resources (DNR), the Natural Rivers Zoning Body, the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, the Antrim County Planning Commission, and South Arm Township.

This chapter began when the DNR applied for a grant of $176,000 in Federal and State funds to construct a lamprey barrier and salmon blocker in the lower Jordan River. In due time the grant request (as do all such requests for projects in Charlevoix County), came before the Charlevoix County Planning Commission for review.

At its meeting on May 5, the Planning Commission tabled action on the grant request until it received information from the DNR as to how they had selected the proposed barrier site and proof that it is the best site possible. As of last Friday, the DNR had not furnished the requested information. The Planning Commission meets again on June 2, at which time the matter will again be considered.

The proposed barrier site is on the portion of the Jordan River designated a "Wild Scenic River", which is protected by special zoning restrictions.

Last week, the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners went back to a law passed in 1851 and passed a resolution declaring that "no weir, dam or other structure shall be erected or placed on or adjacent to any part of the Jordan River within the (Charlevoix County) Board's jurisdiction without written consent in the form of a resolution passed at a regular or special session of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners".

The 1851 law authorizes County Commissioners to permit or prohibit the construction of dams or bridges on navigable streams within their jurisdiction.

In the "Whereas" part of the resolution, the County Board noted that it was instrumental in having the Jordan River designated as a natural river and had promised to protect the river "for the greatest recreational, aesthetic, and other benefits to property owners and the general public." It is also noted that on numerous occasions the County Board had budgeted funds for use by the Jordan Watershed Commission, especially in October, 1968, when the Board appropriated $500 to the Watershed Commission to aid in their opposition to a proposed coho fish hatchery and weirs in the Jordan River.

McSauba prepares for seventh season serving local youngsters

Camp McSauba, Charlevoix's coeducational day camp established in 1976 to provide camping for area youngsters ages four to 13 will hold its first session June 27.

The Camp will operate eight one-week sessions. Children may be enrolled for any number of sessions. Each session operates from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Mondays through Wednesdays, and from 9 a.m. Thursday until noon Friday, with Thursday night bing an overnight activity. Session II will begin on Tuesday July 5th and run until Saturday noon, July 9th with the overnight being Friday night of that week.

Children take a sack lunch, a beverage, their bathing suit and a towel. Transportation is the responsibility of the camper's parents. Camper fees are $35 per session, which includes T-shirt, two meals and a snack on the overnight, as well as arts and crafts. Children are also protected with health and accident insurance.

The Camp, its eighth year of operation, is located on Lake Michigan north of Charlevoix on 50 acres of rolling and steep hills, sandy valleys, deep woods, swamps, dunes, and 3,500 feet of lake frontage. Activities are scheduled by the campers and their counselors on a small group level, to encourage participation and decision making by all involved. Regular activities include swim instruction, free swim periods, archery, B.B. Gunnery, arts and crafts, nature study, games, hiking, camp crafts, singing, skits and a variety of recreational games.

In addition to Jack Gebott, director, who has supervised the Camp for the past seven years, counselors are Teresa Noirot, a junior at Alma College majoring in Health, Jim Buchanan, a sophomore at Aquinas College and Mark Oostmeyer at 1983 Charlevoix graduate.

Camp McSauba is experimenting this summer with a daily camper program. Campers registered on a daily basis will be integrated into the regular program for a $10 fee. This will enable many parents to take a day off for shopping, sunbathing or whatever knowing that their child will be in a wholesome environment free from the boredom that generally accompanies a regular babysitter.

The Camp is sponsored in part, by the City of Charlevoix Recreation Department, the United Way, and a host of local civic, fraternal, social and service clubs as well as private individuals. As a non-profit camp, all donations are tax deductible. Further information on registration and enrollments can be obtained from the Recreation Department, 547-4272 or the camp director, 547-5233.

Regional agency plans increased services for aged

The 10-County Northwest Michigan Agency on Aging, of which the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging is a part, has embarked on a three-year program to increase services rendered senior citizens.

The Agency has prepared a core program of six basic services for emphasis and promotion. For Charlevoix County senior citizens, the thrust will be to provide and increase services as follows:

Health Screening: 51 senior citizens were served in 1982. The goal is to increase this to 125 in 1984 and 130 in 1986.

Home Health Aide: 21 senior citizens were served in 1982. The goal is to increase this to 44 in 1984 and 46 in 1986.

Home-Delivered Meals: 62 senior citizens were served in 1982. The goal is to increase this to 67 by 1986.

Congregate Meals: 218 senior citizens were served in 1982. The goal is to increase this to 248 in 1984 and 259 in 1986.

Transportation: 215 senior citizens were served in 1982. The goal is to increase this to 332 in 1984 and 363 in 1986.

Homemaker Services: 210 senior citizens were served in 1982. The goal is to increase this to 229 in 1986.

The overall goal for each program is increasing by 12 percent the services rendered in 1982 and bringing them up to 70 percent of the Regional average in 1982.

Census figures for 1980 indicate there were 2,435 persons in Charlevoix County aged 65 or over. This is 12.2 percent of the total population of 19,907. It is expected that by 1990 there will be 3,001 persons in the County aged 65 or over.

Charlevoix County is a "target" County (meaning its services have been below the Regional average) in Health Screening, Home Health Aide, Congregate Meals, and Transportation.

Further information about any of these services may be obtained from the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging, phone 547-6282.

Opinion

Knight on the Town

Not your average grads

by Dave Knight

My message to the Class of 1983 is, strangely enough, don't believe everything you read in the papers.

We are told by those who keep track of such things that many of this year's high school graduates are ill-equipped for life in the real world; that basic skills such as reading and writing have declined sharply; that alcohol and drug abuse have dulled abilities and ambitions; that any social consciousness has been replaced by eagerness to find well-paying employment.

This is a sorry statistical picture that may have some validity on a nation-wide scale but one that I think is not very accurate locally.

Judging from the frequent contact I have had with them over the past three years, the Charlevoix grads who will march into the high school gym Sunday represent a group of young people with much more on the ball than the national surveys would have us believe.

I perceive the Class of '83 as one with some solid goals - we'll expand on that in next week's Courier - and a good track record of accomplishment. More importantly, the interests of this class have been numerous and varied.

From the playing field to the forensics stage to the band room to the classroom, the Class of '83 has left a mark of excellence.

So let us send them off with our best wishes and hope they remember that they are from Charlevoix, where all the folks are good looking and all the children are above average.

Clockwise

Comet replay

by Bob Clock

IF YOU MISSED seeing the comet IRAS-Araki-Alcock as it streaked past Earth for several nights two weeks ago, take heart.

Although astronomers had billed the IAA comet as a once-in-a-lifetime show, another comet has been discovered heading our way faster than a speeding bullet.

It has been dubbed Sugano-Saiguga-Fujikawa after its Japanese discoverers and will pass Earth June 12 or June 13 at a distance of 6.28 million miles. That's about twice the distance of the IAA pass-through, but still only a stone's throw in cosmic terms.

IAA was visible from Charlevoix for several nights as an extremely bright, wedged-shaped star. It moved, but so slowly you almost had to set stakes to observe its progress across the sky.

Experts were a little disappointed in IAA because it was more gas than dust and wasn't as impressive as it might have been. I was satisfied, but then I'm fairly easy to please.

Astronomers have had more advance warning that SSF is en route and are polishing their telescope lens and reserving front-row seats at all of the observatories.

"We think we might get more information from this one," commented Stephen Edberg of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory (JPL).

SSF is now in the constellation Andromeda and may be seen by telescope over the horizon around midnight (EDT). It will rise earlier each night through June 13 and probably will be in the evening sky by June 20, if you have any messages to relay to Darth Vader.

MEANWHILE, astronomers at the University of California at Santa Cruz say they have identified the first planet ever seen outside the solar system.

They say the planet is still forming in an orbit around a new star called T Tauri, some 450 million light years away.

Some dissenters claim the new space object is not a planet but a second star — but proponents of the planet theory have dubbed the new baby "TIRC," pronounced "turk." It stands for "T Tauri Infrared Companion."

Astronomer Douglas N. C. Kin of the university is excited about the find because many of his colleagues believe that intelligent life can evolve only on planets. That's why discovery of a planet in another solar system is rather important.

The new baby is a whopper by Earth standards. It is from five to 20 times larger than Jupiter, the largest planet in the solar system and is 7.5 billion miles from its sun, T Tauri, which has twice the mass of our sun, which is a mere 93 million miles away.

ONE LAST WORD on the stars. Scientists working on the Infrared Astronomical Satellite project say up to seven new stars are aborning in the dark dust clouds of the Milky Way. Actually, what they are observing took place about the time Columbus set sail from America, but radiation from those long-ago events is just now reaching earth.

Dr. Charles Beichman, a senior scientist with the JPL, says the discovery shows the universe is "still vigorous and active."

The "protostars" are believed to be about one million years into the formation process and that new planets may be forming around them.

It makes me dizzy just thinking about it.

County pressures Big Rock

station while trying to extract costly concessions from an established employer in the county such as Big Rock.

Said Hoffman, "This board recently spent thousands of dollars – tens of thousands of dollars, I believe, – in an attempt to get a new FAA Flight Service Station to locate in Charlevoix County. I applaud those efforts because it was an attempt to bring new jobs and payroll into our county...However, the point is that the county will spend will spend thousands of dollars on the chance that it can attract one new business but what will the county spend to help retain an existing major employer like Big Rock Point."

He listed the contributions Consumers Power has been required to make to emergency preparedness in Charlevoix County such as the recently installed warning sirens and the informational material printed and distributed. Hoffman estimated that Consumers Power has spent about $300,000 over the past two years on off-site emergency planning.

Saying that the company plans continued cooperation with the county, Hoffman added that he would like to explore alternatives to spending more money.

"The point is we will help implement specific projects that relate to nuclear emergency preparedness. But it takes hard work, not just more money," said Hoffman.

The issue of nuclear plant owner responsibility for emergency planning has become especially topical following a recent Nuclear Regulatory Commission order to shut down a reactor at Indian Point, New York unless improvements are made in the plant's emergency preparedness programs.

Big Rock public affairs director Robert Grupp said last week, however, that Consumers Power Company "does not perceive the local situation to be as serious as Indian Point."

A parallel situation for Consumers Power exists in South Haven where the company has its only other operating nuclear generating facility, the Pallisades plant.

Reached last week, Van Buren County emergency services planner Harry Bush said that his county board has also expressed concern in the matter of who pays for emergency training. Bush said that Van Buren County officials will be meeting in about two weeks to discuss the issue.

Said Bush, "I know the responsibility for training belongs to someone but I don't think it's us."

Following Hoffman's comments at the meeting last week, Charlevoix County Board Chairman I. Lee Moerland called a special meeting for 1 p.m., June 13 of representatives from the county Office of Emergency Services, Consumers Power Company and the Michigan State Police to discuss each entity's role in the funding of emergency planning.

Salmon weir

Also last week, the Natural Rivers Zoning Body, which has jurisdiction over the Natural Rivers portion of the Jordan, met in East Jordan to hear comments from interested agencies. It was learned at that meeting that the DNR must receive a special exception from the Natural Rivers Zoning Body to install the barrier at the proposed site, as well as a permit under the Inland Lakes and Streams Act. Another permit from South Arm Township may also be necessary.

The Natural Rivers Zoning Body is made up of a representative from the DNR and five Jordan River area residents – Dr. David Pray, Helen Cherry, Sherman Thomas, David Twining (Antrim County Planner), and John McGregor. As a result of comments made at the East Jordan meeting, and at the request of the Antrim County Planning Commission, a public hearing on the matter will be held in the near future.

The proposed lamprey barrier is a concrete dam that could be modified to block salmon. Construction of the barrier would negate the need for costly chemical control ($55,000 every four years). Also the DNR proposes to install a salmon harvesting facility next to the lamprey barrier as the first step in establishing a salmon sports fishery in Lake Charlevoix. Such a fishery has received the endorsement of business groups in the area.

Charlevoix County Commissioner Thomas Breakey of East Jordan told those attending the East Jordan meeting last week that he believes if the barrier were to be placed near Sportsman's Park in the City, it would receive enthusiastic approval. He cited advantages as keeping the weir out of the Wild River, leaving only a few 100 yards of river shore to police, and creating a tourist attraction.

Although DNR officials agree the mouth of the river would be an ideal spot for the barrier, they say the cost (perhaps as much as $2 million) is prohibitive.

Breakey's suggestion was that funds be sought from the Kammerer Land Trust.

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Gary Pettis

Mason-Pettis

Patti Sue Mason of Kawkawlin, MI and Gary Allen Pettis of Charlevoix were united in marriage at a candlelight service May 21 at the West Baptist Church in Bay city.

She is the daughter of Jack and Jane Mason of KawKawlin and he is the son of Mrs. Viola M. Waller of Charlevoix.

Rev. Kenneth L. Hoard presided over the double ring ceremony which was attended by about 180 guests. The church was decorated with aisle candleabras and pastel pink and blue flowers.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white slipper satin, empire style, with a Queen Anne neckline edged with imported Alecon lace. The lace also enhanced the cuffs of her sleeves. the floor length satin skirt was enhanced with Alecon lace and had a lace edge hemline. A chapel length train was trimmed with schiffli lace as was her fingertip veil. She carried a cascade of bridal pink roses, white stephanotis, babies breath and white gardenias with fancy foliage.

Matron of honor was Judi Little and bridesmaids were Joyce Staudacher, Sue Fich, Sue Bagaglia and Donna Darcer. Junior aide was Jerri Little. They wore gowns of dewdrop blue, on the shoulder styled with puff sleeves.

Jim Pettis was best man. Groomsmen were Mack Mason, Chris Little, Al Bagaglia and Dave Ebinga.

A reception was held at the Sherston - Fashion Square in Saginaw. The church's Fellowship Hall was the site of a rehearsal dinner.

Following a wedding trip to Florida, the couple are at home in Saginaw. The bride is a registered pharmacist at St. Mary's Hospital and the groom is attending Ferris State College from which he plans to graduate in November with a degree in pharmacy.

Willie Holmes likes 'character' in both his designs and models

by PEG OHLE

"Fashion models don't have to be tall and skinny and beautiful".

That's the opinion of Charlevoix fashion designer Willie Holmes.

Holmes, who presents his clothes in fashion shows throughout the area, looks for different qualities in his models.

"I like people with character," he says. "You can tell they have character because they carry it with them – it's something special that's easily identified.";

Holmes finds his models in many different places. "When I'm looking for models, I just watch people," he explains. "I sit in restaurants or stand on street corners."

When he sees someone -- man, woman, or child – who he thinks would fit into his modeling role, he asks if they would be interested. However, besides possessing "character", they must meet another criteria. They must be able to wear the clothes which Holmes has already made up.

It's easier doing it this way, Holmes believes "because there's never any argument about how the gown is going to be made. It is made and that's that."

In addition to furnishing the dresses or suits for his fashion models, Holmes makes arrangements for whatever else they may need – hats, shoes, hair styling, even skin care.

For performing in the fashion shows, Holmes donates to the models whatever creations of his they are wearing. However, some of them have insisted on "paying something" for the garments, he says.

While Holmes is much in demand for fashion showings, he considers them mostly as promotional vehicles to build his studio clientel.

A large part of Holmes work is done for bridal parties. Sometimes he designs and makes only the bride's gown, sometimes just the bridesmaids' gowns, and sometimes everyone's clothes, down to flower girl and ring bearer. He has "done" five weddings since February and has three more scheduled between June and August.

Holmes designs his wedding gowns from sketches and ideas brought to him by the wedding participants. "Some girls come in with lots of pictures – of sleeves, necklines, headpieces, and so on – that they want. It's my job to put them all together and come up with a design they like," he says.

Asked what are some of the modern trends in wedding gowns, Holmes says many girls want their dresses to serve more than one purpose. They want them designed so they can be cut off, or even short to begin with.

In addition, Holmes says he has found that ivory is replacing traditional white for some brides, and picture hats are becoming popular headpieces, especially for spring and summer weddings.

He asks brides to allow him at least a month to make their gowns so there will be plenty of time for changes and any additional pieces of wedding finery they might want. With "complete cooperation", only two fittings are necessary for most wedding gowns, according to Holmes.

Besides wedding clothing, Willie Holmes puts his label in many other types of garments, from frilly to tailored. He says his creations are his best advertisements and he gets most of his new clients by referral from others.

Holmes comes by his creation of fashionable clothing in a natural way. His mother was a seamstresss who taught him to sew along with his six sisters.

Following graduation from high school in Grand Rapids, where he grew up, he went to New York to study fashion design and merchandising at the Fashion Institute of Technology. He completed two missing credits in merchandising at Northern Michigan University, and it was while studying there that he first came to Charlevoix. He has lived here for four and a half years and does all his work in his studio home which he says is furnished with three sewing machines and stacks and stacks of fabrics. Holmes once worked for Jo-Ann Fabrics but now makes buying trips to Detroit or selects his fabrics from sample swatches furnished by manufacturers.

Holmes personally does all the sewing on the clothes he makes. He has no assistants, he says, although from time to time he has considered hiring one. "Then I remember that I have to put my label in the dress and I decide not to," he explained.

Price-wise, clothes with the Willie Holmes label are less expensive than similar garments from fashionable women's shops in the area, Holmes added.

PINERIDGE DRIVE is Charlevoix Township's newest road following the recent completion of the Pineridge Subdivision off Mercer Blvd on North Point. Started about one and a half years ago, Pineridge includes 21 lots and is managed by Richard Lobenherz of the North Pointe Development Company. The road was blacktopped May 15, above, and turned over to the county.

Pheasant chicks to be available for area 4-Hers

Leah Green, 4-H coordinator for Charlevoix County, reports that a large number of pheasant chicks to be used for a statewide raise and release program will be available soon. The Michigan State University Departments of Animal Science and Fisheries and Wildlife are cooperating with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources in providing the birds to youth.

Any area youth interested in this useful Conservation project are asked to contact the Charlevoix County Cooperative Extension Service to reserve chicks before June 15. Participants will receive complete information about how to raise and care for their birds. The release date can be any time after the chicks are eight weeks of age, but definitely before fall.

To succeed in this project a conscientious youngster needs only the following: a 75 watt light bulb, wood shavings or chips for bedding, a large box, two shallow containers for food and water, a bag of commercial turkey starter and a small outdoor pen with a protective covering.

MSU specialists report the local PIK enrolled farmlands add new and valuable habitat for wildlife. This is expected to increase the chance of survival for birds in the program from 3-5 percent to 35-50 percent.

Ms. Green says that the pheasant chicks are to be picked up at the Cooperative Extension Office the evening of June 24. They will be brought from Lansing that day. The eggs will have been provided by the Wildlife Division of the DNR and incubated and hatched by the Poultry Laboratory at MSU. Chicks will be priced at 3 for $1.00 with the proceeds going to the Poultry Youth Activity Fund, Michigan 4-H Youth Foundation.

You do not have to be a current 4-H member to participate in this pheasant project as 4-H Youth Programs are open to all. Green notes that fair time coincides with the close of the eight week raising period making this summer's work a natural for fair exhibits.

To receive pheasant chicks for raising and release in 1983 just place your order through the Charlevoix County CES office, 582-6232, by June 15. Then prepare your place and equipment and pick your birds up on June 24.

Big Bird will star at symphony performance

On Saturday, June 11, at 3 and 5 p.m. the Northwestern Michigan Symphony Orchestra will present the real Big Bird direct from Sesamee Street, in concert in Kresge Auditorium, Interlochen. Tickets are $5, $7 and $9, and may be purchased by calling or writing the symphony office, 947-7120, 123½ E. Front St., Travese City, MI 49684.

The family concert, which is being sponsored by area businesses and McDonald's, is being produced with the entire family in mind. Picnic facilities will be available before both concerts and Ronald McDonald will be on hand to greet the children and act as host.

The repertoire will consist of brief classical pieces, interspersed with familiary Sesamee Street songs led by Big Bird. Conductor Donald Lewsader will be assisted in his duties with the orchestra by Big Bird, who will offer some surprises for the audience.

For Saints and Sinners

by Pastor Jim Plackner
Bethany Lutheran Church

A French prince was once visiting the city of Toulon, a city famous-infamous for its harsh prison. In honor of the royal visitor the warden promised that he would release any prisoner the prince should desire let go. The prince interviewed the prisoners privately and individually: "Why are you here?" He received a variety of answers: "I am innocent, my Lord!" and "I was framed!" and "The witness lied about me!" and so on. From one, though, came a different answer: "I deserve to be here for I am guilty. I have done wrong and now I am paying for it. I am sorry now, but I deserve to be here."

Said the prince: "You wicked man! What a pity that you should be confined with so many innocent people. You are so wicked that you will infect them all with your evil. I cannot allow you to stay with them one more day. Guard! Release this man!"

And the man went free. For him, confession was not only good for the soul but confession was good for the cell. It usually is... The strongest prison a person can get himself into is usually self-made. "I'm innocent!" "I'm not a sinner!" "I've done nothing wrong!" "I may be bad but I'm not that bad!" All of which keeps a person inside the prison.

How much better to admit to ourselves what God already knows: That we are sinners and that we sin; that we are the wrong kind of people who do the wrong kind of things. Such a confession opens the prison doors and we are free. Free to live with Jesus - in His death for us - in His glorious ressurection. We are in touch with forgiveness and life. We are free.

It sounds strange to say it but it's true: it's when you admit that you are not worthy to be a son or daughter of God that all of a sudden - by God's waiting love and grace - you become one.

Yachting Notes

by A. Nony Mouse

The Charlevoix Yacht Club held the first sail of the spring series on Wednesday evening. And what a beautiful evening it was. A fresh northwest breeze and temperatures in the low 40's could not damper the spirits of the participants as they shivered their way around the course. The long hours of pre-launch preparation spent sanding, waxing, painting, checking the rigging, fiddling with electronics and hustling up crew have been completed. The general feeling at the club after the race was "It sure feels good to be back on the water again."

Any of you folks out there that have an interest in sailing are welcome to stop by the Charlevoix Yacht Club on Friday evening to meet some of the members and either get the details on entering your boat or crewing with someone.

And now to the results:

In the Portsmouth Fleet, which is sailed with jib and mainsail only, first place went to "Tegi" followed by "Lull" and in and in third "Cheemaaun."

Phrf Fleet — John Osterberg steered "Sonar" to victory with smart tactics and impressive boat speed followed by "Pine River Hummer." Third place went to Jack Begrow on "Mint Julip" just seconds ahead of "Night Moves".

525 Fleet — "Indoorophilly" ahead of "Max" followed by "Razzmatazz".

A hardy welcome from the fleet goes out to Mike Keem and his new boat "Canusa", and last but not least, "Cool Whip" for bringing up the rear of the fleet.

We will be writing this article every week for the rest of the summer and will be sure to let you know about upcoming events, race results and interviews with some of the people involved with racing on Lake Charlevoix.

CCSB named a top performer by national banking institute

Charlevoix County State Bank is one of the nation's top banks in terms of financial performance based on an analysis conducted by Bank Administration Institute (BAI).

The institution is one of only 1,300 top-performing banks cited from among those 6,500 in the United States with assets ranging from $25 million to $175 million. In making selections, the Institute uses its Index of Bank Performance as a statistical base, weighing two factors: return on assets and return on equity. Using these criteria, the top 20 percent of banks in each state are selected. (The Index of Bank Performance is based on call reports - condition and income statements - required by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.)

"The management practices of these banks are successful and worthy of analysis and examination," said Richard H. Needham, director of the Institute's administrative and management products group. So that other banks can benefit from and share these proven management approaches, the Institute is conducting two High Performance Bank Assemblies, June 5-7 in San Francisco and June 19-21 in Chicago.

"These assemblies will provide 'think-tank' environments open exclusively to executives of the 1,300 banks BAI has designated as 'high performers'," Needham said. "The program will consist of highly interactive peer-group sessions with participants sharing proven ideas with fellow bankers from across the United States."

The High Performance Bank Assemblies were inaugurated in 19 2 to stimulate information-sharing among industry leaders.

Bank Administration Institute, founded in 1924, is the banking industry's principal resource in the areas of research and development.

For the third time, Alma College President Oscar E. Remick presents a President's Cup trophy to junior Kristy Mathews for having the highest academic average in her class. Kristy, a 1980 graduate of Charlevoix High School, also received President's Cup recognition as a freshman and a sophomore.

Mathews repeats

For the third time during Alma College's annual Honors Convocation in April, junior Kristy Mathews of Charlevoix has received President's Cup recognition for having the highest grade point average in her class. As a freshman, Kristy shared the President's Cup honor with seven classmates at the 1981 Honors Convocation. Both as a sophomore and now as a junior, she was the only one achieving that academic distinction.

Kristy's name is inscribed on large trophies for each of the three class years that she has earned the President's Cup. The trophies, presented to her during the three Honors Convocations by President Oscar E. Remick, were hers to keep for a few hours. Then she returned them for display in Alma's Reid-Knox Administration Building. Certificates acknowledging her achievement each of the three years are hers to keep.

In addition to Kristy, one sophomore and four freshmen also received President's Cup recognition this year. In recognising the achievements of the six students, Dr. Remick said, "We value the achievements of students not only because they capture the highest expectations of this institution but also because such accomplishments generate hope in us all.

"Today we recognize persons whose accomplishments are full of promise - people whose achievements inspire us all to try harder. We salute those individuals who, because they do the utmost that they can will probably, at times, do even more."

Kristy, a 1980 graduate of Charlevoix High School, is the daughter of Vernon and Andrea Mathews of Charlevoix. She is majoring in economics at Alma.

Class of '83 bids farewell

by FRAN MARTIN

What happens internationally is going to have an impact on your life. You can no longer say that what happens in this country is all that matters. You may not like it, but it is something you are going to have to learn to deal with and live with, Scott Supernaw, a 1959 alumnus of the Charlevoix High School and presently president-owner of Olson Worldtravel, Ltd., a travel agency headquartered in Culver City, Cal., told the 1983 graduating class of his alma mater.

The world is getting smaller and the speed of communications are incredibly shrinking it even more be continued. He emphasized his statement by telling of the Paris editor who called his correspondent in Washington to ask the details of the attempted assassination attack on President Reagan that he had received via satellite. His correspondent in Washington was not aware of what had happened.

To emphasize further how international events affect our lives he spoke of the British pound sterling which was worth $2.00 in American money at the time of Argentina's attack on the Falkland Islands, thousands of miles from this country. The event resulted in the pound's worth decreasing to $1.50 which bought less American goods resulting in the American manufacturer producing less goods which demanded fewer workers which meant less money was being spent in this country. A simplified version of how it affects the economy but the affect is felt here.

Calling on his experience as a world traveler in the tour business he said also that it was very important that Americans learn about other cultures and customs as well as making certain that, as Americans, what they say is not misinterpreted. To illustrate this he told of the sales campaign that the Chevrolet company launched in Brazil to publicize its new car, the Nova. The campaign brought no results and when they got to the source of its failure they found that "nova", in the language of the country, meant "no go", certainly not a fitting name for a motor vehicle.

"This country is affected not only in a business sense but in a personal sense. Many of you will eventually enter the world of business and you will find, as I have, that I am touched in various ways by what is happening outside this country" he told graduates.

He went on to say that it is important that others understand us and interpret what we say so as not to be offended. To illustrate this, he told of a recent meeting he attended at which housing for the forthcoming Olympics on the West Coast was discussed. One woman present said it was important to establish accident and trauma centers in any area where a large number of people would be lodged. The following day, the president of the Olympic committee received a call from a Paris editor demanding why "rape

Dept. of Health lowers the boom over TCE

by DAVE KNIGHT

In its strongest language on the subject to date, the Michigan Department of Public Health notified Mayor Kenneth Staley and the Charlevoix City Council that the city faces severe enforcement measures unless prompt steps are taken to deal with the contamination of the municipal water system by trichloroethylene (TCE).

In a combined "Notice of Violations" and "Notice of Informal Opportunity to Show Compliance with Statutory and Regulatory Requirements" dated June 3, the Department cites "alleged violations of state law and administrative rules by the Charlevoix Mayor and City Council relating to the construction and operation of the City of Charlevoix public water supply system."

TCE, an industrial chemical suspected to cause cancer in humans, was discovered in the Charlevoix water system in October, 1981. Levels of contamination have most recently been averaging about 40 parts per billion (ppb). Efforts to eliminate the contamination by replacing the city well with a lake water treatment plant were brought to a halt May 2 when city voters turned down a $1.65 million bond proposal to construct the plant.

Said Lee A. Jager, Chief of the Environmental and Occupational Health Services Adminstration, "The defeat of the bond issue is disappointing. It leaves the city without the funds it desired to finance a solution to the water contamination problem. It is the (state Health) Department's position, however, that the election does not relieve the city of the responsibility to provide safe drinking water or nullify the public's right to clean water."

In the document received at City Hall Monday, the Health Department states: "The presence of the contaminant is deemed evidence that the source of water cannot be continuously protected from contamination and therefore, pursuant to (state law), a complete treatment system is required to be provided."

The Department refers to the continued use of the present Charlevoix water system as a "public health hazard" and warns

Landfill runoff concerns group of Eveline residents

by PEG OHLE

Believing that it is better to be sure than sorry, a group of Eveline Township residents is asking that independent laboratory tests be made to determine if water run-off from the Charlevoix Garbage Service landfill is contaminating a creek that runs within 100 yards of 16 residential wells and one school well.

Lee Arnold of Ironton is head of the committee which recently met with Department of Natural Resources officers, a representative of District Health Department No. 3, and the owner of the landfill to learn how to procure the testing they feel is necessary to relieve their minds.

The committee's concern is centered around a drainage ditch which collects run-off from the landfill and flows a short distance into a pond. A creek flows from the pond some two miles past the 16 houses and school and empties into the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix just south of Ironton.

Committee members feel that if the run-off water in the ditch is contaminated, then so could be the pond and the stream (known locally as Price Creek or Orvis Creek). And if the creek is contaminated, it is pososible that this contaminated water could seep into ground water and eventually into some wells.

At the request of the Eveline Township Board, Larry Levengood of District Health Department No. 3 recently took some water samples from the drainage ditch and had them tested for chemical indicators. Test results showed higher amounts of some chemicals – iron, calcium carbonate, and magnesium – than found in ordinary ditch water. While these chemicals are not dangerous in themselves, they are indicators that other things are getting into the ditch water, Levengood says. He plans continued surveillance of the ditch water and probably future testing of the pond water.

"I think these people have a legitimate concern," Levengood told the Courier.

The Charlevoix Garbage Service Landfill is located on Saunders Road, just off Sequanota Road, in Eveline Township. It is owned and operated by Dawson Way and licensed by the State of Michigan. It is the only licensed landfill north of Traverse City and is used by garbage haulers from Emmet and Antrim Counties as well as from Charlevoix County. It is also an integral part of the Charlevoix County Solid Waste Management

School election features millage renewal

by FRAN MARTIN

Voters of the Charlevoix School District will go to the polls Monday, June 13, to cast their ballots in the annual school election.

Only two issues will be presented for consideration: the renewal of 15.25 mills for one year for operational purposes and the election of one trustee for a term of four years.

Voters will also be asked to cast a straw vote relating to the proposed summer collection of taxes.

In requesting the renewal of the 15.25 mill levy for operations, Vincent Olach, business manager, said every effort would be made to contain costs though the cost of operation continues to rise.

"Utility costs, especially that of natural gas which was given permission for a 3.5 per cent increase last week, and other fixed costs account for the major increases in the budget. A cutback on personnel because of the continuing decrease in enrollment is the only way to balance out increases over which we have no control," he continued.

This year the increase in the State Equalized Valuation in the school district was held to 3.7 percent as compared with the 10 percent it has averaged over the past 10 years. This will result in less monies being realised by taxes than in past years be explained.

Added to that, the school district is receiving less and less money in catagorical aid for operation of its transportation system and for vocational education, special education and court-assigned students.

This year $34,728 in catagorical aid to underwrite these services was anticipate. To date $2,200 has been received and no more of the total anticipated amount can be expected. As a result, the cost of transportation, vocational education, special education and court-assigned students must be underwritten by tax monies raised in the district.

The .9 mills for two years approved in 1982 to underwrite the cost of a new roof and insulaition at the high school will expire this year.

Other voted millage on the tax bill includes .5 mill for the public library and 1.25 for debt retirement of bonds for the elementary, middle and high schools.

Candidates for the one four-year term as trustee on the Charlevoix Board of Education are incumbent Robert Drenth and John J. Crinnion.

Polls at the Charlevoix Elementary school on Division Ave, will be open from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m. on Monday, June 13. Absentee ballots may be obtained until 2 p.m. Saturday, June 11, by contacting the central office at 208 Clinton St.

Sanitary code to come before county board

by PEG OHLE

Some time before August 1, the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners will be asked to adopt a new Sanitary Code for the County.

The Code, which governs on-site sewage disposal systems, was adopted last week by the eight-man Board of District Health Department No. 3. If adopted by the Charlevoix County Board and the other three District No. 3 County Boards -- Antrim, Emmet, and Otsego -- it will replace the present Sanitary Codes which have been operative since the 1960's.

The new Code was prepared over a period of three years by a committee of Emmet County Commissioners and other residents specifically for Emmet County. However, all four Counties under the District No. 3 "umbrella" will be asked to consider it.

Charlevoix County's present Sanitary Code was adopted in 1966 and updated in 1974. It is the same Code that is used in Antrim and Gaylord Counties. The present Emmet County Code, which was last updated in 1966, differs in several ways.

The new Code was scheduled to be presented to the Emmet County Board of Commissioners this week, with approval expected. All four County boards must approve it before August 1 or it will not become law.

Lee Moerland and Oral Sutliff, Charlevoix County's representatives on the Health Department Board, voted for approval of the new Code, as did the representatives from Antrim and Emmet Counties. The two Otsego County representatives voted against it, saying they needed more time for study.

Health Department representatives say the new Code is "tighter" than the old one and more specific about "cans" and "cants". They also believe it will be easier to enforce.

The new code also allows for on-site mound systems with an impervious soil layer of two feet below the natural ground surface.

Tanks of fish to be planted are hoisted aboard the Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite.

Mesquite helps plant one million lake trout

by GREG CORNING

More than one million five to six inch lake trout were "planted" in Lake Michigan over a 12-day period by the crew and officers of the Coast Guard buoy tender Mesquite in cooperation with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

The Charlevoix-based Coast Guard cutter delivered the fish to selected drop sites in a multi-mission trip from May 9 to May 21. During the trip the Mesquite's crew also renovated a lighthouse and a skeleton-tower light structure in Milwaukee harbor.

In all, 29 tanks containing between 30,000 and 40,000 fish each were carried and dumped by the Mesquite, according to Larry Wubbela, manager of the Jordan River Fish Hatchery. The tanks, which hold about 1,000 gallons of water and fish, were carried four at a time on the Mesquite.

To deliver the fish to the Mesquite, Fish and Wildlife Service personnel hand-loaded tanks with a dipnet at the Jordan River and Pendels Creek hatcheries, and then drove to ports in Michigan and Wisconsin to rendevous with the Coast Guard cutter.

Lieutenant-commander David Blomberg, commanding officer of the Mesquite, said "We tried to pick the fish up close to the drop sites because they are limited in how long they can live in the tanks."

Blomberg said the survival time of the fish also led to late-night and early-morning sailing times, according to when the fish hatchery trucks were able to meet the Mesquite.

The sites at which the fish were planted were chosen by the states bordering Lake Michigan, said Wubbels. To help in determining the best locations, old-time commercial fishermen were questioned about their memories of major lake trout spawning areas before the fish population was depleted.

During the second week of the trip the Mesquite's crew spent three and a half days reconditioning the Milwaukee harbor lighthouse and one skeleton-tower light structure. The renovation entailed removing deteriorated equipment and debris from the lighthouse, vandal-proofing by sealing up entrances and painting.

Blomberg said the weather remained good for the trip except for the 19th, when moderate wave action at the Milwaukee lighthouse delayed the crew in transferring debris from the lighthouse to the Mesquite for disposal.

1983 grads show familiar trends in future plans

by DAVE KNIGHT

If there is any conclusion to draw from a comparison between the class profile of the Charlevoix High School 1983 seniors and their counterparts of eight years ago, it is that not much has changed in how local students are planning their futures.

According to a survey conducted by the high school counseling staff, just over half of this year's seniors, 55 percent, plan to continue their education beyond high school.

In 1975, the first year a comprehensive survey of CHS seniors' plans was taken, 49 percent indicated they would continue on to college or some other form of higher education.

Said Charles Bentley of the counseling staff, "In the years since we began surveying, the percentage of Charlevoix High School seniors going on to college has never varied much from about 50 percent. There does not seem to be a trend of change one way or another."

Of the eight graduating classes surveyed since 1975, the Class of '82 had the highest percentage, 63 percent, who said they were planning to go to college. The lowest, still hovering close to the 50 percent mark, was the Class of '76 of whom 47 percent said they were continuing their education.

Of the colleges chosen by this year's graduates, North Central Michigan College is the most popular with 18 seniors opting for the Petoskey two-year curriculum. Eleven plan to enroll at Michigan State University in East Lansing and seven at Ferris State College in Big Rapids, both offering four year programs. The rest of the college bound students are distributed among 17 other institutions.

Military service as an option for high school graduates is one area in which national studies have shown a significant change in attitude since the mid-Seventies, growing more popular with young men and women as memories of the Viet Nam experience fade and benefits for the

Bloodmobile to be here this Thursday

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will visit Charlevoix on Thursday, June 9, Mrs. David Fowler, project coordinator, has announced.

The Bloodmobile will be located at the American Legion Post Home at 106 East Garfield from 1 until 7 p.m.

The quota for the visit of the Bloodmobile has been set at 125 units of blood.

In announcing the visit of the Bloodmobile, Mrs. Fowler said "Our goal in the Red Cross is that no person dies for the lack of blood...anywhere...anytime."

You are asked to be a good neighbor and help us attain our goal of 125 points of blood Mrs. Fowler continued.

Blood is a gift of life. Your donation could replace blood lost by an accident victim, make it possible for a sick child to run and play, enable an elderly patient to withstand surgery or give a newborn child a healthy start in life. Giving blood is a unique way of showing you care about others.

Twenty-five callers will be contacting former donors urging them to make appointments. This enables an even flow throughout the day. If you are not called and wish to make an appointment, call Mrs. Fowler at 547-9314. Walk-ins will be accepted.

Mrs. Jack Bradley is scheduling registered nurses needed for the day; Mrs. Vernon Mathews, Jr., is scheduling volunteer workers for other phases of the operation and Mrs. Marilyn Izor is handling publicity.

The canteen will be staffed that day by members of the Kappa Sigma chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority. There is a need for homemade cookies. If you can bake cookies for the donors please call Mrs. Fowler.

The Oleson Food store will provide the juice and First State Bank will donate the coffee.

Members of the Charlevoix Lions Club will again unload and reload the van.

The U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite will be at Sault Ste. Marie at the time of the Bloodmobile visit so we are encouraging others to fill their void. The committee can count on the ship's crew to provide approximately 25 points of blood and is hoping that others in the community will make a special effort so the quota can be met.

What? The Red Cross Bloodmobile; the time: 1-7 p.m.; the date: Thursday, June 9; the site: the American Legion Post Home at 106 E. Garfield; the quota: 125 units.

Knight on the Town
Our tainted product

by Dave Knight

The attitude taken by the Charlevoix City Council and the Mayor on the TCE problem since the May 2 bond proposal defeat is nothing short of ludicrous.

Any sign over the past month of solid leadership or direction on the part of our elected officials concerning what is a serious problem facing the city, whether they want to admit it or not, has been conspicuously absent.

The Mayor and Council are apparently content that the "people have spoken" by turning down a $1.65 million bond proposal for a new lake water plant that would have eliminated TCE contamination from city water. They would have us believe that they have finished their job by floating the bond proposal, seeing it sink – with a degree of satisfaction on the part of some – and now daring the state to take the city to court.

Does that sound like responsible goveroment?

The two aspects of this problem, public health and public relations, could not be more crucial to the city's well being. Incredibly, the Mayor and Council don't seem to care.

In the matter of public health, statistics upon statistics have been trotted out to define as clearly as possible the risk one faces when drinking city water. There has been no solid proof presented as yet that trichloroethylene causes cancer in humans though most experts suspect it may in large doses. In fact, this paper laid out a pretty strong case in January that the TCE contamination in Charlevoix poses a minimal health threat if any.

However, there is neither any solid proof that the TCE contamination of city water is completely harmless.

I believe the burden is on our elected officials to do one of two things: either prove to the people beyond any shadow of doubt that the current levels of TCE contamination are completely harmless or eliminate the chemical entirely. Our Mayor and Council have no business selling water that they cannot unequivocally guarantee is safe. There is no room for compromise on this point.

On the public relations front, our elected officials have completely blown it.

I liken the situation to the Tylenol murders of last year. When a handful of people in Chicago took ill, some fatally, from ingesting poisoned Extra Strength Tylenol capsules, Johnson & Johnson, the manufacturer, had no idea of the depth and breadth of the problem. What were the chances of someone in Charlevoix getting a capsule that had been tampered with? A million to one? Ten million to one? Probably greater.

The company, however, did not hesitate for an instant. It immediately pulled off the shelf every bottle of Extra Strength Tylenol in the country at an expense of tens of millions of dollars. It did not have to; no government agency demanded a recall or had to take them to court. They did it on their own.

The result?. Johnson & Johnson has won unprecedented acclaim for its sense of ethics and corporate responsibility. The Tylenol case history will be included as a separate chapter in every public relations textbook from now on. And, oh yes, the company is selling more Extra Strength Tylenol now than it did before the incident.

Same with Hygrade franks. When a razor blade was allegedly found in a hot dog downstate, the company immediately removed its product from the marketplace, screened all its employees and began painstaking inspections with metal detectors; all at huge expense. Even though the chances were, again, infintesimal that another blade would show up, Hygrade wasted no time removing any doubt that its product was safe.

We in Charlevoix are dealing with just as fragile a situation. It is not only the health threat, if there is one, that must be eliminated, but also the perceived health threat.

As long as there is a shadow of doubt as to the effects of TCE contamination, the Mayor and Council are asking the businessmen of this city, especially those directly involved with tourism, to sell a tainted product. I don't care how long people have lived here drinking the water or how much they think this whole thing is an overblown case of hysteria. If the people who would otherwise visit perceive a health threat, then our goose is cooked whether the health threat is there or not.

It has been over a month since the bond proposal was voted down and in that time not once has the Mayor and Council initiated discussion about where to go from here. At this week's meeting, even with a grave notice of planned enforcement action from the state Department of Public Health in their hands, the Mayor and Council spent over four hours on such matters as video games and lawn watering.

Also in their hands was an analysis of groundwater samples taken from a monitoring well adjacent to the municipal well. The most recent sample, taken March 25, indicated 180 parts per billion of TCE.

But not a word on the subject from Mayor or Council.

Many of us, including the state Health Department, were patient as slow but steady progress was made leading up to the May 2 vote. Since then, however, a total lack of any discussion or concern on the part of the Mayor and Council has been apalling.

If it is going to take litigation by the Attorney General's office, with all the incumbent bad publicity and expense, to shake our elected officials back into action, then so be it.

Clockwise
Weird weather

by Bob Clock

I'D LIKE EVERYONE who has ever seen a colder or wetter spring in Charlevoix to raise his hand.

Hummm. No response, not even among the octogenarians. So we're going to have to assume that 1983 will go down as one of the strangest years on record, starting with our mild January and balmy February.

Weathermen blame it on the "Nina," a Pacific Ocean current that is sufficiently erratic to confound both fish and fowl. Schools of fish are not showing up where they are expected and certain species of birds have abandoned their young, long before the little ones are ready to care for themselves.

The phenomenon is well documented and the experts don't appear worried. It has happened before and they know all about it.

But it's pretty hard to explain to tomato plants and cabbage seedlings which have been waiting for days on the front porch for a break in the weather. I don't know if they could stand the shock of having their tender roots buried in the subarctic tundra in our garden patch. I also have hesitated to plant seeds, particularly beans. One year I lost three plantings under conditions far more favorable than those that obtain at present.

I guess you have to be a little crazy to put in a garden; but it is a compulsion few of us can resist.

WHAT IS THE MOST important task you will undertake in your lifetime?

If you're like most of us, your answer probably will be: Raising a family.

The other day, after some particularly trying problems on the home front, it suddenly dawned on me how ill-equipped most of us are to perform this very important task.

We teach our kids how to add, subtract, multipy, divide, read, write and diagram sentences. We also give them a smattering of geography, history, literature and vocational subjects. But we don't teach them how to change diapers, pull baby teeth, remove slivers, treat sunburn, doctor nasty cases of poison ivy, or decide when to call in professional help.

I suppose we assume these are things kids learn from their parents as they grow up. But are they? Sometimes we come up with the right answers, sometimes we don't. And the danger becomes even greater as kids mature and their problems become more emotional than physical.

How do you counsel a young person in the throes of a first-love?

How do you help a teenager differentiate between reasonable expectations and unreasonable day dreams?

What can a parent do to ease their sheltered young into the very cruel world of fiscal responsibility?

What is socially acceptable behavior and what is unacceptable?

When do such social vices as drinking and smoking become anti-social indulgence?

I think I know the answers to some of these conumdrums — but not all of them. I wish somewhere along the line I had been offered a course in child-raising.

Perhaps I am expecting too much of our educational system. Maybe no one has answers that would be applicable in every case, or even in most cases.

On the other hand if youngsters knew the problems that await them when they themselves have children, they might opt for a life of pristine celibacy and nip the future of the human race in the bud.

Which might not be a bad idea.

Health Dept. threat...

that unless the system is improved, its use as a source for potable water will not be permitted.

The Department also threatens "appropriate action to limit use from the public water supply until such time as satisfactory improvements are made to the waterworks system." Included in such action, according to the notice, is the withholding of any construction permits for the extension of water mains to any additional customers.

City officials have been invited to a June 24 meeting at Department of Public Health headquarters in Lansing at which they will have basically three options: to show compliance with state laws regarding municipal water systems, to negotiate a plan of correction by which the city will be bound or to show cause why formal enforcement proceedings should not be initiated.

Neither Mayor Staley nor the members of the Council had any comment on the notice from the Health Department at their meeting Monday night.

A previously planned discussion involving the Mayor, Council and Health Department officials is still to be held at the Council's committee-as-a-whole Monday evening, June 13 at City Hall.

Landfill runoff...

Plan recently approved by most County governmental units and now awaiting DNR approval.

There are 11 monitoring wells surrounding the landfill and samples from them are tested quarterly for Way by a chemistry laboratory. Another, more comprehensive, test is made annually by both way and the DNR, which has jurisdiction over landfills.

Larry Thornton of the DNR, who attended the recent Eveline Township meeting and who is well acquainted with the landfill, told the Courier that samples from these wells have shown no signs of leaching from the landfill.

Levengood points out that the type of contaminated water found in the roadside ditch would not show up in the monitoring wells because the ditch water is simply run-off from the top and sides of the landfill mounds.

The landfill site, is a clay basin, rare in this area, which should prevent any seepage from within the basin. This is what the wells monitor.

Thornton reports that "comparatively speaking", Way has done a good job since he was licensed last September. "He has proceeded better than most operators," according to Thornton.

The DNR officer did say, however, that the landfill has not been compacted and covered every day as required by law, especially during the winter months. "They will have to prepare for winter," he explained.

An uncovered landfill can become a nuisance with flying papers, flocks of birds, and more unpleasant odors than usual, the Eveline Township committee has noted.

Way believes he is doing a good job with the landfill and emphatically says so.

"I don't know what they (the committee) are talking about," Way told the Courier. I am a property owner on Lake Charlevoix and wouldn't think of contaminating the lake. I have a lot of money invested in the landfill and have had no trouble with the DNR. That test of the ditch water was based on one sample. They should do more testing. The water is pure enough to drink."

Working with Arnold on the landfill committee are Earl Kroll, William Crowe, and Don Bennett. Their next step,, according to Arnold, is to ask the Township Board to have more samples taken from the drainage ditch and sent to an independent testing laboratory in Wisconsin. (The same laboratory which tested blood samples of local livestock for PBB several years ago).

The committee seems to feel that such independent testing would be more satisfactory than testing done by a government agency.

Bennett is also concerned about the effect of the contamination on wildlife, especially with respect to the pond into which the ditch water flows. "The pond used to be full of ducks and other wildlife," he says, "and deer used to drink there. Now there is no sign of wildlife."

and terrorism centers" were being established. Somewhere in translation, this had come out of a planning session to an editor halfway around the world as "rape and ferrorism center".

We have to learn more about the people of the world if we are going to live successfully in tomorrow's world he continued to emphasize.

He spoke of the emergence of China as a great power, a country where a fourth of the world's popultaion lives, a country where people work for the people and not for themselves. "They will become a dynamic factor in your lives" he said of China and other emerging countries such as Tibet.

In closing he urged the students to remember that their lives can no longer be limited to what happens on this continent; that it is important that they expand their thinking, their education and learn that international events do affect their lives and learn how to deal with them. You will find that there are things you can do nothing about but you must learn to live with them.

Supernaw, who repeatedly drew upon first hand experiences to bring out his points, was introduced by Gordon W. VanWieren, Superintendent of Schools.

Gregory Andrick, as salutatorian, and Michael Fels as valedictorian, spoke of the uniqueness of the class of 1983, a class of individuals whom, they forecast, would likely go far if they channel their efforts in the proper direction.

Dennis VanGuilder, Assistant Principal, introduced the following students who received various awards and scholarships:

Laura Kemp and George Smith, the Lions Club of Charlevoix Stewart "Irish" Coleman awards; Mark Mosley, the Kiwanis Club of Charlevoix Scholarship and Service Award; Shannon Reynolds, the Earl W. Miller Scholarship "for demonstrating an aptitute in vocational trade"; Laura Kemp and Treasure Drost, North Central Michigan College Charles McCune Memorial Scholarships; Constance Borths, North Central Michigan College Harbor Industries Scholarship; Michael Fels, Michigan State University Award for Academic Excellence; Steven Cooper, the Presidential Scholarship and Gregory Andrick, the Insignis Scholarship offered by the University of Detroit.

Martin, Jack Moran, Mark Mosley, Mark Oostmeyer, Suzanne Parker, Michelle Raum, Steven Schmidt and Jonathan Supernaw have received either monetary or honorary scholarships from the Michigan Department of Education, Competitive Scholarship Program. These are given in recognition of outstanding academic achievement in the State of Michigan Scholarship Program.

Students were presented by Barry Anderson, senior class advisor, and Vane H. Smith, high school principal. Diplomas were presented by Mr. VanWieren, Max Novak and Ardeth Wieland, president and treasurer, respectively of the Charlevoix Board of Education.

Music, including the processional, the Senior selection and the National Anthem was by the Charlevoix High School Symphonic Band directed by Terry Isenbarger.

The Rev. Michael Mitchell gave the invocation and the Rev. Charles Hastie, the invocation.

Trackmen have great day but few points at State meet

The Charlevoix Rayder track team had one of its best days setting four new school records Coach Hal Evans reports.

However, their showing at the State Class C track meet at Bangor Saturday netted the team only four points for two eighth places.

The competition was tough with Detroit DePorres winning the meet with 64 ⅓ points. Rogers City came in fifth with 23 and one-third points.

Bill Taylor placed eighth in the two mile run with a time of 9:43.7 which broke the old record of 9:54.7 set by Jeff Drenth.

The 880 yard relay team of Jim Martin, George Smith, Matt Landon and Doug Sloan also took an eighth place. Their time was 3:29.7 which bettered the school record of 3:30.3.

Doug Sloan, running in the 400 M. dash, tied the existing state record to place second in the rsce in a time of 49.6. However, he was disqualified as the result of a technicality, the interpretation of a line infraction which is being contested Coach Evans said. The time bettered the school record of 50.7 which Sloan had set in the recent conference meet.

John Tunison, running the mile in 4:24.5, bettered the school record of 4:27.5. He also finished eighth.

George Smith, running in the low hurdles, tied his own and the school record of 39.8.

The 880 yard relay team of Smith, Martin, Tim LaBlance and Sloan ran the distance in 1:33.55 coming close to tieing the record of 1:33.5 set in 1974.

Coach Evans had only praise for the team not only in the state meet but for a season which, he said, was far better than he had anticipated.

Smith was the only senior among those who qualified for state competition.

At a recent home meet, Packy LaBlance clears a hurdle.

Softball team takes third straight District crown

Char-Em class for hearing impaired helps students cope with a silent world

by ANNE KELLY

The closest most of us have ever come to deafness is temporary loss of hearing. Swimming, flying or even a simple head cold can plug up our hearing passages. The cavernous world of no, or distorted sound makes us uncomfortable, even frantic. We swallow exaggerated swallows, chew bubble gum, press against the ear openings, see an ear, nose, throat specialist – anything to get back to normal.

But deafness, or marked hearing loss is the "normal", if deficient condition of a substantial number of those around us. Aware of this fact, a supportive system for the hearing impaired and their families, has been developed as part of the special services programs around the country. Television shows and news broadcasts are being captioned. American Sign Language is being demonstrated on shows like Sesame Street, so that children may grow up aware of hearing differences in people around them. Much still needs to be done for the elderly and those who suffer hearing loss later in life.

It's hard to imagine life without sound. Not just the sudden, loud or raucous, but the fine sounds: the tinkling piano, the baby's babbling, whispering, distant church bells, a lawn mower on the next block.

"What speech you hear the children attempt is probably an indication of the kinds of sounds they hear," explained Beth Townsend.

Beth teaches Char-Em's Program for the Hearing Impaired. This year the program is being housed at Boyne City Elementary School. It serves the special needs of four area children who have been deaf or hearing-impaired since birth or early childhood. They range in age from nine to twelve.

"Sometimes a child is born with the deficiency. Other times an illness, like spinal meningitis can bring it on," Beth continued.

She described the audio-discrimination levels of her four students by showing me their charts on the bulletin board. The charts were graphs describing the normal range of sound, and in contrast, the range sounds distinguishable by each child in each ear.

"They're all different," noticed Lisa, one of the kids who wished to be part of our conversation. Beth has been working with Lisa for five years now. She is making excellent progress because of her need and desire to communicate orally with those around her. Lisa, is almost totally deaf, yet she has learned to mimick speech patterns and expresses herself, so that others can understand.

All the children seemed comfortable with their handicap. There are times when each becomes frustrated, Beth explained, but I was impressed by the way they tried, and laughed and kept working at it.

"I have seen deaf students who have learned only American Sign Language (ASL). And I've worked with oral communication for the deaf."

Beth is convinced that the deaf need to learn oral communication in order to mainstream realistically into society. "They can always learn to sign," she explained, "but it's almost impossible to go back and learn the basic oral skills that might have been developed at an early age." All four of her students have been in a program for the hearing impaired since they were infants or preschoolers.

Beth's techniques in working with her students vary and are highly individualized. Sometimes they are able to be mainstreamed into regular classrooms, but most often the skills are worked on right in their classroom.

"It's wonderful for the kids to be part of a regular school," remarked Beth. The other students are generally accepting of their handicap and do their share of interpreting that which her students miss in gym class or on the playground.

I observed Beth directing Lisa and Debbie in an exercise of putting visual concepts into complete spoken sentences.

"The key is in the lock ... St. Patrick's Day is in March." The girls watched Beth, "listened" to her sounds, visually saw the words on the board, and then attempted to say the sentence. All this was accomplished by a combination of phonetical symbols, lip reading, what sounds they were able to pick up, and a lot of concentration and patience on both sides.

Meanwhile, Crystal and Tony were working individually at various stations set up for personalised instruction. Earphones with amplifiers, computers, a record player, books they have written as a group about field trips... the room looks much like any other classroom. The difference is that for students of the hearing impaired, hearing is a denied gift that must be simulated so that they may be able to communicate with their peers.

A poster on one of the bulletin boards reads: "Deafness: Breaking out takes more than sympathy"

It take a lot of willingness to listen, to interpret and to communicate. "If someone says "Hi!" to a deaf person and he just walks away, it's probably because he didn't hear anything," Beth would remind us. Try again.

Trying is an effort that Beth and her students have found most rewarding and enjoyable.

Ms. Townsend helps student Chrystal Nelson on her lip reading.

'Sing, Help, Enjoy' grant involves three local students

Three vocal music students at the Charlevoix schools have been receiving individual lessons as the result of a grant received by Fran Tollas, widely known voice instructor and soloist. The grant was received through the Michigan Council for the Arts and Chip Counseling Center.

Known as "Sing-Help-Enjoy", the purpose of the program is the teaching and encouragement of singing as a tool to better emotional health. It is also geared toward people who would otherwise not have access to musical performances and instruction in singing, Mrs. Tollas explained.

The individual lessons which started late in 1982 will continue through the summer Mrs. Tollas said.

Chosen by Steve Stargardt, who heads the vocal music department at the Charlevoix schools and counselors, those receiving individual lessons are Tina McSawby, a sophomore whose lessons are being underwritten by the Charlevoix Women's Club; Amy Smith, a senior, and Trina Wiser, a middle school seventh grader.

Two of the three will also be attending special sessions at the Blue Lake Fine Arts Camp on scholarships.

Amy Smith has been named the first recipient of the Charlevoix High School Choir Scholarship which will be given annually to a vocal student at the high school. The scholarship has been made possible through funds raised by the choir. She will also receive a Blue Lake Fine Arts scholarship making it possible for her to attend the high school choir session in August.

Trina has been named the recipient of a second Blue Lake Fine Arts Scholarship and a second offered by the Charlevoix Women's Club. She will attend the middle school choir session in June.

The grant under which Mrs. Tollas has been giving lessons to the trio expires in August. However, she is hopefully seeking funds locally to continue the program which includes mini-recital workshops as well as the individual lessons.

Mini-recital workshops were presented in Charlevoix through the high school speech program, the middle school music class and the elementary school.

Beaver Island firemen participate in intensive training

by FRAN MARTIN

The Beaver Island Volunteer Fire Department is well on its way to becoming one of the best trained firefighting units in the area.

The 20-man department headed by Tim McDonough is presently undergoing 66 hours of intensive training under Arthur Tarkowski of Flushing, retired fire chief, who flies to the island located in northern Lake Michigan on weekends to teach the course which was started in October. When it is completed in September, the island will hopefully have 20 certified Michigan Firefighters Chief McDonough siad.

In conjunction with the firefighting training, the same group has completed Red Cross First Aid and Advanced First Aid and C.P.R. (cardio-pulmonary rescusitation) courses with the First Aid course emphasizing information a firefighter would need most. This course was taught by B.J. Wyckoff, R.N., assisted in some of the classes by Dr. Leonard Siudars, island physician.

The firemen are hoping that the completion of their course of study will coincide with the completion of a new three-stall fire station to be constructed one block west of the main street in St. James. Main Street runs along St. James harbor. Bids for the structure are scheduled to be opened later this month McDonough said. Don Morgridge of Gaylord is the architect.

The fire department, officially formed in February, 1976, is a cooperative organization between the two townships which make up the island, Peaine to the south and St. James to the north where the community of St. James is located and which is more heavily populated. Both townships join in supporting the department and have contributed to a sinking fund which now contains $42,000 which will be utilized to underwrite the cost of the fire station.

A special fire committee composed of Bud Esch as chairman, Jim Wojan, Bill Wagner, Tim Timzak and Al Dudzik serve as a liasion between the department and the township boards McDonough said.

As for the firefighting equipment, Chief McDonough said "We don't have the greatest equipment in the world but we make do with it, keeping it in shape. We try to compensate by being well trained. The people in the department are a dedicated group of people."

The major pieces of equipment include 1947 and 1949 Chevrolet fire trucks and a recently acquired 1953 Dodge 1800 gallon water tanker.

The island has no central water system so is dependent on Lake Michigan for its water supply for fighting fires. The department presently has an 11 h.p. pump which will be supplemented by an 18 h.p. pump now on order. Another piece of equipment is a 1000 gallon portable canvas tank. Also included in the inventory is 1000 feet each of 1½ and 2½ inch fire hoses.

"With the addition of the new fire hose we can reach practically every home in the village" McDonough said.

Other equipment includes personal turn-out gear for the members, four Scott packs (air tanks and masks), extra air tanks, and other equipment including communication equipment, much of it purchases with funds raised by the department's auxiliary composed of eight members headed by June DeRosia.

"It is the objective of the department to offer maximum protection to our residents, visitors and property owners. This includes safety by personnel well trained in First Aid and CPR as well as firefighting" McDonough offered.

"When you're as isolated as we are, you plan and you do everything you can to protect everyone who lives here or comes to our shores. When we have an emergency we have to depend on ourselves. That is why these people are working so hard to become trained" McDonough explained.

The fire department personnel includes Tim McDonough as chief; Jim Wojan as his assistant; Larry Delamater as lieutenant and Bill McDonough as safety director.

Other members are Tom McDonough, Ron Wojan, Duane Mooney, Mark LaFreniere, Alvin LaFreniere, Rick Delamater, Perry Fortier, Dick Burris, Bob McGlocklin, Hugh Cole, Don Works, Bill Wagner who is also D.N.R. officer, Joe Timsak, John McCafferty and Rich Gillispie.

Chief McDonough was quick to add that a story about the department would not be complete without mention of its auxiliary. "You wouldn't believe the money those eight women raise," he said of them. "It was the auxiliary that has raised the funds to finance the 66 hour training course the volunteers are now receiving. In addition they have provided communication equipment and a sizable inventory of other equipment including a variety of nozzles, axes, 300 feet of hose, a heavy-duty power saw...equipment that makes our job a lot easier" McDonough added. In addition, they shared the cost of a baby mannequin for use in training with the Medical Center Auxiliary.

This hard-working group of eight sponsors potluck suppers during the winter months, soliciting potluck dishes and then preparing the food for serving, serving it and cleaning up at the Circle M supper club which donates its facilities plus supplying such things as condiments, napkins and other equipment.

They also sell anything that will bring them a profit. Their sales have included candy, light bulbs, a game known as Beaver Island-opoly designed by one of the members, Mary Scholl, who operates a toy shop. In addition to the potlucks, the group sponsors two big baked good sales during the year.

The organization is small but they're our greatest supporters McDonough said of them, adding that they also make up the island warning system in the event of a fire or any other emergency.

The members are Mrs. DeRosia, president; Doris Shirk, vice president; Joan Petrak, secretary; Carol Wanty, treasurer; Mrs. Scholl who is art chairman; Carol LaFrenier, Chris Butler and EmmaJean Belfy.

Note: The idea for this story and most of the material for it was provided by B.J. Wyckoff who operates a shop on the island.

Six of the eight members of the Auxiliary of the Beaver Island Volunteer Fire Department are pictured at a recent meeting.

They are (l to r) June DeRosia, Mary Scholl, Carol Wanty, Doris Shirk, Joan Petrak and Carol LaFreniere.

Golf tourney raises over $500 for March of Dimes

Fifty-one golfers from Detroit, Harbor Springs, Petoskey, Boyne City and Charlevoix dodged the raindrops to compete in the Fourth Annual March of Dimes Two-Man Best-Shot Tournament at the Belvedere Golf Club on Monday, May 31st in Charlevoix to raise over $500 for March of Dimes.

The tourney was originally scheduled for Sunday, but because of a steady rain which made for a soggy course, the event was rescheduled for the following day. A cloudy sky and a light rain greeted the golfers on Monday, but Mas Gennett, head greenskeeper, deemed the course fit for play.

Beaver Island's oldest one-family owned business celebrated its fiftieth anniversary at one site recently.

The business was McDonough's Market and the occasion - a picnic with all the trimmings held at the Bud McDonough Memorial Ball Park to which the entire island population was invited.

Hosting the event were Tim and Bill McDonough who now operate the market and their mother Skip McDonough.

The lucky island kids who were awarded the 10-speed bicycles given away at the picnic were another McDonough, Erin, daughter of a cousin, the Kevin McDonoughs and Becky Kenwabikise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Kenwabikise.

One of the highlights of the event was a pinata containing 20 pounds of goodies made by Barbara Rakowski.

Though the McDonoughs were celebrating a half century under the McDonough name, the building itself, located along St. James harbor, was constructed some 80 years ago by a Wilbur F. Gill, one of the island's earliest businessmen according to research done by Phil Gregg, an island resident. In a story that appeared in the "Beaver Beacon", the store was built of lumber harvested on the island by one of the island's first industries, the Beaver Island Lumber Co.

The lumber company was said to be the biggest commercial venture ever attempted on the island located in northern Lake Michigan, 32 miles northwest of Charlevoix and 22 miles off Cross Village.

The venture included construction of a railroad, a huge dock and a saw mill. More manpower was needed so many families were imported from Freesoil, Michigan. To house the new families, homes were built around the mill on the harbor and both sides of a street known as Freesoil which is the first street south of the present McDonough's Market.

On May 16, 1903, the Beaver Island Lumber Co. purchased the store from Gill and operated it as a company store which was also open to all residents of the island.

The only customers were those who lived on the island so the inventory included only those things that met their needs such as wool pants with side suspenders, lumber jack shirts, a few licorice sticks for the kids and a slab of salt pork.

After the supply of fine virgin timber ran out, the company store was sold to John Grill on May 15, 1916, for a sum of $800.

With lumbering a thing of the past, commercial fishing took over and a few summer visitors discovered the beautiful island. Hob-nailed boots and cant hooks were replaced with items to meet the needs of the present residents. Most of the food items were purchased in bulk amounts, such as barrels of flour and bags of coffee beans which were ground on order. A long row of slant-front jars with metal screw tops displayed a variety of store cookies, crackers and hard candy. The aroma alone, 'tis said, was all the sales pitch that was needed.

On another May day, this one May 6, 1933, John Grill sold the store to Lloyd and Eva McDonough for a sum of $3,542.46, an amount which was larger that it looks today because this was in the midst of the Great Depression of the 1930s. On the first day as McDonough's Market, the new owners took in a total of $21.80 it was recorded.

With the changing times, the inventory as well as the structure changed. Being astute business people and specialists in public relations, the McDonoughs developed a going business despite the depression.

After 39 years in the business and following the death of his wife, Mr. McDonough sold the business to his son, Bud and his wife, the former Edna "Skip" Johnson on May 10, 1972. Bud had worked in the store since 1953 and Skip since 1954.

Mrs. McDonough continued to work in the store taking time out only as each new addition came along, namely Tim, Tom, Dan, Bill, Jim, LynnAnne and Todd. Following Bud's untimely death in 1981, the operation of the store was taken over by Tim and Bill McDonough.

Now a modern market complete with shopping carts and electronic cash registers and an inventory that has kept abreast of today's needs it is a far cry from its humble beginning in 1902. However, it's still one of a kind...a general store meeting the primary needs of the community and an ideal place to catch up with what's going on in the community!

In the class profile written by the counseling staff in 1975, it is noted that "Students entering the armed services are increasing in number, primarily as a result of the services becoming an attractive alternative to work or college and also because of the high level of unemployment. This year's (1975) class has 10 students or approximately seven percent entering the armed services, as compared to an average of three or four students over the past few years."

Eight years later, there is little apparent change in attitudes toward the service since again, ten members of the Class of '83, or about eight percent, plan to enlist.

Of the 54 students who do not plan on enrollment in college next year, 19 indicate that they may continue college at a later date. Twenty-nine of the students have a job right now but 16 of those are seeking a different job. Another 15 are seeking a job.

There were only eight graduates in the Charlevoix High School class of 1901, but their commencement exercises on June 6 of that year, held in the Methodist Church, are duly recorded in an embossed white program with gold printing and tied with a pink ribbon.

All eight graduates participated in the program. Mary E. Jones delivered the valedictory and Lula M. Dodge delivered the salutatory. The class history was read by Mary E. Tysver and the class prophesy was read by Jeannette F. Campbell.

The other four graduates read essays: Maybelle L. Francis on "Don't Give Up the Ship", Adeline S. Holley on "Things That Cost Nothing", William C. Bellinger on "Wit and Humor", and Ora S. Cooper on "Ideals".

The class address was delivered by Harker Kirby, who had graduated the year before. He was the father of Tinker Kirby, who furnished us with the program. Other participants in the commencement exercises were "Misses Campbell and Bedford", who played an instrumental duet; "Miss See", who provided a vocal solo; "Messrs. Kirby and Levinson", who played an instrumental duet; "Mr. Jacobs", who provided a vocal solo; Clare and Clyde Coulter, who played a violin duet; and a "Male Quartette", who provided more music.

"Presentation of Diplomas" was part of the program but there is no mention of who presented them. As was the custom many years ago, the program opened with an invocation and closed with a benediction.

Test well may lead to new approach for water supply

by DAVE KNIGHT

City Council took a tentative step toward drilling a new municipal well Monday night to provide a source of water free of the contaminant trichloroethylene (TCE).

Following over three and half hours of input from state Department of Public Health officials, a Department of Natural Resources technician and several citizens, Council members huddled among themselves before reaching agreement to drill "at least one test well".

No specific details on where the test well is to be located were discussed at Monday night's meeting which was designated as a committee-as-a-whole work session and not a regular Council meeting. A formal resolution stating the Council's wishes is expected to be on its regular meeting agenda of June 20.

Council was notified on June 6 by the state Health Department that the city faced possible enforcement action including condemnation of the municipal water system if it did not at least show progress toward eliminating the TCE contamination from city water. City officials have been asked to appear at a Health Department meeting June 24 in Lansing to state their intentions.

Discovered in the city water system in October of 1981, TCE is an industrial chemical that is suspected to cause cancer. No source of the contamination has yet been identified but the TCE is presently being detected in the city water at levels averaging about 40 parts per billion.

Health Department District Engineer Timothy Benton said of the Council's action Monday night that his department will require more specifics before it approves or disapproves of the plan.

Said Benton, "We'd like to see the Council expand on their ideas; the what, when and how."

He added that, in addtion to a resolution, the state Health Department will want to know the precise dates the city intends to proceed on a test well if that is the direction in which they decide to go.

While Council opted to acquiesce toward Health Department and citizen urgings for action by the city, Mayor Kenneth Staley expressed a strong personal position that the state has mishandled the situation and that it is solely responsible for corrective measures.

In a letter to Benton read aloud by Staley Monday night, the mayor said, "The (Health) Department determination that the construction and operation of the water works system is inadequate or is operated so as to not adequately protect the public health has no basis in fact."

Staley went on in the letter to say that the search for the source of TCE contamination should continue and that the city, rather than jumping to a completely new source such as a lake water intake, should concentrate on cleaning up the existing source.

Said Staley, "We intend to clean up our supply. We cleaned up Round Lake a few years ago."

He suggested that state and federal agencies cooperate more on Charlevoix's behalf.

"We want you to spend equal time helping Charlevoix to get Federal help to reduce underground contamination and-or build public works projects with predetermined (before election) fund assistance," said Staley.

He criticised the Health Department's public statements on the matter saying, "Many of the unfounded fears you have been releasing to the news media may be grounds for class action by tourist dependent cities. There is much displeasure with the department throughout the state – not unlike the situation that influenced the removal of department heads in other agencies."

DNR hydrogeoloist Thrasos Eftaxiadis, who has been coordinating the search for the source of the contamination, told the Council that only by drilling a series of 15 to 20 new monitoring wells is there a chance of pinpointing the source.

Eftaxiadis said that to drill the wells alone would cost from $90,000 to $100,000 but that a full feasibility study which would include locating the source and recommending the most cost-effective means of dealing with it would require an expense of up to $475,000.

Application has been made, he added, to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) for Superfund money to continue the search for the contamination.

In questioning Benton and fellow Health Department engineer Michael Kovach, Council members Ray Wood and Clement Olsch both asked why the Health Department has not defined the level of TCE contamination it considers dangerous.

"You haven't been listening," said Benton, "We are dealing with a risk potential. You should look at it as having the same risk as if you were drinking water with lead in it."

Kovach also pointed out that the TCE contamination is a symptom of other potential problems and that the Charlevoix city well is "vulnerable" because of its poor rating on construction and isolation.

Training expenses appear county's

by PEG OHLE

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners called a meeting yesterday to ascertain its responsibilities for training persons involved in disaster relief.

What they found out is that most of the costs of such training lay directly on the County's shoulders. This apparently means that somehow the County will have to come up with over $40,000 to meet requirements laid down by the Federal and State governments.

Lieut. James Tyler of the Emergency Management Division of the Michigan State Police esplianed that his Department, using Federal funds, was carrying on educational training sessions in areas near nuclear plants.

These sessions deal with such things as radiation, how to measure it, how to protect against it, and how to administer primary care for those injured by it. These subjects are included in Parts I and II of the Emergency Training plan required by law and were covered in sessions in Charlevoix last fall.

This is where the financial responsibility of the State stops, according to Tyler. "We do not put people on the road or even arrange for evaluation locally", he told the Commissioners.

This means that the costs of training participants in Parts III and IV of the Emergency Training plan, which cover jobs performed by law enforcement officers, firemen, ambulance attendants, and school bus drivers must be borne by the County. This would not be much if it only included training materials and the time of a few knowledgeable persons. But some of these public safety people have refused to attend the training sessions unless they are paid for the time spent in training.

To cite a few examples, public servants who have eceived the necessary training to date include 33 percent of the Charlevoix Police Department, 50 percent of the Sheriff's Department, 12 out of 20 members of the Charlevoix Fire Department, along with 15 out of 23 members of the Charlevoix Township Department. Twenty-three members of the 36-member Charlevix County Road Commission have been trained, as have four of the 14 members of the Grandvue staff.

On the other hand, none of the school bus drivers in Boyne City, East Jordan, or Ellsworth have been trained, nor have the Boyne City and East Jordan ambulance drivers.

Representatives of Consumers Power Co. (who operate Big Rock Nuclear Power plant) were also in attendance at the meeting.

They previously told the Board of Commissioners that they had no "authority to mobilize off-site disaster relief focuses", which in their minds also includes training.

However, Big Rock has spent hundreds of thousands of dollars for a public warning siren system, printing costs of a booklet explaining the siren system, installation and operation of special telephone lines of the County office of Emergency Services, training emergency room staffs in Charlevoix and Petoskey (an annual expense), and consulting fees to guide the development of annual emergency exercise (also an annual expense).

So the County is left with the job of "finding" the money which Emergency Services Director Early Muma says he will need to finish the training program, add some more phone lines into his headquarters, and pay for some secretarial help.

One ray of light was exposed yesterday – a new State law will require school bus drivers to receive disaster response training, which means that the costs of training them will come from School millage renewed, Drenth re-elected

Voters in the Charlevoix School District gave their approval to a 15.25 mill renewal for one year by a wide margin in the annual election held here Monday.

The millage issue received the approval of the voters by a margin of 391 to 130. The turnout represents 13.2 percent of a possible 4200 registered voters according to Vincent Olach, the business manager who was in charge of the election.

Incumbent Robert Drenth was elected to a four year term on the board of education by a vote of 385 to 107 our John J. Crinnion.

Following the election, Supt. Gordon W. VanWieren said, "We appreciate the support the public has given its school system. We have just completed a good year and now we can start planning for another year. It is a good feeling to know that we have the support of the people in the district.

The district also conducted a straw vote relating to the proposed summer tax collection. Voters were given three options: collection of 50 percent of the school taxes in the summer and the remaining 50 percent in December: all the school taxes in the summer or leave the collection as it is now; (i.e. in December.)

The first proposal received 205 votes; the second, 42 votes and the third, to leave the collection as it is, 82.

Only one city race develops

One contest developed in the forthcoming city election as the deadline for filing nominating petitions passed last week.

This will be in the third ward where a former councilman, F. Earl Muma and Paul O. Burlew filed for the office of third ward alderman. They are seeking election to the post filled by Clement Olach who was appointed last fall to serve out the unexpired term of the late Joseph Morris, Jr.

Charlevoix's first ward was also assured of a new councilman. Michael A. Greeley filed for the post being vacated by Jeffrey L. Porter.

Robert N. Timms, incumbent, will by unopposed for the council seat in the second ward.

Incumbent Deanne Balch will be unopposed for the office of city clerk.

There will be no primary election in August. The General Election will be held Nov. 8.

Cures prescribed for ailing County Transit System

by PEG OHLE

What if you operated a Transit System that attracted few people and every passenger you did have added to your net loss. Charlevoix County has that problem.

The beleagored Charlevoix County Transit system has been examined, probed, and diagnosed by an ad hoc committee appointed by the County Board of Commissioners.

The diagnosis is that the Transit System most of all needs a new environment, proper supervision, and guidance toward a more useful existance.

The ad hoc committee's report to the Board of Commissioners last week delved into the troubles of the Transit System, which will be three years old on August 1. Major concerns about the System as expressed by the committee are its relationship with the County Commission on Aging, poor acceptance by the general public, inadequate record keeping, minimal promotion, unrealistic scheduling of buses, and replacement of buses as they near maximum mileage.

The first recommendation of the ad hoc committee is that the Transit System be separated from the Commission on Aging, which has been its administering body since the beginning. This would help do away with the misconception that the System is primarily for senior citizens and handicapped persons.

Weatherization funds to be increased for area

by PEG OHLE

A little-publicised service being offered through funds provided under the Federal jobs bill is the home weatherization program for persons of limited income.

Because of these extra funds, the Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency, which has been weatherizing homes for the last five years, will be able to double the number of homes it weatherizes between now and September 30.

The work is done for eligible persons at no cost to them. Robert Foley of Human Services explains eligibility as "high fuel bills and low income". Specifically, this means families with a household income of $6,075 for one person, plus $2,100 for each additional family member.

Human Services can provide funds to seal houses to eliminate drafts, to supply water heater blankets, to insulate attics to about 11 inches, to insulate floors over unheated basements and crawl spaces, to install aluminum storm windows, and to attach skirts to mobile homes, among other things.

The Federal government limits material costs for each job to $560, although in the case of some large older homes, they may authorize up to $860, according to Foley. "We do a complete job", he explained. "In some cases we have been able to reduce fuel consumption by 38 percent".

The Human Services Agency has weatherized over 250 homes in Charlevoix County in the last five years, Foley said. They maintain work crews in Traverse City, Cadillac, and the Petoskey-Charlevoix area, but are presently looking for a private contractor in the Charlevoix area to do some work. Interested contractors should contact him in Traverse City at 947-3780.

Eligible homeowners who want to sign up for the program should call the Human Services Agency in Petoskey at 347-9070.

High school report cards coming next week

Report cards for Charlevoix High School students will be mailed to the parents' home during the week of June 20, 1983. The materials regarding grades and attendance will be sent to the computer center as soon as school is out and will take about one week for computer processing.

Local home tour planned

by PEG OHLE

There will be something special to do in Charlevoix on Saturday afternoon, July 18.

That's the day that Kappa Sigma sorority has scheduled its second annual Charlevoix Home Tour for the benefit of the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Six of the most interesting homes in Charlevoix will be open from 1 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. for public viewing.

Included are two Earl Young houses, one of which is known by the intriguing name of "Mushroom House", and the other by the descriptive name of "Boulder House".

Also included are two units in The Lake House Condominium perched atop a bluff overlooking Lake Michigan. One unit is described as "combining a contemporary setting with exquisite antiques"; the other as being "designed with a southwest contemporary look".

There is also an in-town summer home designed "to create an atmosphere of European Country grace...(with each) bedroom furnished with the decor of a different country".

Another home is located on Lake Charlevoix with a "spectacular view from each level". Its furnishings are traditional, providing an "elegant charm".

Tickets for the Home Tour are now on sale at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and The Apple Tree in Charlevoix, the Petoskey Chamber of Commerce, and the Tin Soldier in Harbor Springs. The price is $10.. No children under 12 will be permitted on the tour.

Fourth to be marked by Champagne Cruise

The sound of fireworks won't be the only thing popping on board the Beaver Islander this 4th of July.

The ship, carrying passengers for the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce Champagne Cruise, will board at 9:30 p.m. and depart at 9:45 p.m. from the Beaver Island Boat Dock in Charlevoix. The boat will then cruise the North Arm of Lake Charlevoix to Boyne City where those aboard may view a fantastic fireworks display. For listening and dancing, there will be a band aboard the ship. Beverages and snacks will be available and there will be a cash bar.

The [illegible] ship will sail regardless of weather as it has an enclosed protected area.

Tickets must be purchased in advance. The cost is $8.00 per person. For more information or to obtain tickets contact the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, 408 Bridge Street, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720. Phone: 616-547-2101.

Don't miss this exciting 4th of July event!

May home starts perk up

For the first time in several months, May figures for new home starts in Charlevoix County number in double digits.

Permits for 13 residences were issued by the Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection during the month. Construction costs of these homes is estimated at $662,704, or almost $51,000 a unit, exclusive of land, plumbing, heating, and electrical costs.

Permits for other types of construction in the County also increased in May. They included 13 for residential additions and remodeling, 13 for residential garages, two for decks and porches, one for a new commercial building, two for commercial additions and remodeling, five for demolitions, one for a relocation, seven for mobile homes and mobile home additions, and three for residential outbuildings.

With nine permits, Melrose Township led all governmental units in building activity, followed by East Jordan, seven permits; Hayes Township and the City of Charlevoix, six permits each; Charlevoix Township, Eveline Township, and Wilson Township, five permits each; Bay Township, Boyne Valley Township, and Boyne City, three permits each; St. James Township and South Arm Township, two permits each; and Chandler Township, Hudson Township, Norwood Township, and Peaine Township, one permit each.

So far this year, the Department of Building Inspection has issued 161 permits. Estimated construction costs amount to $2,312,180.

DNR agrees to weir studies

Apparently hearing the voices of local people, the Department of Natural Resources has decided to make engineering studies of possible sites for a fish weir on the Jordan River.

The DNR had previously selected a site on the portion of the river designated as a "Wild Scenic River". This area is protected by certain restrictions, including construction of dams. The fish weir would be a cement dam rising about 18 inches out of the water.

The Charlevoix County Planning Commission, in its first consideration of the project, suggested that the DNR prove that the selected site was the best one possible and present engineering studies to show that to be the case.

Other area organizations and inviduals expressed similar concerns at two public meetings held on the matter.

Last week, in Lansing, Charlevoix County Planner Larry Sullivan learned that the DNR had agreed to make engineering studies of a site downstream from the proposed site, near where Deer Creek flows into the Jordan, and out of the Scenic River area.

Sites nearer the mouth of the Jordan River which were suggested by East Jordan residents apparently will not be considered because of the added costs of building a weir in that area.

The whole project is now on hold awaiting results of the engineering study.

MONSTER MORELS were still being found in the area last week such as this one picked by Alex Stoneham which was seven inches high, 11 inches around and weighed about half a pound.

Knight on the Town

Many voices, one song

by Dave Knight

The people spoke up at Monday night's City Council meeting and eventually were heard.

The extraordinary thing about it was that while everyone was singing a different tune, one song came through loud and clear.

Some thought the TCE contamination was not a problem and wanted it dismissed as such. Some felt just as strongly that it posed a serious health threat and wanted it eliminated immediately. Some were dubious about the health threat it posed but were concerned about the damage to Charlevoix's tourist economy done by the bad publicity.

Of the 50 or so people in attendance, I don't think two had the exact same views on the subject.

But the message that came out of the cacophony so very clearly was that Council had to act.

Not next week, not next month.

To his credit, Mayor Staley took a stand and was instrumental in charging the Council to do the same.

There comes a point in government when elected officials have all the input they are going to get and must make the tough decisions. Granted, there have been some tough decisions made already and will be a few more before this business is behind us.

As said here before, nobody ever accused a Council member of having the easiest job in the world. It's a thankless, no-win proposition more times than not.

But now that Council has managed to take a new tack toward the final solution of the TCE dilemma, here's hoping the momentum will continue until the destination is reached.

Clockwise

Taking it to the street

by Bob Clock

SOMETIMES I AM sorry that I spent 18 months in Japan because I picked up some ideas about merchandising — particularly of food products — that apparently are un-American.

Take street vendors, for example. Vendors in the 1950s were an integral part of the street scene in Tokyo and Yokohama. You could pick up a tasty dish of soba noodles or a plate of deep fried tempura on almost any street corner.

After dark, you could hear the plaintiff flute melody of the soba peddler working his way through the aromatic alleys of the mysterious East. The melody consisted of three consecutive notes up the scale, three down, three up, three down and one up. Try it on the piano, starting with Middle C.

Itinerant masseurs and masseuses also announced their presence in the neighborhood with flute music, so you had to learn which tune belonged to which vendor or you'd go hungry.

STREET VENDORS also were fairly common in Detroit when I was a kid. In our neighborhood we even had a waffle-man who came down the street in his ancient truck every evening. I can still hear his call: "Waffles! Waffles! Three for a nickle, six for a dime, they keep you smiling all the time. Nice and sweet, they tickle your feet. Waffles! Waffles!"

The waffles were baked fresh on an iron mounted at the rear of the truck and dusted with powdered sugar. Kids used to lope along next to the truck and deliver orders to folks rocking on their front porches. If you kept with the waffle-man for a block or two he'd give you a freebie and you'd skip all the way home with powdered sugar on your face.

Of course, ice cream vendors were common throughout the city, selling their wares from boxes cooled with dry-ice mounted on bicycles.

We also had bakery wagons, milk wagons, vegetable wagons — you name it, we had it.

In June strawberry peddlers went door to door calling "Three quarts for a quarter!" In July we had raspberry peddlers. The price never changed: "Three quarts for a quarter.!" I think they liked the assonance.

The photographer came around with his pony and took pictures of kids sitting on the pony's back.

The "curtain-man" with a truck full of yardgoods made regular stops.

Downtown you could buy little brown bags of fresh-roasted chestnuts from sidewalk vendors on Woodward Avenue.

And at Navin Field, (pardon me, Briggs Stadium; pardon me, Tiger Stadium) you could pick up a full-course meal in half a block, with peanuts-salted-in-the-shell for dessert. If you were lucky you could talk your old man into coughing up enough money to buy a Tiger pennant and a baseball cap.

BUT FEW PEOPLE in Northern Michigan apparently remember those glorious old days like I do. If they did, our city councils would not be taking such a dim view of enterprising folks who attempt to sell hot dogs on the sidewalk.

The latest imbroglio is in East Jordan, but Charlevoix ran into a similar problem last year.

Somehow city fathers feel that street vendors detract from a community — when exactly the opposite is true. For my money, sidewalk merchants make a town a more attractive, lively and exciting place to visit and shop. If a fellow feels he can make a decent living selling hot dogs on the street, more power to him. Maybe the city should pay him to go into business.

Members of our august city councils also seem to feel that they are doing a disservice to tax-paying food merchants by allowing itinerant restaurateurs to peddle hot dogs in the park — even though itinerants usually are assessed a fee for doing business and do not get off scot-free.

If hot dog wagons pose any real competition to our fine, world-renowned restaurants, then we're in deeper trouble than I thought.

Transit cures sought

The committee recommends further that the manager of the Transit System be hired on a full-time basis (not shared with the Commission on Aging as is the case at present). A three-person Transit Committee, which would meet quarterly or more often if necessary, would replace the Commission on Aging as the administering body and the transit manager would report directly to them.

To provide adequate financial information, the committee recommends an audit of Transit accounts, adoption of standard accounting procedures, monthly trial balance sheets; voucher systems for payroll and bills, a calendar year budget, and publicizing financial reports.

In the category of everyday operations, the committee recommends a long-term lease on a building (with cancellation privileges), hiring a full-time mechanic, a campaign to promote ridership, written work rules for drivers and other employees (including what service a driver should provide a passenger), improved driver logs, published dispatch hours, review procedures for transit contracts, using the buses as an advertising medium for extra revenue, reduction in total bus mileage, and an increase in fares (possibly using a zone structure).

For permanent records, the committee recommends an annual report of Transit System activities and an inventory of Transit tools and equipment.

The ad hoc committee was appointed following the approval last November of a one-quarter-mill County tax levy to supplement Federal and State funds used to run the Transit System. As of August 1 of this year, Federal and State funds will be cut to 50 percent of operating costs, with fare box receipts and local funding making up the difference.

The Charlevoix County Transit system is big business. Last year's operating expenses were $263,018, which resulted in an operating loss of $5,927. The System runs eight buses from locations in Charlevoix, East Jordan, and Boyne City and employs 11 persons full time and three part time.

During 1982, the Transit system provided 77,388 passenger rides. Of these, 24,445 were senior citizens, 19,669 were handicapped persons, 8,406 were senior citizens meal deliveries, 2,340 were Boyne Falls students, 217 were various free riders, and 24,311 were unclassified business commuters, shoppers, doctors' and dentists' patients, and others.

To provide this service to County residents, Transit system buses covered 298,021 miles in 1982, at a cost of $1,020 a day, 88 cents a mile, and $3.40 per passenger. Passengers contributed fares averaging only 16 cents a ride toward this cost.

As indicated by the above figures, there is substantial room for improvement of service as well as the financial picture. That is what the ad hoc committee's recommendations are designed to accomplish.

The Board of Commissioners took no action on the report last week to give Art Saworski, the Transit system manager, time to read the report and comment on it. As previously noted, Saworski has also been serving as manager of the Commission on Aging, from which the Transit System will be separated.

Members of the ad hoc committee who submitted the report are County Commissioner Don Smith, chairman; Marvin Loding; Ralph Richardson; Vince Olach; and Fred Welch.

Letters: A suggestion for water

To the Editor:

This is an open letter to Michigan State Health Department, the City of Charlevoix City Council, and the Township Board of the Charlevoix Township.

Much has been said these past twelve months about the City of Charlevoix's water problems and much remains to be done to solve them satisfactorily.

Having been around Charlevoix County for some 30 years working as an engineer for the City of Charlevoix, the City of East Jordan, and the Township of Charlevoix on some of their public water and sewage systems I think I have some knowledge of their systems and their problems.

Since the State Health Department engineer will be attending the City of Charlevoix City Council meeting this coming June 13th in regards to city's water problems, I have some suggestions for solution of these problems from the standpoint of an engineer and as of the users of the city public water.

Frankly speaking, it is sickening to me to be forced to use city water strongly polluted with TCE and to put up with city's apparent reluctance to do anything about it. The council's contention that the city voters' rejection of funding the Lake Michigan proposed water supply does not mean the people are content with using the now contaminated water. They merely rejected the tax burden of fonding the Lake Michigan water and did not necessarily reject other alternatives for the solution of the problem, and there are other feasable and economic alternatives. Such as, for example, what the city of Petoskey has adopted and they have the same problems as we have here in Charlevoix. Petoskey is just as close to Lake Michigan as we are in Charlevoix yet they chose to drill two production wells rather than take Lake Michigan water.

We could do the same thing here in Charlevoix. I am sure from my knowledge of local wells that we also could get good well water that will not require treatment and be relatively inexpensive by drilling two wells, one near the new elevated storage tank on the north side of the city. This well, I am almost sure, will be in sand and gravel formation, and the other well to be drilled near the city's present reservoir and pumping station. This second well I am sure will be in a fractured limestone formation and should be free of TCE pollution. It is a known fact that Charlevoix Township has two good wells in limestone formation about a mile southwest of the city's pumping station. The water in these wells is of excellent quality and does not require any treatment whatsoever.

While the city is exploring the two wells I have proposed above, it should use some of the township's water to dilute the city's TCE water and thus reduce the potential health risk to people of the city.

Another suggestion I have to offer is to ask the township to finance the city's proposed well by the elevated storage tank on the north side instead of the township spending $100,000 on the proposed 100,000 gallon storage tank of their own, the financing of which has been rejected by their poeple for the present.

Eventually both the city and the township will have to have incommon both water and sewer systems, and I think they should be urged to merge their water and sewer systems for the good of both communities. This does not mean, however, that it has to be a political merging at the same time.

Both the city and the township have in the past cooperated in emergencies when their water systems temporarily failed. Why no cooperate to merge these systems permanently and thus eliminate the unnecessary tax burdens by elimination of duplicate systems? The two proposed city wells could cost about two hundred thousand dollars. The city should pay for one well and the township pay for the other one. The system proposed by the city to use Lake Michigan water may cost two million dollars in the long run and I don't blame the city voters for turning it down. The wells are much cheaper and the water in them will be just as good or even better than Lake Michigan water and the chance that it could be polluted by discharge from city's sewage treatment plant could be real since both the discharge from the plant and intake for drinking water will be in the same general area as I understand. Also, it has been reported in the past by city employees that the visiting boats in Charlevoix discharge their sewage holding tanks just outside of the channel rather than bother emptying them in the city's facilities. The public swimming beach is also in the same general area.

In case of failure of our two communities to solve their water and sewage problems to everybodys satisfaction, perhaps an "Authority" can be set up similar to Harbor Springs area for sewage disposal thus eliminating the necessity for political merger.

Agrees on weather

To the Editor:

Referring to Bob Clock's editorial on the weather I will agree with him that this has been a cold spring.

I have kept temperature records for the past 35 years. Early March was mild like much of the weather, but the latter part of March was cold. Temperatures for the month averaged out about normal.

April did average out about normal. My mean temperature for May was 47.1 degrees. This was about 4 degrees below normal. In 1961 and 1963, May temperatures averaged about the same. In 1966 and 1967, temperatures averaged about three degrees colder than this year.

In the winter of 1963, Lake Michigan froze all the way across and this made for a cooler spring.

There is one thing I have noticed in the past year. We have had much less sunshine since last September. There have been days of sunshine but they have been fewer. This lack of sunshine, especially in the springtime, keeps Lake Michigan from warming up, and holding our temperatures down.

All winter and through April, precipitation was below normal, but in May, the rainfall was about double the normal.

Disaster training...

other sources.

County Commissioner Don Smith expressed his opposition to paying any public servants for attending a disaster training session. "We should be able to come up with some kind of a plan where they can be trained on the job, or maybe at their regular scheduled department meeting times," he suggested.

Charlevoix City Manager Bob Hunt said he was sure his City employees would cooperate with any responsible plan.

Big Rock Plant Manager David P. Hoffman remarked that he had heard from several local business people that they would do all they could to help if they knew what would be required of them.

Charlevoix Mayor Ken Staley told the group that the City council was behind Big Rock and appreciated their disaster predaredness assistance to date.

Christa-Maria asked that consideration be given to putting a member of the general public on any committee appointed to consider emergency preparedness in the future.

Jim Mills expressed his belief that Muma was doing a good job and should be provided with the funds he needs.

City Council...

Other comments from Council members included those of Shirley Roloff who said, "I want to change it (the present water system) but I just don't know how to go about it," and James Block who said, "Frankly, I don't know what to do about it."

Thomas Duke, a frequent supporter of carbon filtration in past months, repeated his belief that carbon filters would be the most inexpensive alternative for the city.

Duke urged the Council to proceed immediately with the filters and went as far as offering to loan the city money to do it.

Said Duke, "This Council could order filters in five minutes and if the Health Department says no, that's what attorneys are for."

After several citizens and City Manager Robert Hunt made strong pleas for the Council to come to some sort of consensus, Mayor Staley closed the meeting to all public comments and directed Council members to discuss the situation with each other. After about 15 minutes of discussion among themselves, Staley announced that all six had agreed to drill a test well as suggested in a proposal by local engineer Gregory Shadko.

No further mention was made, however, about where and when such a well shall be drilled.

June art exhibit at McCune

An exceptionally fine exhibit of contemporary prints by leading American artists will be on display throughout the month of June at the Virginia McCune Arts Center, opening Saturday, June 4, at 10 a.m.

The prints were selected and are on loan from the Gertrude Kasle collection. Robert Rauschenberg, one of the featured artists, is represented by 5 powerful lithographs; Jim Dine has a series of 4 delightful collage-etchings; and Jasper Johns, Larry Rivers, Marison, Gottlib, Custon, Frankenthaler and Bontecou all have provocative work in the show.

The printing techniques range from lithograph to photo-lithos, etching-aqua tints to a large double wood cut. Many of the prints were made at Universal Limited Art Editions, the famous workshop run by the late Tatyana Grosman, on Long Island, New York. The standards of the print makers are consistantly high and recognized by museums and collectors around the world for their fine qualtiy.

The Crooked Tree Arts Council is fortunate that Gertrude Kasle has shown a personal interest in their growth as an educational body, and has selected this group of works from her vast collection aquired directly from the artists. She is one of the most respected art dealers in the country and certainly among the more generous.

The exhibition gives people in the area an opportunity to see original art work they would be unlikely to see outside of major art centers or reproduced in art magazines and books.

Docent tours are available for groups wishing to learn more about the contemporary artists' vision. Please call for arrangements at 347-4337.

Gym club to bring world class gymnast Connor for local exhibition

by ANNE KELLY

A special treat awaits gymnastic students, parents and fans on June 25, as Charlevoix Gym Club brings world renowned gymnast Bart Connor to the Charlevoix High School Gymnasium.

The event will be a benefit performance for the club and will feature an all-star exhibition of gymnasts from selected clubs around the state including Western Michigan University who will perform along with Bart Connor.

Bart Connor

Charlevoix Gym Club students from Charlevoix, Gaylord and Cheboygan will have the opportunity of attending a clinic with Bart prior to the 8:00 p.m. performance. The show will mark the second time the Gym Club has brought a World Class gymnast to the area. In 1981, Kurt Thomas performed at Glacier Dome Arena in Traverse City.

The 25-year-old Connor, formerly of the University of Oklahoma under coach Paul Ziert, comes to Charlevoix with an impressive set of credentials including: three-time American Cup Champion; World Cup Champion, Pommel Horse, 1979; World Champion, Parallel Bars, 1979-1981; member of the 1976 and 1980 Olympic Teams; World Games, Moscow, U.S.S.R. (highest ranked U.S. Gymnast); 14-time All American. Connor will be heading to the 1984 Olympics as well.

Accompanying Bart for the performance will be University of Oklahoma sophomore Mark Oates whose best events are floor exercise and vaulting where he averaged 9.3 and 9.6 respectively last year. Oates "loves the high bar because of the challanges and thrills of swinging difficult skills."

The June 25 performance by Connor, Oates, and talented gymnasts from around the state promises to be one of the most exciting sporting event brought to Northern Michigan this year. Tickets will be $6.00 per person and will be available at designated locations in the near future.

Yachting Notes

by A. Nony Mouse

June 6

There is nothing more graceful than watching a sailboat under full canvas in a fair breeze, and nothing that appears more ridiculous than a sailboat under full canvas in no wind. So goes the life of a racing sailor. It could be said that they are all dressed up and no where to go. It was just that on Wednesday night at the races except for the team of Craig Tallberg and Bill Kennifect on PINE RIVER HUMMER. They picked their way around the course avoiding the light spots to win the race by a handsome margin. The race started with a fair westerly breeze and began to lighten as it progressed, causing the bulk of the fleet to finish very late.

PYGMALION, occasionally referred to as Miss Piggy, had a much better race this. She managed to keep the boat pointing very well on the up wind legs and seperated herself from the bulk of the fleet. CAMOUFLAGE held off attacks by NIGHT MOVES and INDOOROPHILLY, to retain third place. NIGHT MOVES was forth again this week (C'mon Bill, you can do it) just ahead of Hank Cawthra on INDOOROPHILLY.

Twenty four boats participated in the second point race of the season and according to insiders, that number should grow to 30 plus as the season warms up.

For those of you who prefer to watch the races, pack yourself a picnic basket and come on down to the Ferry Ave. beach for one of the best viewing spots in town. The races start on Wednesday evenings at 6:00 p.m.

June 13

The third sail race of the Charlevoix Yacht Club proved to be a test of skill and the skippers ability to detect the persistant wind shift of a dying westerly breeze on the final leg of the course. The lead changed hands at least five times between five different boats to make for quite an exciting finish.

PINE RIVER HUMMER dug her way over to the right side of the course and ordered all crew to the front of the boat. Chants of "Bow down for boat speed" could be heard ringing across the lake. This technique must work as PINE RIVER HUMMER edged out INDOOROPHILLY for line honors by a hares breath I always thought that the chant for success was "Boogie down for boat speed". Bill.

However, because of the handicap system, INDOOROPHILLY was the overall winner. BANDIT did a beautiful job of reading the wind shift wrapping up second place; HUMMER corrected to third place followed by SPECTRE and CAMOUFLAGE.

In the Portsmouth Fleet, last weeks results were: 1. CHEEMAUN; 2. LULL; 3. TIGI.

This week's race resulted with the same boats in the top three spots. However, reports of a dog fight left LULL in second by 11 seconds.

The Annual Charlevoix to Boyne City race will be held on June 18th with the best viewing of the Start at Ferry Ave. Beach. To watch the afternoon finish, the better spot is at the Charlevoix Yacht Club.

The Charlevoix Rayder softball team, for the first time in the history of the sport at Charlevoix, advanced to the finals of the Class C regional tournament held Saturday at Clare.

The team won the Class C District Tournament at Kalkaska to advance to the regional tourney.

The team won its first game by a score of 5-1 over Breckenridge (24-4) and lost the title game to Sanford-Meridian (20-2) 4-2.

Charlevoix (14-11) went into the regional tournament with a young team that boasted only one seasoned player, Bridget Noirot, a senior. Theresa Noirot, Alma College student and Ron Bindi team coach, said that "They lost to a good team. Sanford had the best pitcher we'd seen all season. Charlevoix, with Rhonda Buchanan, pitching both games, played back-to-back games. Despite that and the fact that they are a young team, they played an excellent game. We, Ron and I, were very plaesed with them. Though they are young they showed great poise against a much more mature and experienced team."

Buchanan who had nine strikeouts, allowed only three hits in the first game as Charlevoix took a 3-0 lead in the third inning and scored two more in the fourth. Breckenridge scored its one run in the sixth.

Rhonda Tester allowed nine hits for the game.

In the bottom of the third, Ann Wagner walked, Meg Fowler got a single advancing her to second, Buchanan's hit advanced the players to load the bases. Noirot's hit broght Wagner and Fowler home and Missy Sandahl's single saw Buchanan score.

In the fourth inning Michelle Gagnon led off with a hit. Wagner followed with a single. Fowler got on on an error scoring Gagnon. Buchanan followed with a hit to score Fowler for the 5-0 lead.

In the six th inning, O'Boyle hit a double then came home on a second double by McAllister to give Breckinridge its two runs.

Lara Stargardt also had a hit for the Rayders.

The second game was scoreless until the fourth inning when Sanford-Meridian scored all four runs. A hit started the scoring spree followed by a walk, a second hit scored the first two runners. Finney then doubled and brought home a third runner. Finney then scored on Bigelow's single. Finney had a second hit, Plumer two and Hernandez a single to account for the victor's six hits.

Charlevoix's two runs came in the fifth inning when Gagnon walked, Wagner singled and Fowler hit a sacrifice bunt to load the bases. Buchanan's double then scored Gagnon and Fowler. Stargardt and Amy Sell also had hits for Charlevoix.

Sanford-Meridian will advance to the state finals at Midland next weekend.

HS gym roof bids accepted

by FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Board of Education, at its regular meeting Monday, June 6, accepted bids for a new roof on the high school gymnasium, for replacing the glass in the gymnasium and for new lockers.

The C.E.U. Company out of Harrison was awarded the bid for the Trocal roof on the gymnasium to replace the existing roof which has been on the structure since it was built in 1961. The company's bid was in the amount of $36,500, the lower of two received. The second submitted by the Bloxsom Co. of Traverse City was for $42,806.

The bid for the Kolwall, the tradename for the material to be used in replacing the glass in the gymnasium, was awarded to Northern Michigan Glass Co. whose bid was in the amount of $36,859. The Progressive Engineering bid was for $39,300.

A new lighting system to replace the existing system was discussed. Bids for this work will be awarded at a later date.

The work is to begin as soon as possible.

The work is part of the renovation approved in 1982 to be underwritten by a .9 mill tax levy for two years as a energy-saving move.

Bids for athletic and physical education lockers were also accepted. The D.E.S. Company's bid of $12,140 for 150 athletic and 104 P.E. lockers and four end covers was accepted. A second bid submitted by Michigan School Services was for $15,734.

In other action, the board approved dual enrollment at North Central Michigan College and the Charlevoix High School for Lisa Mosher and Mary Lenhart and full time enrollement at N.C.M.C. for Amy Smith.

Approved a year's maternity leave beginning in September for Kathy Gowell.

Approved the purchase of two new textbooks, "Adventure in Reading" for a ninth grade literature class, and "People and the Land" for a fourth grade social studies class.

Approved a School Records Policy which updates the existing policy.

Approved a resolution for notice of a public hearing to be held later.

Heard a recommendation from the extra-curricular activities committee relating to cheerleaders and their participation. A committee of Mrs. Doris Pearl, Mrs. Marcia Trimper, David Smith and Don Carey was named to set policies. No changes in the sports program were recommended. It was recommended that varsity letters be issued to only those in the sports program and that other departments such as forensics and the band have special logos and letters designed.

Heard a report from Jan Raecke about the recent field trip taken by the third graders at the Charlevoix Elementary School to the Beaver Island lighthouse property. Mrs. Raecke, Barbara Wilson and John Houting, the teachers, expressed their appreciation to the parents for their assistance. Each of two groups spent one full day, parts of two others and two nights at the site. The classes raised funds to finance the trip.

Approved a resolution to update revenue and expenditure figures.

Heard from Supt. Gordon W. VanWieren that the three schools in the system had received certificates of recognition from the State Department of Education for their outstanding performances in the State Assessment tests. The certificates were awarded to those buildings where at least 75 per cent of the students taking the tests attained 75 per cent of the minimal performance objectives.

Heard from Vincent Olach, business manager, that the meal programs at the three schools were running in the red and that he was exploring an alternative method of feeding the students. Mrs. Pearl, Elaine Martin and Ardeth Wieland volunteered as a committee to work with Mr. Olach in investigating alternatives.

The next meeting of the board is scheduled for June 27.

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX COUNCIL MINUTES

June 6, 1983
8:00 P.M.

The Common Council on the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time in a regular meeting held in Council Chambers, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan, with Mayor Staley presiding.

Present: Councilmembers Olach, Porter, Timms, Roloff and Wood. Absent: Councilman Block.

The Minutes of the May 16, 1983 regular meeting were approved as presented in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes Book.

Andrea Matthews, a member of the General Public present, advised Council that the railroad crossing on Stover Road, is in need of repair. The City Manager stated that there is a pending sale of the track and the City has been waiting for clarification of ownership before requesting the necessary repairs.

A Public Hearing was held regarding Wojan Aluminum Products Corporation's request for lot splits, rezonings, and site plan approval in conjunction with the proposed expansion of their plant on Stover Road. Don Kelly and Joe Felo, neighboring property owners, voiced opposition to the proposed expansion on the basis that it would substantially reduce their property values. Mr. Felo also objected to any expanded use of the private drive to three residences to the East of the project. The City Manager stated that the City Code requires extensive landscaping as a buffer between the Industrial and Residential uses and that traffic on the private drive may be controlled with the use of a barricade.

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Councilwoman Roloff and supported by Councilman Timms.

(See Ordinance No. 429 published elsewhere in this edition of the Courier.)

A Public Hearing was held regarding a proposed rezoning and preliminary site plan for Northwest Marine's proposed 23 unit condominium project on Ferry Avenue. The City Manager stated that a rezoning from Marine Commercial to Marine Commercial Scenic is involved as the former zoning does not allow condominium use. Council discussed the parking on the site and generally agreed that they would prefer sheet piling rather than rip-rap at the foot of Eaton Street. Danny Heck, project developer, stated that Consumers Power Company had been opposed to sheet piling at the foot of Eaton as their cables are located there. Bob Cook, a member of the General Public present, asked if the foot of Eaton would be available for boating purposes to the General Public. Mr. Heck stated that the developers have neither the intention nor desire to own the foot of Eaton Street and that he had no objection of its use by the General Public but requested boats not be allowed to moor there. Councilman Timms pointed out that the sewer lift station on the preliminary site plan is shown in the wrong location. Mr. Cook asked if the project would be hooking into the Eaton Street sewer line and, if so, is the line large enough to accommodate the entire project. The City Manager answered both questions in the affirmative. Mr. Cook pointed out that the sewer and water lines had been built 100% with private funds and that the property owners in the area who had paid for the lines had been told they would recoup a portion of their costs as additional users came on line. The City Manager stated that, as the City has assumed repair and maintenance of the lines, they are now public facilities.

The following Amendment to the City Zoning Ordinance was offered and moved for its adoption by Councilman Porter and supported by Councilman Wood.

(See Ordinance No. 430 published elsewhere in this edition of the Courier.)

Ordinance Amendment was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmembers Olach, Porter, Timms, Roloff, and Wood. Nays: None. Absent: Councilman Block.

Moved by Councilman Olach and supported by Councilmen Wood to approve the preliminary Site Plan for Northwest Marine's proposed 23 condominium unit project on Ferry Avenue provided the developer submits the following information for final plan consideration.

1. Reconfiguration of parking areas to eliminate access parking and increase landscaping areas.

2. Detailed landscaping plan.

3. Revised architectural elevations, including certified data on existing and proposed building heights, including appurtenances.

4. Plans showing all grading, berming, fencing, etc., including fencing material and fence heights.

5. Sheet piling of the lake front at the foot of Eaton Street.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmembers Olach, Porter, Timms, Roloff, and Wood. Nays: None. Absent: Councilman Block.

A Public Hearing was held regarding the site plan for the Ministerial Association's proposed thrift shop at 115 Antrim Street, changing the use of that site from office to retail use.

Moved by Councilman Olach and supported by Councilwoman Roloff to approve the Site Plan as presented by the Ministerial Association for the Rainbow Thrift Shoppe located at 115 Antrim Street as recommended by the City Planning Commission.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmembers Olach, Porter, Timms, Roloff, and Wood. Nays: None. Absent: Councilman Block.

A Public Hearing was held regarding the site Plan for Hooker's Cleaners proposed construction of a second story over their existing building. Councilmembers expressed concern that the second story may be used as a dwelling at a later date. The City Manager stated that City zoning regulations would not allow a residential use in the commercial district.

Moved by Councilman Olach and supported by Councilman Wood to approve a Site Plan as presented by Bill Peters for construction of a full second story over the existing Hooker's Cleaners building located at 701½ Bridge Street.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmembers Olach, Porter, Timms, Roloff, and Wood. Nays: None. Absent: Councilman Block.

A Public Hearing was held regarding the proposed site plan for the Fireball Video Arcade at 200 Antrim Street as submitted by Michael Adams. Councilmembers and members of the General Public present discussed the matter at length and voiced their opinions for and against the proposed project. John Haggard, owner of the building, stated the property had been vacant for sometime and, that for economic reasons, he must get it rented. Several property owners in the area expressed opposition to the proposed business. Their reasons included the fact that the corner is already too busy, many elderly persons use the sidewalk adjacent to the building, it would increase the use of Newman Street as a "raceway", it is located directly on the City ambulance route, and onsite parking may be inadequate. Michael Gibbons, attorney for Mr. Adams, stated that Mr. Adams has met the established site plan criteria and that Council's only role was to require any landscaping, fencing, or other reasonable conditions. Walt Hufford, Chairman of the City Planning Commission, stated that the Commission had found no reasonable reason for recommending denial of the site plan

Moved by Councilwoman Roloff and supported by Councilman Timms to approve a Site Plan as presented by Michael Adams for the Fireball Video Arcade to be located at 200 Antrim Street contingent upon compliance with the following conditions

1. A bike rack is installed on the front, and 5 parking spaces are provided, which are now already paved

2. If any additional use is proposed on the property, additional parking spaces will have to be provided

3. The hours will be from 3 p.m. to 10:00 p.m. during school days, from 2 p.m. to 10:00 p.m. on Sundays, and from 10 a.m. to midnight other days.

4. No smoking or loitering

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote

Yeas: Councilmembers Timms, Roloff, and Wood. Nays: Councilmembers Olach and Porter. Absent: Councilman Block.

A Public Hearing was held regarding the proposed rezoning of the Finn Lumber Company property from Motel-Hotel to Marine Commercial Scenic. The City Manager stated that a corrective ordinance for the rezoning would be necessary to allow the property to be used for commercial purposes this summer. The Public Hearing was adjourned until the next regular Council meeting.

Council recessed for a brief period.

Following the recess, the meeting resumed with Councilman Block being the only member absent.

Moved by Councilman Porter and supported by Councilmen Timms that the City lease 200 useable ft. of frontage on the City Airport drive with a 50 ft. setback requirement to Murray Marine for storage and display of boats at a rate of $125 per month.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmembers Olach, Porter, Timms, Roloff, and Wood. Nays: None. Absent: Councilman Block.

The majority of Councilmembers agreed to consider a resolution to vacate the 16.5 ft. North-South Alley paralleling Grant Street, between Garfield and Westwood, at their next regular meeting as requested by Tony Warchol of 306 West Garfield.

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Councilman Porter and supported by Councilman Wood.

RESOLUTION NO. 83-6-2

That the request from Charlevoix County State Bank for transfer ownership of a 1983 12 Months Resort Class C licensed business with Dance-Entertainment Permit, located at 108 Pine River Lane, Charlevoix, MI 49720, Charlevoix County, from Rowe Enterprises, Inc., be considered for approval.

Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmembers Olach, Porter, Timms, Roloff, and Wood. Nays: None. Absent: Councilman Block.

Moved by Councilman Porter and supported by Councilwoman Roloff to continue last year's program permitting single residential sewer customers to "freeze" their sewer bills during June through August upon application to the City to avoid penalizing lawn and garden waterers with high sewer bills when the water being used is not discharged into the City sewer system.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmembers Olach, Porter, Timms, Roloff, and Wood. Nays: None. Absent: Councilman Block.

Moved by Councilman Olach and supported by Councilman Wood that Council withdraw their bid award of April 4, 1983, to Agri-Con Ford Tractor, Inc., for a 1983 Ford Model 555 Tractor Loader-Backhoe due to Agri-Con's failure to meet the delivery date terms of the bid, furthermore, that the bid be awarded to the next lowest bidder, Klooster Equipment, Ellsworth, Michigan, whose bid of $26,895 exceeded the bid of Agri-Con by $400.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmembers Olach, Porter, Timms, Roloff, and Wood. Nays: None. Absent: Councilman Block.

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Councilman Porter and supported by Councilman Olach.

VFW Auxiliary names delegates to national convention

Delegates to the national convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and its Auxiliary to be held in New Orleans in the fall were elected at a recent meeting of the local Auxiliary.

They are Mrs. Gerald Burke and Mrs. Melvin Plum. Alternates are Mrs. Gertrude Holt and Mrs. Robert Hewitt who was initiated into the organization at the same meeting.

The state meeting of the V.F.W. and its auxiliary will be held in Lansing this weekend.

It was decided at the meeting that social meetings the third Thursday of the month would be discontinued for the months of July and August and that the auxiliary will sponsor a bicycle safety program during the summer months.

Flea markets at the V.F.W. property will begin June 24 and continue through the summer Mrs. Keith Wagner, chairperson announced. Anyone wishing to rent space may call Mrs. Wagner at 547-9064.

Numerous reports were given including the following: the Memorial Day parade during which it was acknowledged that Mrs. Burke had made the wreath used in the ceremony, Mrs. Jospeh Seidel and Mrs. Larry Finck had placed flowers on veterans' graves, and that Mr. and Mrs. Dale Boss had furnished transportation; nine students from the National V.F.W. Home graduated from the Eaton Rapids High School; 1370 Buddy Poppies were sold during the annual Poppy Days and Mrs. Seidel was presented with a gift as the top sales person.

Service chairpersons reported on the organization's response to recent blood drives; contributions and assistance to the recent Special Olympics Field Day here and at Mt. Pleasant and contributions to the National Special Olympics at Baton Rouge, La.; contribution to the Charlevoix Recreation Department to send three children to Camp Mt. McSauba; 196 senior citizens attended the special dinner co-sponsored by the local veterans organizations recently.

Mrs. Seidel received a standing ovation as the retiring president after two years in the office. She will be succeeded by Mrs. Finck.

Regarding the Memorial Day parade, it was reported that it was noted with regret that most people watching the parade did not have the courtesy to salute the flag as it passed.

The auxiliary firmly believes that more Americanism and loyalty to the United States should be taught in the schools. The organisation will continue their program to this extent.

It was reported that a flag had been donated to the Ferry Ave. office of the Charlevoix Utility Department to replace one stolen earlier. Also that the V.F.W. and Auxiliary had assisted with the recent distribution of food including cheese to low income residents of the area.

Mrs. Goldstick and Mrs. Thomas Hodgkinson will host the July 7 meeting of the auxiliary. Mrs. John Gelding and Mrs. Burke served refreshments following the recent meeting.

ST. MARY'S CATHOLIC CHURCH held a special baccalaureate service for high school seniors of the parish recently. The seniors all took part in the special Mass including Matt Bolton shown above carrying a symbolic high school letter to the altar.

For Saints and Sinners

by Larry Grooters
Community Reformed Church

This coming Sunday is Fathers Day. With that in mind I'd like to share a story I read in the book "The One and Only You" by Bruce Larsen. He writes;

I have a great friend down in Montgomery, Alabama, and a few years ago he told me an unforgetable story of a summer vacation he had planned for his wife and children. He was unable to go himslef because of business, but he helped them plan every day of a camping trip in the family station wagon from Montgomery all the way to California, up and down the West Coast, and then back to Montgomery.

He knew their route exactly and the precise time they would be crossing the Great Divide. So, my friend arranged to fly himself out to the nearest airport and hire a car and a driver to take him to a place which every car must pass. He sat by the side of the road several hours waiting for the sight of that familiar station wagon. When it came into view, he stepped out on the road and put his thumb out to hitchhike a ride with the family who assumed that he was 3,000 miles away.

I said to him, "Coleman, I'm surprised they didn't drive off the road or drop dead of a heart attack. What an incredible story. Why did you go to all that trouble?"

"Well, Bruce," he said, "someday I'm going to be dead, and when that happens I want my kids and my wife to say, 'You know, Dad was a lot of fun.'"

Wow, I thought. Here is a man whose whole game plan is to make fun and happiness for other people.

It made me wonder what my family will remember about me. I am sure they will say, "Well, Dad was a nice guy but he sure worried a lot about putting out the lights and closing the windows and picking up around the house and cutting the grass." But I'd also like them to be able to say that Dad was the guy who made life a lot of fun.

Happy Fathers Day to all those men who are giving their best for their families.

THE ALL NEW 1984 TEMPO!
43 EST HWY
28 EPA EST MPG

Style and Technology in Perfect Harmony

Designed by a world leader in aerodynamics.
Ford is an acknowledged world leader in aerodynamic design. And Ford's aerodynamic expertise is well expressed in the '84 Tempo.

Aerodynamic design can have a profound effect on the performance of any car. No more than six horsepower is needed for Tempo to overcome air resistance at 50 mph. This results in less fuel consumed.

And impressive fuel economy figures are not the only result. The airflow is directed to reduce lift for improved stability and directional control.

Commitment to quality.
An example of Ford's commitment to quality is the closeness and uniformity of the body panel fits. You can compare Tempo's stringent standards to those set by any European Sports Sedan.

What's under Tempo's glistening paint? Three more full coats of tough acrylic enamel and two coats of primer. That's almost 10 pounds of protection. The final result: a tough, brilliant finish that is highly resistant to weather, chipping, cracking and peeling.

The world's most advanced automotive computer.
If you've ever had your car's engine buck and stall on a cold morning . . . or choke up on a hot day . . . or had any irregular power output due to weather, temperature or altitude—you'll appreciate the capabilities of Tempo's new EEC-IV computer.

EEC-IV (Electronic Engine Control) monitors and controls engine operation precisely and instantly under any conditions for optimum power output and fuel efficiency.

New Powertrain.
Developed specifically for Tempo, the 2300 HSC (High Swirl Combustion) four-cylinder engine works in concert with the EEC-IV computer.

This high-compression (9-to-1) engine generates 84 horsepower at 4400 rpm.' There's a surprisingly quick power response to even slight throttle pressure. Available with 4-speed, 5-speed or automatic transaxles.

Computer refined interior.
Computer technology and designer ingenuity have joined forces to ensure the best use of Tempo's interior space. Its five-seat configuration allows for a comfortable combination of head, shoulder and legroom. In fact, there is more rear head and legroom than in a Mercedes 300D.

Ride and handling.
Tempo's front-wheel-drive design not only delivers added tire-to-road traction, but provides precise handling and tight cornering.

Tempo's new-design 4-wheel independent suspension permits each wheel to absorb road shocks independently. This results in better handling and a smooth, quiet ride.

'Based on SAE standard J 1349
For comparison and applicable only to sedans without air conditioning. Your mileage may differ depending on speed, distance and weather. Actual highway mileage will probably be lower.

City may have new water well by mid-1984

Charlevoix may have one well supplying residents with a clean source of water by mid-1984, following council action Monday night.

Council stressed that supplying water free of pollution by next summer is a "priority project." Council members stated they'd be willing to spend more money to step up test well drilling in order to have the wells on line by next tourist season.

Council directed City Manager Robert Hunt to:

- Use a nonobligated fund balance of about $58,000 from the Water Tower Construction project to develop two wells;
- Solicit proposals, evaluate candidates and recommend a qualified engineer for a well development project;
- Propose a compliance schedule in answer to the Michigan Department of Public Health's directives to supply a clean source of water, calling for one production well to be on line in 1984 with a second well on line in 1987, if engineering tests prove well development is feasible;
- Along with Mayor Kenneth Staley, Hunt is to attend meetings later this week in Lansing with state departments of Public Health and Natural Resources and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency; and
- Tentatively, complete and have one well in operation — supplying water — by late-May 1984.

The city was issued a "Notice of Violations" and a "Notice of Informal Opportunity to Show Compliance with Statutory and Regulatory

Comm. on Aging cool to bus report

by PEG OHLE

Some members of the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging have expressed concern that they were not asked for input when the County's ad hoc committee was investigating the problems of the Transit System.

Since the Transit System is under the jurisdiction of the Commission on Aging, they say they feel it would have been only fair if their advice had been sought. They also resent the fact that they had not received copies of the ad hoc committee's report even though it has been presented to the County Board of Commissioners and reviewed in local newspapers.

These opinions were voiced at the Commission's monthly meeting last week. Commission on Aging member Thora Kotowich, a former County Board member, said, "Don't we have anything to say about it? We're a Commission, they're only an ad hoc committee."

The ad hoc committee's report contains 22 recommendations for improvement of the Transit System, the first of which is separation from the Commission on Aging.

This recommended separation does not meet with the Commission on Aging's approval. In a straw vote on the suggestion, five Commission members said they wanted to keep the Transit System under their wing while only one member voted for separation. The lone vote for separation came from the only Commission member who had read the ad hoc report.

All Commission on Aging members will shortly receive copies of the report so they may be more knowledgeable in presenting their ideas to the County Board of Commissioners.

The ad hoc committee's reasoning in recommending separation of the Transit System and Commission on Aging is two-fold: First, it would help dispel the misconception that the Transit System is run solely for senior citizens and handicapped persons. Second, it would provide separate management for the Transit System and the many other services offered by the Commission on Aging, which are funded in sizeable sums each year.

During 1982, the Transit System disbursed $271,576 derived from Federal, State, and local sources. The current Commission on Aging budget is $111,688, broken down into $61,386 for the senior citizens meal program, $4,300 for the transportation program (reserving a Transit System bus in each city for use by participants in the meal program), $2,100 for health screening, $10,911 for homemaker program, $11,312 for home chore program, $7,147 for operating the Senior Center in East Jordan, $3,333 for staffing it, $5,000 for special

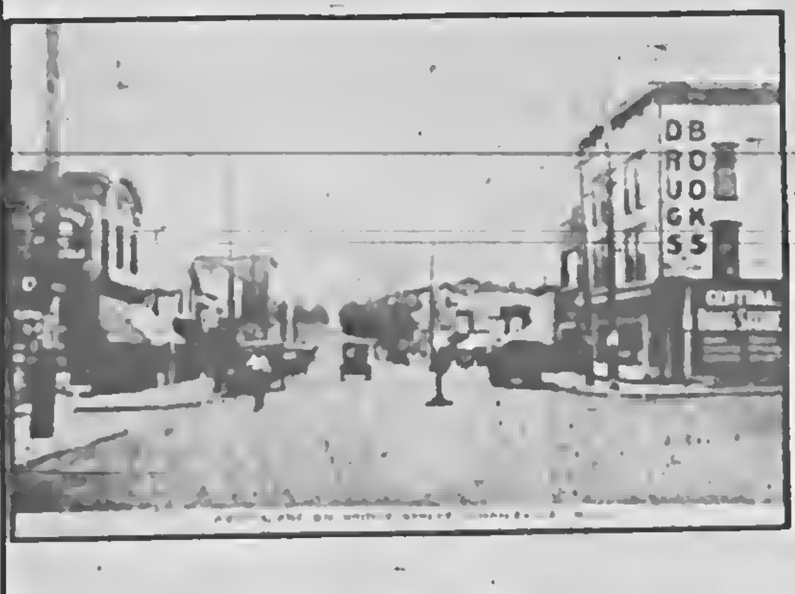
Early Charlevoix postcards were more than just messages

by TOM LAMARRE



The downtown scene, above, and the sunset below are two examples of the vintage postcards that have been sent from Charlevoix for decades.

Large bound volumes with ornate gilt lettering on their covers, page after page of scenes neatly pasted in place to form a collection, black and white photo cards, pastel hued cards hand-painted in Germany, greeting cards, political cards - it was all part of the post card craze that swept across the United States from the turn of the century until about 1920.

Although the first American cards date back to the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago, it was not until Congress lowered the postage rate for private mailing cards to one cent that the fad really caught on. More than a form of communication, post cards quickly became the best-selling souvenir item in the country.

And Charlevoix was no exception. As a popular resort area, it was only natural that a wide variety of cards orginiated here. Today, these post cards are of interest not only for their nostalgic value, but as documents of local history as well.

Most of the early Charlevoix post cards appear to have been published by the V.O. Hammon Co. of Chicago. One such card is the depiction of the swimming pool pavilion, which was postmarked in Charlevoix on August 17, 1907. Another Hammon Publishing Co. card shows a scene of Bridge Street in the early years of the century. Aside from the vintage autos in the photo, the focal point is the Central Dreug Store, which offered books, stationery, magazines, Kodaks, Victrolas, and sodas.

Not many years later, the Central Drug Store published its own post cards, including one of the Belvedere Hotel and Casino which is marked on the back "C.T. American Art Colored."

Unlike the current post cards, many of the early cards were printed in black and white. Even without color the harbor entrance scene published by W.C. Bellinger captures the dramatic effect of a Lake Michigan sunset. Printed on photographic paper, the view of the Tourist Park can be dated to the late 1930's or early 1940's by the automobiles that are shown. Yet is was purchased from a store on Bridge Street in the early 1970's.

In some cases, the written messages on the cards help bring the scenes to life. On the back of the Chicago Club House card is the short note penned in 1911, "There was here just enough frost to make this look very attractive. You can imagine it I know. Things O.K. up this way. Will."

Of particular interest to historians are post cards illustrating buildings as they once were. The grandeur of the Loeb Farm is preserved in the photograph, providing a glimpse of the site in its prime.

Over the years, the yellowed scrapbooks full of post cards were set aside, only to be resurrected by deltiologists of another era. For these collectors, as well as thousands of people who purchase current cards from the many shops in Charlevoix, the post card is alive and well.

Churches unite to open thrift shop

Among the recently-opened shops in downtown Charlevoix is The Rainbow Shoppe at 115 Antrim Street.

The Rainbow Shoppe differs from other shops in Charlevoix in that it is a thrift shop operated by ten area churches to provide good wearing apparel and other family necessities at a nominal cost.

Joe Spurgeon, a retired J. C. Penney Store manager, is manager of The Rainbow Shoppe. He is assisted by volunteers from participating churches, who help with sorting, pricing, and displaying the hundreds of items that come into the shop weekly.

Walking around the menswear section, Spurgeon commented that a man could dress himself from top to toe with items from the shop at a cost not to exceed $5. So could a woman, and probably two children.

The Rainbow Shoppe is not only an ecumenical endeavor but a community undertaking as well. Local merchants donated lumber and paint and racks, plants and flowers, and other needed articles, even a cash register. Men and women contributed their time and talents in cleaning, painting, and decorating the shop.

The shop is now well stocked with clothing for all members of the family, shoes, knicknacks, paperbacks, records, and kitchen and other household items that could furnish a summer cottage.

For those of limited means, there is a "free" box of clothing near the front door. Anyone who can use this clothing is welcome to it, according to Spurgeon.

The Rainbow Shoppe is open Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The 10 churches operating the shop are the Community Reformed, Community Church of God, First Congregational, St. Mary's Catholic, Assembly of God, Bethany Lutheran, First Baptist, Christ Episcopal, Church of the Nazarene, and United Methodist.

Those who have articles to donate to the shop may arrange for their pickup by calling the shop at 547-2815. Tax credit receipts will be given to those requesting them.

Manager Joe Spurgeon has a wide variety of clothing for every member of the family.

County bldg. inspector to be checking for hazardous signs

The Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection will soon begin inspecting advertising signs around the County, especially in the three cities, to make sure they are not a hazard to the general public.

Of special interest are overhanging signs in front of shops in downtown areas. "Sometimes they are put up with just a couple of screws and could blow down in a high wind, hitting anyone who might be around," explained Howard Carson, head of the Building Department.

Signs on new buildings are inspected as a routine matter by the Building Department as part of the full building inspection before an occupancy permit is issued.

While townships and cities issue sign permits as part of their zoning functions, it is up to the County Building Inspection Department to inspect them for safety, according to Carson.

Bid accepted for new lights in high school gym

Bids for lights in the Charlevoix High School gymnasium were opened Friday at a special meeting of the Charlevoix Board of Education.

The bid was awarded to the Charlevoix Electric Co. whose bid was in the amount of $6,800 for 36 lights which are to be installed in the ceiling of the arched gymnasium.

The bid was the lowest of three received. The others were submitted by William Wynsma Electric of Ellsworth whose bid was for $7,500.50 and Simpson Electric of Charlevoix whose bid was for $7,900.

With the installation of Kalwall which will replace all windows in the gymnasium, a new lighting system was necessary. An energy-efficient metal halide system which will cut down on the voltage and increase the lumens by 47 percent will replace the old system it was explained.

The pay back on the installation will be 3½ years it was explained further.

At the same time eight new ceiling fans will be installed. The price on these will be made available later.

The installation of the lights and fans is a part of the renovation of the high school building which includes a new roof on the entire high school complex which was started last summer. The installation of a new roof on the gymnasium will begin later this month. The replacing of the glass with Kalwall will be done later in the summer in preparation for the opening of the 1983-84 school year. The installation of the roof and other energy saving work on the remainder of the building was done last fall. The entire project is being financed by a .9 mill levy for two years approved by the voters of the school district in June 1982.

Knight on the Town

No rest for restrooms

by Dave Knight

Firemen were called to the public restrooms in the Chamber of Commerce Friday to douse what appeared to be a fire set deliberatley in a men's room wastebasket.

The fire was minor and really didn't amount to much damage other than a greasy layer of soot covering everything. Had it not been reported as quickly as it was, of course, the story may have had a much sadder ending.

But, as Police Chief Jack Mol and Street Superintendent Leonard Dubey point out, the story goes much farther than Friday's incident.

Fact is, this was only one more episode in a frustrating, senseless series of incidents involving vandalism of public property.

Public restrooms seem to be the most popular target since they provide a convenient privacy for the cowards who do this sort of thing. While the damage done to the downtown facilities Friday was not the first time they have been trashed, most problems in recent years have occurred at the Ferry Beach restrooms, which are just enough out of the way to make them even more attractive to vandals.

Twice last year they sustained extensive damage from vandals. Dubey, who is in charge of maintaining the city's restrooms, is just about ready to lock them all up for good. And who can blame him? To have to constantly replace expensive fixtures and spend the manhours neccessary to do the repairs has got to be frustrating. Obviously the City of Charlevoix has better ways to spend its money these days.

Perhaps even more frustrating is the fact that many people complain that the city's public restrooms are not open long enough hours.

Heaven only knows what havoc would be wreaked were public restrooms kept open later at night and on holidays.

Are these the prices we must pay, however, to keep our public areas usable for law-abiding visitors and townspeople? I would hope not.

Writing this is probably just another exercise in frustration, too. I'm willing to admit that, although we in the business like to claim that newspapers affect how many people think, I don't think we have much clout with vandals. Generally, they just aren't the literary types, if you know what I mean.

But I think it's important for people to realize that, next time they get angry when they find public restroom is locked after hours, there's a pretty good reason.

Clockwise

On the road

by Bob Clock

BREEZEWOOD, PA. - The Clock family is enroute to Washington D.C. for a first-hand look at where it all began. Along the way we have made a few observations which may be of interest to the folks back home.

ITEM: Michigan's expressways, particularly I-75 are rapidly falling into disrepair. Huge chunks are missing in some sections of roadway and drivers are obliged to stay alert.

ITEM: Either because of the poor condition of our roads, or because our cars are older than ever before, tires are taking a terrible beating. The shoulders of I-75 are literally strewn with the remnants of blown-out tires. We also noticed dozens of rusting muffler-tailpipe assemblies along the highway - a sure sign that our economy has been in the doldrums. In fact, the highway debris has almost obliterated all of the good we achieved with our bottle law.

ITEM: Northern Michigan farmers and gardeners can take solace in the fact that they have not been alone in fighting the ravages of a cold, wet spring. As recently as June 12 many fields in Southern Michigan, Ohio and Pennsylvania had yet to feel the bite of a plow. Perhaps all of their owners have joined the federal crop-swap program, but I rather doubt it. The amount of acreage lying fallow is astounding.

ITEM: The once-flashy galvanized steel barriers along I-75 are no-longer flashy nor galvanized. They are rusted and unsightly - true. If the state finds itself with any surplus funds from its 38 percent income tax hike, I suggest some of the money be used to sandblast the barriers and apply a coat of Rustoleum. It hurts to have Michigan looking so down-at-the- heels. Furthermore, our unkempt highways are not going to do much to improve the tourist industry.

ITEM: I am surprised at the amount of truck traffic on our interstate highways. The volume certainly has quadrupled or better since my last trip east 20 years ago. In some areas we counted almost as many big, multiple-axled trucks as cars. Little wonder the railroads have fallen upon hard times.

ITEM: Auto air-conditioning has come of age. On Saturday, June 11, our first really hot summer day, half the uncoming cars had their windows up - a sure sign of air-conditioning.

ITEM: The soaring mountains of central Pennsylvania are truly a national asset. But residents of the Quaker State ignore them. On the Pennsylvania Turnpike we did not see a single sign identifying individual ranges or peaks. If they were ours we'd have them all labeled, catalogued and advertised.

projects and $6,200 for home health aides.

Art Saworski has been manager of the Commission on Aging almost since its start in 1974. He was given responsibility for the Transit System in 1980 when the public system replaced the two-bus senior citizen system operated by the Commission on Aging. As noted above, the funds which Saworski handles annually add up to almost $400,000. For this work, he is paid $17,000 a year, three-fourths by the Transit System and one-fourth by the Commission on Aging.

The detailed reports on the many diverse services provided by the Commission on Aging as well as managerial duties take up much of Saworski's time, the ad hoc committee reports. This is in addition to his Transit System responsbilities which also include much paperwork as well as supervision. Sometimes this is too much.

In the words of the ad hoc committee, "Having the Transit System under the Commission on Aging in 1982 has resulted in some very serious short-comings. Due to a lack of secretarial help at the Commission on Aging, the Transit manager was doing all the Commission on Aging paperwork and the Transit System was allowed to drift without direct supervision. Because of this, the System was not actively promoted and one substantial source of revenoe, Head Start ($3,400), was lost mainly because scheduling did not allow enough time to transport these kids."

Last week, when asked by the Commission on Aging if he felt he could handle the management of both the Transit System and the Commission on Aging, Saworski replied that with adequate secretarial help he could.

The County Board of Commissioners will have the final say in the future of the Transit System and the Commission on Aging.

Letters: Medusa's name

To the Editor:

On the southwest perimeter of a city which used to be called "Charlevoix the Beautiful" there is a cement plant. It is named the Medusa Cement Plant. Curious as to how a corporate management could have selected a name like "Medusa" right out of Greek Mythology, I decided to do a little research. So I went to the "Charlevoix the once Beautiful" library and read up on Greek Mythology. I learned that Medusa was a truly perfect name for a cement plant so I thought I would share with the good citizens of Charlevoix what I had learned.

Medusa was one of three daughters of the Greek Sea God, Phorcus. All three daughters were Gorgons but only Medusa was mortal like the rest of us. She was stunningly beautiful with a magnificent head of hair. She was also very vain and constantly reminded everyone about her beauty. One day she met Athena, the favorite daughter of Zeus who was the chief honcho among Greek Gods. She immediately started to rave about her incomparable beauty which really angered Athena, who thought "I'm going to really put this broad in her place." So Athena turned Medusa into one of the most hideous looking mortals ever seen. Medusa now had large staring eyes, protruding fangs instead of teeth and her once beautiful hair was changed into a slimy, writhing mass of smakes. There is a picture of Medusa in the local library but I would advise against taking a look at it as it may spoil your appetite for a day. Now according to Greek Mythology, Medusa was so frightful in appearance that anyone daring to look at her would immediately turn to stone. Now here in "Charlevoix the once Beautiful" some people rarely have to look at Medusa, while others see her several times a day. Now I look at Medusa, I'd say an average of 10 times a week and in all honesty I haven't turned to stone yet. However, I know my lungs will turn to stone soon. This is unavoidable when several hundred tons of cement dust and particulate is being spewed into the atmosphere by Medusa each year. By the way, most of it is at night when you are all in bed and can't see it. So I say, "right on" Medusa you sure picked the right name for your company. Everyone in "Charlevoix the once Beautiful" is slowly getting "stoned" and after all isn't that the "in thing" to do nowadays?

Still, I was puzzled about this Medusa Company. While they continue on their merry profitable way fouling up and polluting our air, they do exhibit some token generosity in other ways. They have a scholarship program for deserving students, they support the Chamber of Commerce, they built a kiln to bake the world's largest cherry pie and support several other worthy community projects. I said to myself "Why do they, like the cow, give us a pail of milk and then kick it over"? Why? Then it hit me!! It had something else to do with Green Mythology! So back I go to the "Charlevois the once Beautiful" library and do some more reading and sure enough I found the answer in the Trojan Wars. Here it is.

About 3000 B.C. there was a prince of Troy named Paris. He was looking for the most beautiful woman in the world to take as his wife. On a visit to Sparta in Greece he found her. She was named Helen. The problem was she was already married to Menelaus, the king of Sparta. This didn't stop Paris, he merely kidnapped Helen and took her back to Troy. This so angered the Greeks that they mounted an invasion fleet of a 1000 boats and laid siege to Troy for 10 years. Because Troy was so well protected by inpenetrable high walls, the Greeks finally decided to give up and go home. Before going, they decided to try trickery so they built a huge wooded horse mounted on wheels. Inside the horse they concealed several Spartan soldiers and told them to remain quiet until they were moved inside the main gate of Troy at nightfall. The Spartans then moved the huge wooded horse right up to the gate and sent a message to Paris of Troy congratulating the Trojans on their valor and courage. They told the Trojans that as a tribute and trophy for their heroism they were leaving the large wooded horse. They then sailed off as if leaving for good at dusk. When the fleet was out of sight, the Trojans rushed out and dragged the wooded horse into the city, where upon a huge victory celebration began, which went on most of the night. In the meantime, and after nightfall, the Spartan fleet returned unseen. The Spartan soldiers hidden inside the wooden horse, by this time, had succeeded in unlocking the gate to the city. At a prearranged signal the Spartan army poured through the gate and Troy was taken!

The term "Beware of Greeks bearing gifts" has lived for almost 5000 years. The self serving "sops" thrown to the people of Charlevois by Medusa fall in this category.

Corporate responsibility to the community means a lot more than lending financial support to community projects. It means conducting its business so as to maintain the quality of life for its employees and the citizens of the community it serves. Further, it means promoting the public health and safety of all people and controlling any possible adverse environmental effects its products and manufacturing process might have on that community.

The people of Charlevoix must wake up and recognize the ecological and environmental damage Medusa is perpetrating on this beautiful garden spot of Charlevoix. Medusa is and has been in non compliance to the requisites of the Clean Air Act. A continued Laissez-Faire policy and-or attitude by the power structure and citizenry of Charlevoix in return for the self serving sops Medusa chooses to throw your way will, in a very short time, do irreparable damage to the tourist business, cause summer residents to go elsewhere to say nothing of the very real health hazards to year round residents. Wake up before its too Late!!

Summer Resident

Thanks for tourney support

To the Editor:

I would like to express my thanks to all the people for their help in making the Fourth Annual March of Dimes Two-Man Best-Shot Golf Tournament a success: Lee Moerland, Manager of Belvedere Golf Club and the Staff, Chum and Ruth White, and Max Gennett, who worked hard to get and keep the course in shape. Also a special thanks to those who sponsored the tournament: Erber Auto, Grey Gables, The Townhouse, Argonne Supper Club, Kit Carson Lumber, Kentucky Fried Chicken, and to the Belvedere Golf Club for donating half the greens fees to the March of Dimes. Also helping with the tournament were Chris Etienne, Robin Chase and Georgia LaBlance.

Because of the support of these people, over $500 was raised for March of Dimes. Col. Harland Sanders, founder of KFC, was devoted to March of Dimes and worked tirelessly to raise funds to assure every child a healthy start in life. We are happy that we in Charleovix were able to do our part.

City to dig wells...

Requirements" from the state Public Health Department June 3. The action was taken after the city failed to respond to a letter from the department asking for a written agenda of steps the city would take to clean up the water supply.

While the compliance order is not directed at the city's TCE contamination problem, violations include: operation of a waterworks system with no sanitary protection and no treatment system and operation of a pump station that can be flooded. The notice also questioned capacity of the system and its ability to supply future water needs.

A suspected cancer-causing agent, trichloroethylene (TCE) was discovered in the city water supply in October 1981. Currently, the levels of the industrial solvent in the municipal water supply are hovering around 45 parts per billion, according to city reports.

Previously, council had proposed construction of a Lake Michigan water treatment plant, but a bonding proposal to fund construction was defeated by voters.

Hunt stated that finding an underground water supply in Charlevois is not a problem. The challenge, however, is to construct one or two wells which are near the city's existing distribution system (thereby holding down the cost of extending lines), in good quality and highly productive, able to withstand heavy use year after year, and are protected from existing and future contamination.

"We should expect to drill several wells before finding anything that is remotely promising and then it depends on the quantity (of water) we get" and whether it is ample to supply the city's needs, Hunt said.

Petoskey, in its efforts to supply a TCE-free source of water, drilled 26 test wells for a total of $50,000 for over 1½ years before finding two sources of underground water able to supply the city's needs, Hunt said. Petoskey expects to have one well on line by mid-1984 and the second by the end of 1984.

Suggested sites include the Belvedere Golf Course and the airport on the south side of the city, and the Municipal Golf Course and Mt. McSauba on the north side. Secondary sites are all three public beaches.

Hunt projected the cost of the test well phase to range from $20,000 to $100,000, including all the drilling, testing and engineering fees. The cost depends greatly on what is found when the drilling begins, Hunt said.

In addition, the cost of constructing production wells — including pumps, controls, housing and transmission mains — will probably cost $150,000 to $250,000 per well.

Initially, the well development expenses will be funded through non-obligated balance of the Water Tower Construction Project. Voters approved a bond issue to construct a new water tower in November 1981.

First Ward Councilman Jeff Porter said he was concerned about raiding the water tower fund, and eliminating a source of funding needed to tear down the dilapidated, old tower.

Hunt suggested the final well construction could be funded through voted or non-voted general obligation bonds, but urged council to decide now how to fund the project.

By a non-binding vote of five to one, council tentatively decided the final construction of two wells should be funded through non-voted, general obligation bonds retired through property taxes. Second Ward Councilman Robert Timms thought the proposal should go before voters for approval.

Hunt said he expects one well could be funded through about a one mill increase for three years over existing property tax levels, and the two wells could be funded in four to five years.

Klooster plays in star game

KALAMAZOO — Charlevoix all-stater Craig Klooster scored eight points while playing with the winning West squad in the Class B-C-D game of the Michigan High School Coaches Association's all-star classic held Saturday.

Klooster played 16 minutes in the contest and drew a starting assignment as the West posted a 117-115 win over the East.

Klooster, as yet, has not decided on where he will go to school this fall.

Last season the 6-3 center-forward was named first team on three all-state squads for Class C and averaged over 19 points with more than 10 rebounds a game for the 24-1 Rayders.

He was the only player from this area named to the B-C-D team.

Ron's wins co-ed softball tournament

After advancing through the winners' bracket of the first Cinema III Co-Ed Softball tournament over the weekend, Ron's General Store of Ellsworth was defeated 14-6 by Swanson's K&D which came to the finals through the losers' bracket to throw the tournament into an extra game.

The championship game went into extra innings before Scott Essenberg of Ron's hit a triple in the bottom of the eighth and came home on a sacrifice fly by Brenda Bruce to win the game 12-11 and the title.

Swanson's had trailed 11-7 before scoring four runs on a hit followed by a home run by Tim Carey in the top of the seventh.

Carey had three hits and a home run for the game. Frank Hersha had a home run for the champions.

Tex Drenth, the winning pitcher, allowed 13 hits in the title game. Kevin Swanson gave up 14.

In the game that sent the tournament into the extra game, Hugh Campbell started on the mound for Ron's and was relieved in the third inning by Drenth. The pair allowed five hits. Walks and errors, however, allowed Swanson's to score 14 runs. Campbell gave up seven hits for Ron's.

Swanson's took the lead early in the game, scoring nine runs in the second on five walks and a home run by Dave Storm who also had a second home run in the sixth plus a double for the game.

In the semi-finals, Ron's defeated Ellsworth 5-2 in the winners' bracket and Swanson's beat Ellsworth 20-5 in the losers' bracket.

In the quarterfinals Ron's toppled Town House I 7-6 and Ellsworth defeated Swanson's K&D 4-2.

In the opening games, Town House I defeated The Landing 8-5; Ron's downed Town House II 18-0; Ellsworth dumped Carlson's Plumbing 15-8 and Swanson's ousted Halfway Home 12-0.

In the losers' bracket Town House II defeated The Landing 9-3 and Halfway Home defeated Carlson's 10-9. Swanson's then eliminated Town House II 15-0 and Halfway Home dumped Town House I 15-11 before Swanson's advanced after winning 14-8.

The next game saw Swanson's defeat Ellsworth 20-5 to go against Ron's in the finals that sent the tournament into the 15th game.

Yachting

by A. Nony Mouse

Another Wednesday night at the races where everybody showed up except Mr. Wind. The race started with a wimper of a southwesterly that veered and lightened as the race progressed. Once again, to the frustration of the fleet, a few lead boats got over the finish line before the wind died completely. What was a minute lead, suddenly became five or six minutes, separating the early finishers from the bulk of the fleet.

In going over the results however, the competition is certainly heating up. In many cases, fifteen seconds meant the difference of 4 places in the 29 boat fleet.

The Motor City Mad Hatter and his wife managed to win the PFRF fleet. CAMOUFLAGE, after having to restart, put on the after burner and tore up the course.

In an interview after the race, John Bauer had this to say: "We thought we were in trouble after being over the starting line early. A nice little hole developed at the boat end of the line to gybe around and restart without sacrificing much distance with the fleet. The wind seemed better on the left side of the course so that's where we went. We won the race all right, but I firmly believe that every one of the competitors is a winner for participating in the series and sharing knowledge with their fellow sailors." Well put Hat Man.

Second place went to HUMMER. MINT JULIP was third, followed by PYGMALION and RAZZMATAZZ.

In the Portmouth fleet, CHEEMAUN won the race by combining age and experience with a little hot air over cocktails on the poop deck. LULL was second, with TEG1 in third. KOOL WHIP edged out STALWARTH for fourth place.

Natalie Johnstone pitched Medusa to a 4-3 win over the Bankers. Medusa had a total of 11 hits to three for the losers. Meda Kehrer was the losing pitcher.

In the third game Townhouse collected 19 hits off Jean McDonough and brought 13 home as they dumped Radio Shack 13-0. Sue Barta, the winning pitcher, gave up seven hits.

Michigan National Bank posted its first win of the season Thursday, an 11-3 victory over Charlevoix Hospital. Kwikie Duplicating downed Townshouse 8-5 and Medusa defeated Radio Shack 15-8.

Meda Kehrer allowed nine hits as the winning pitcher. Judith Johnson gave up 12.

In Charlevoix Township Softball Association, the league-leading Flight Deck defeated Dairy Queen 7-2 and Control Engineering downed the A Team 11-5 as the league went into its third week of the season. Control Engineering came from behind to score five runs in the fifth inning to defeat the A Team. An inside-the-park homer by John Melke aided their cause. The winners got 12 hits off Norm Coolman. Jerry Sandahl, the winning pitcher, allowed 10.

Flight Deck continued to lead the league Wednesday as they defeated the A Team 23-0 and Boyne Machine moved into second place in the standings as they won over Juilleret's 11-7.

Mike Pearsall's two-out single in the fifth inning sparked a three run rally for Boyne Machine. Boyne Machine added three more in the sixth for the win. Greg Revoir gave up 15 hits. Bill Gauthier allowed 13.

With the hitting of Ron Browe who had three for the game and Ron Stilwell and Melke who had inside-the-park homers, the Flight Deck had no trouble with the A Team who had four hits. Flight Deck collected 19 from Norm Coolman. Denny Brik gave up four.

Boyne Machine shut out Control Engineering 4-0 and Dairy Queen edged Juilleret's 10-9 as the Charlevoix Township concluded three weeks of play.

Jerry Thompson, Eric Lundteigen and Dale Henning had two hits each to account for six of the team's 10 hits as Boyne Machine defeated Control Engineering. Roy Grunch, the winning pitcher, gave up six. Jerry Sandahl was the losing pitcher.

Trailing 7-5 going into the seventh inning, Juilleret's scored four runs to go ahead 9-7. For Saints and Sinners

by Pastor Walt Hastings Community Church of God

John Wesley was once talking with a farmer friend. Wesley noticed a cow with its head over a stone wall and was perplexed. He asked the farmer, "Why would that cow be trying to look over the wall?" The farmer answered, "Well, that's simple. She's looking over the wall because she can't see through it."

Life is full of problems, setbacks, rejections, disappointments, discouragements. Even your prayers may seemingly go unanswered. You reach a point where you think God has forsaken you - prayer is ineffective and God no longer seems real. You've run into a stone wall!

What do you do when you run into a stone wall and feel you just can't cope anymore? You stand there patiently and look over the stone wall.

Romans 5:3-5 tells us, "We can rejoice, too, when we run into problems and trials for we know that they are good for us - they help us learn to be patient. And patience develops strength of character in us and helps us trust God more each time we use it until finally our hope and faith are strong and steady. Then, when that happens, we are able to hold our heads high no matter what happens and know all is well, for we know how dearly God loves us, and we feel this warm love everywhere within us because God has given us the Holy Spirit to fill our hearts with his love."

Free cheese, milk for low-income families available

Government surplus powered milk and cheese will be distributed Wednesday, June 22, in Charlevoix County. The distribition will take place from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. or until the commodities are gone.

The milk will be distributed in four-pound containers. A household with one to four members will receive one box of dry milk and those households with five or more will receive two boxes.

It is expected that all of the more than 13,200 pounds of cheese and 9,400 pounds of milk will be distributed to Emmet and Charlevoix counties' low-income residents.

Low-income is defined as "within the 125 percent Federal Income Guidelines." For example, for a household of one, the gross annual income must not exceed $6,075. For each additional member, $2,100 must be added to determine eligibility. A family of five should have a yearly income of $14,475 or less. Those persons picking up milk and chees are asked to bring proof of income with them.

Distribution site for residents of the Charlevoix School District is the VFW Hall in Charlevoix.

Two receive hospital scholarships

Charlevoix Area Hospital Board of Directors announced the winners of its two annual scholarships last week.

Michelle Rozema, 18, received the Peggy Carey Northway Scholarship. She has been accepted at Michigan State University. A 1983 Charlevoix High School graduate, Ms. Rozema will enter a four-year nursing program. The scholarship carries a stipend of $300 a year.

Mary Lou Supernaw was awarded the Charlevoix Area Hospital Scholarship to study nursing at North Central Michigan College in Petoskey. Mrs. Supernaw graduated from Michigan State University with a degree in education and has been a substitute teacher in the Charlevoix area. She has two sons, Jon, 18 and Sam, 16. She explained that she has always been interested in a nursing career and decided this year the time was right to pursue that interest. The Charlevoix Area Hospital Scholarship is a one-time grant of $700.

Thomas Carey presented the scholarships for the Board of Directors of Charlevoix Area Hospital. The Peggy Carey Northway Scholarship was founded in memory of the late Peggy Carey Northway, who was a nursing student at the time of her death. The Charlevoix Area Hopstial Scholarship is maintained by the hospital to encourage area residents in the study of health careers. Donations to the hospital's scholarship funds support these scholarships.

New power plants will help Michigan escape energy crisis

Dr. Chauncey Starr and Mr. Harry Reinsch

Within 10 years, Michigan and other Midwestern states may become an energy oasis in a nation desperately short of electricity, according to two experts.

America's generating plants can fulfill America's thirst for electricity without difficulty for the next five or six years, they say. But beyond that, increased use of electricity could outgrow production capabilities in many parts of the country. The result would be regional power shortages, accompanied by large-scale unemployment.

The good news-bad news assessment of America's power future is made by two leading authorities on electricity, Dr. Chauncey Starr and Harry Reinsch. Starr is vice chairman of the highly respected Electric Power Research Institute. Reinsch is president of the Bechtel Power Corporation, which builds electric generating plants worldwide. Their views appear in the current issue of "FOCUS: Views on Energy," a magazine published by Consumers Power Company.

According to Starr and Reinsch, existing demand already uses more than 90 percent of the nation's total electric generating capability. They say enough new plants are not being built to handle growth and replace aging facilities. It will be too late to fix the problem once the shortage occurs, because it takes many years to plan, finance and build a generating plant, Starr says.

The power supply situation is a serious threat to America's economy, according to Starr. He notes that historically, the demand for electricity tracks economic activity. If the nation's economic output increases, consumption of electricity goes up. If there is not enough electricity to handle growth, a stagnant economy and high unemployment result.

"We'll see a big shift of industry," predicts Reinsch. "Many plants will pack up and move away from energy-short areas to other parts of the country. Even to foreign countries. That would mean unemployment. Lots of it."

In the midst of that bleak forecast, Michigan and the rest of the Midwest hold out hope for the future.

"The Midwest has more abundant power, and less expensive power, than most other regions," says Starr. "It is certainly better off than the Sun Belt. The Sun Belt relies chiefly on oil and natural gas for fuel. The Midwest gets its power principally from coal and nuclear energy, which costs much less than oil or natural gas."

Reinsch agrees. "Michigan fits right in the heart of it," he says. Several new power plants, including the Midland Nuclear Cogeneration Plant, will be completed within the next few years. "Once they are completed, Michigan will have an ample supply of dependable, inexpensive electric power and will be in a very good supply position compared to the rest of the country," he says.

"The people of Michigan are really very fortunate," Reinsch says.

Lifeguards to be on duty at city's three beaches this Friday

Lifeguards will be at Charlevoix's three major beaches beginning Friday Dwight Boss, City Recreation Director, has announced.

From that date until Labor Day weekend the guards will be at the beaches from 11 a.m. until 6 p.m. daily Boss said.

"Lifeguards are, as the word implies, on the beaches to serve just that purpose. They are not at the beaches to serve as baby-sitters. Parents are asked to cooperate by not allowing children under 12 years to be at the beaches without a babysitter or an adult. With so many people at the beach, it is impossible to look after unattended youngsters" Boss said in asking the cooperation of parents.

He also said that the use of floatation devides is discouraged. "Unless it is a Coast Guard endorsed lifesaving jacket, the use of floatation devices is discouraged. They tip over throwing the child into water over his head; they float out into the lake and the child is unable to bring it back into shallow water. Any child with such a device will be confined to the shallow waist-deep water" Boss said in explaining the reason for the action. He concluded by saying the rule will be strictly enforced.

Lifeguards at the beaches will be Jim Boss and Gerard Doan who are returning to the program, Mark Morgan, Mike Martin and Mark Beaudoin.

Swimming instructors at the Ferry Avenue Beach will be Kelly Carson who is returning for another season and Patti Cook.

Guards are assigned to the Lake Michigan beach at the foot of the Grant Street hill south of the pierheads and to the Depot beach and the Ferry Ave. beach on Lake Charlevoix.

Elizabeth Campbell plays host to a most unusual party.

'Credit Card Party' is an imaginative way to celebrate a birthday

by ANNE KELLY

Looking for a recipe for a unique birthday party for your youngster? Try "Elizabeth Campbell's Credit Card Party."

Elizabeth, daughter of John and Mary Lee Campbell, recently celebrated her 8th birthday. Mom decided to put into action an idea gleaned from a "Detroit Free Press" article in which credit card birthdays had been spoofed as a creation of Detroit suburbanite parents with questionable values. Despite the implications, Mary Lee thought it could work with a little improvisation and a lot of ingenuity.

"It was the best birthday party I ever went to," said one of the guests. "We had so much fun," Elizabeth agreed.

Upon arrival, each young guest received a "credit card" worth $30.00. (Mary Lee thinks that a lesser amount might have made the kids a bit more selective in their purchasing. The credit card was a bookmark-sized piece of tagboard which allowed space for deductions from the $30.00 as the party proceeded. They also received a shopping bag in which to place their purchases.

Next they were introduced to the carefully planned series of stations located upstairs and downstairs around the house. Each station has a shop of sorts specializing in a different commodity. There was a hair fashion shop, a beauty (make-up) shop, a video arcade, a cafe, a candy store, a bakery, a dime store, a book store, an arts and crafts corner (where the kids made "Shrinky Dinks"), and a tatoo (body painting) shop. Prices were "charged" for each purchase or service rendered until their funds became exhausted or they did, whichever came first.

The most popular shops were body painting and the candy shop, according to Elizabeth.

Mary Lee spent most of the party in the cafe, dishing up tacos or hot dog orders. "I couldn't have done it without the help of Jill (Taylor, the Campbell's teenaged babysitter) and her friends. They manned the stations for me and helped to set up and to clean up afterwards." All things considered, she felt that it had been easier than the traditional birthday party with games and refreshments. It had involved much planning, but the actual party ran itself once the kids got going.

What indredients does one need to pull of a "credit card party"?

You will need:

-Kid food for the cafe: tacos, hot dogs, jello, chips, etc.

-Baked goods for the bakery: cookies, cupcakes.

-Dime store items for the dime store: small pads of paper, pencils, markers, small bars of soap, cotton balls, ponytail ties.

-Video games or childrens movies.

-Craft supplies for the craft corner.

-Candy for the candy shop.

-Used books or magazines for the book store.

-Old make up for the beauty shop.

-Acryllic paints and brushes for the tatoo shop.

-Teenagers or older brothers or sisters to operate the shops and deduct prices.

-A lot of planning.

-A lot of stamina.

"I figured it didn't take much more preparation than planning a party for adults... I like to do as much for our kids," explained Mary Lee.

Other mothers are still in awe. Elizabeth's Credit Card Party is going to be a tough act to follow.

Some of the girls inspect the "merchandise".

NOTICE OF A PUBLIC HEARING ON INCREASING PROPERTY TAXES AND ON PROPOSED 1983-1984 BUDGET

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that on June 27, 1983, at 7:30 o'clock p.m. at Charlevoix High School the Board of Education of Charlevoix Public Schools will hold a joint public hearing to consider the district's proposed 1983-1984 budget and to consider the levying in 1983 of an additional proposed millage rate of .38 mills for operating purposes pursuant to Act 5, Public Acts of Michigan, 1982.

The Board of Education may not adopt its proposed 1983-1984 budget until after the public hearing. A copy of the proposed 1983-1984 budget is available for public inspection during normal business hours at 208 Clinton Street.

The Board of Education has the complete authority to establish that 25.75 mills be levied in 1983 from within its present authorized millage rate. The additional proposed millage rate would increase revenues for operating purposes from ad valorem property tax levies in 1983 otherwise permitted by Act 5, Public Acts of Michigan, 1982, by one and five tenths percent (1.5%).

The increase restores the millage rate to the amount authorized by the voters on June 13, 1983.

The purpose of the hearing is to receive testimony and discuss both the school district's proposed 1983-1984 budget and the levy of an additional millage rate. Following the public hearing, the Board of Education may adopt its 1983-1984 budget; not less than seven (7) days following the public hearing the Board of Education may approve the levy of all or any portion of the proposed additional millage rate.

This notice is given by order of the Board of Education.

Beaver Island's Medical Center owes much to support from Auxiliary

by FRAN MARTIN

Any organization, it is said, is only as strong as the support group behind it.

That statement holds true in the case of the Beaver Island Medical Center whose auxiliary, presently headed by Vera Timsak, is one of the hardest working support groups on this northern Michigan island.

"We'll do anything that will net us funds to meet the many needs of the center" Mrs. Timsak said of the Auxiliary that presently has 26 members and which snaps up any opportunity to make a few dollars.

The group's present project is a quilt, pieced from material donated by B.J.'s Needlecraft Shop, cut by volunteers, packaged into kits and given to members to piece during the winter months. In April the quilt was assembled for hand quilting. Chances are presently being sold on the quilt which will be given away over the Labor Day weekend.

"Our fund raising projects are limited but making the quilt was one thing we could all do" Mrs. Timsak said of the project of which Tammy McDonough was in charge. Thelma Johnson is in charge of ticket sales.

Assisting Mrs. Timsak as an executive committee are Joan Petrak, secretary, and Frances Teeter, treasurer. Marlon Burns represents the auxiliary as the liaison with the Medical Center Board of Directors.

The auxiliary has been a support group to the Medical Center since 1968. Their prime purpose is to help maintain and repair the center on a continuing basis, a big order on the island whose year-around population numbers only a few more than 300 people. The members have found numerous ways to raise funds. One is weekly luncheons at the Circle M Dinner Club which offers its facilities and donates the coffee. A free will offering is accepted for the potluck luncheon donated by the members during the summer months. The quilt project is their big project for the year.

The Auxiliary offers more than lip service to the organization it supports. It keeps the facility stocked with linens and other supplies.

Another of its major projects is bringing a dentist to the island to care for the island residents. The group has purchased a dentist's chair, some instruments and other equipment and obtained the services of Dr. David Miller of Petoskey who visits the island periodically. Mrs. Timsak said Sunday that a second dentist, Dr. Jeffrey L. Porter of Charlevoix, has also agreed to offer his services periodically to assure that island residents receive the care they need. He will supply his own instruments and equipment Mrs. Timsak said.

The Medical Center the auxiliary supports was constructed in early 1950. Monies raised through many projects over a period of time and contributions were used to purchase the building materials and volunteer labor mostly constructed the facility which offers the resident doctor, Dr. Leonard Sludera, offices, emergency room facilities and limited facilities for caring for a patient or two. For other than emergencies, patients travel to hospitals on the mainland. The two townships that make up the island, Peaine and St. James, also contribute to the upkeep and maintenance of the facility.

"As isolated as we are, we try to work together and have everything in readiness in the event of an emergency until we can get to a larger hospital facility. Because we are so dependent on what we have here I think is the reason everyone is so supportive of our work" Mrs. Timsak added.

Among their many projects was the sharing of the purchase of a mannequin with the Fire Department's Auxiliary to be used in First Aid and C.P.R. training. One of its members, Carol Skinner, has assumed the job of cleaning and caring for the mannequin.

Tammy McDonough (left) and Florence Burke put the finishing touches on the green and white quilt made by the Beaver Island Medical Center Auxiliary as a fund-raising project.

Residents of Beaver Island, aware of their isolation, are probably more safety-minded than the average person. First Aid and C.P.R. training are among the priorities. The Beaver Island Medical Center Auxiliary joined with the Volunteer Fire Department Auxiliary in the purchase of a mannequin to be used in training sessions. Carol Skinner has assumed the responsibility of caring for the mannequin. She is pictured here with the resident physician, Dr. Leonard Sludera, at the Medical Center.

Hemingway film to be shot here

Television crews from WBGU-57, Bowling Green State University, and Lakeland Community College, Mentor, Ohio, will be in this area the week of June 19-27, video-taping the Ernest Hemingway story.

The 30-minute program, funded by the Ohio Humanities Council, will focus attention on Hemingway's youth, and the influence of Northern Michigan on the emerging young novelist.

"It was in Northern Michigan that Hemingway first began to get a sense of the natural world," said Gene H. Dent, author of the script and project director. "Nearly two dozen of Hemingway's early short stories (the Nick Adams series) centered directly on events and places of the Petoskey area. We hope to capture the essence of the man and the countryside in the program."

Television crews will be video-taping at sites in Petoskey, Walloon Lake, Horton Bay and Harbor Springs. Paul Lopez, WBGU-57 producer and director, pointed out that the program was not a dramatization. "What we are attempting to do," Lopez said, "is to examine these early years in the context of the modern setting. We are using actors in only one brief scene which sets the state for the rest of the program. We will be using two local people, a boy of 10-12 years, and a man."

When completed the program will be aired some time in late September or early October. "We plan to bring the 'finished product back to Petoskey for a preview showing to the local people who have cooperated so grandly," Lopez said.

This the fourth such project WBGU and Lakeland has produced. "We have done two similar tapes on author Sherwood Anderson, and one on Pulitzer prize winning author Louis Bromfield. This is our most ambitious project thus far, and we have every expectation of having it aired nationally on the Public Broadcast System," Dent said. Dent has authored all four scripts.

Kathryn Walsh and her 2 year old son Braxton, are shopping for nutritional foods through the Health Department W.I.C. program.

Mothers, infants to be added to food program

District Health Department Number 3 will be adding more mothers, infants, children, and mothers-to-be to a supplemental food program called W.I.C. Recent passage of the Federal Jobs Bill has resulted in the allocation of $3.7 million to Michigan for the purpose of increasing enrollment in the Women, Infant, and Children Supplemental Food Program this summer. For the area covered by District Health Department Number Three, Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties, this will mean an increase of almost 650 people over the 1275 that use the program now.

The W.I.C. Program is a type of preventative medicine teamed with valuable information for mothers. It's a way of stopping nutritional problems before they start. According to Linda Yaroch, R.N., B.S.N. Health Department Coordinator for the Program "Health experts have found that mothers, babies and young children need certain key nutrients in their food." She also said "the W.I.C. Program helps supplement the eligible families food needs with foods rich in these necessary nutrients. These foods help with better nutrition for youngsters; their better nutrition helps to promote growth and development." The W.I.C. Program also helps provide families with an opportunity to learn about other health services that may benefit them.

Additional information about the W.I.C. Program and the current intensive enrollment effort may be obtained from any office of District Health Department Number 3 or by calling 547-6523.

Johnson wins Mich Am by 1

In a finish that couldn't have been more exciting had it been scripted, John Johnson of Rochester won the 72nd Michigan Amateur Golf Tournament Saturday with a 1-up victory in match play over Mark Chapelski of Flushing.

The tournament was decided on the Belvedere Golf Course's 18th green where Chapelski three-putted before Johnson sank his last putt, a three footer, to claim the venerable Staghorn Trophy.

Tournament favorites, including several former winners, fell by the wayside early in match play which began Thursday following qualifying rounds at both the Belvedere and Antrim Dells courses.

Defending champ Dave Grsulau of Alma was defeated in the first round of match play as was Mark Timyan of Grand Blanc, medalist in the qualifying rounds. 1980 winner Steve Maddalena of Jackson, who eliminated Graulau, was beaten himself in the next round by James Naugler's birdy on the last hole. Bill McDonald, 1981 champ, was also eliminated in the second round.

The only Charlevoix-area player to make it to match play was Mike Fagan who summers in Ironton. Fagan was eliminated, however, in Thursday's first round.

Saturday's finals were set up when Johnson defeated George Catto of Hickory Hills after getting past five-time Michigan Am winner Glenn Johnson. Chapelski made it to the finals by beating Marc Dingman of Godwin Glen.

The final match-up saw the lead see-saw as Johnson was two-up after nine holes following an eagle putt on No. 9. Chapelski came right back, however, with birdies on the 12th and 15th holes to even things up and set the stage for the heroics on the final green.

John Johnson, winner of the 72nd annual Michigan Amateur Golf Tournament, accepts the Staghorn Trophy and congratulatios from Golf Association of Michigan officials following the tournament finals at the Belvedere Golf Club Saturday.

Consumers will cooperate on training, says Hoffman

by PEG OHLE

David P. Hoffman, superintendent of the Big Rock Point Nuclear Plant owned by Consumers Power Company, last week confirmed the company's desire to continue to cooperate with Charlevoix County in coordinating off-site nuclear emergency plans.

In a letter to I. Lee Moerland, chairman of the County Board of Commissioners, Hoffman said, "When a current training list has been submitted by the county and approved by the state, the company stands ready to participate when radiological training is necessary."

County Emergency Services Director Earl Muma has been working with the Michigan State Police Emergency Management Division in re-writing and updating some operating and training procedures of the county's emergency plan. This task is now completed as far as the county is concerned, Muma says.

There is some urgency in the matter of training at this time since there will be a Big Rock Point emergency exercise on July 25 and 26, in which the federal and state governments, as well as Charlevoix and Emmet Counties and Big Rock will participate.

Part of the exercises for which local organizations must be trained is the operation of "decontamination centers" in the East Jordan High School and in the Sheriff's Building in Charlevoix. While the center in East Jordan will be open to "decontaminate" anyone who walks in, the center in Charlevoix will be solely for personnel of the Emergency Operations Center.

"The county is doing what it has to do to make things work", Muma told the Courier. "With the cooperation of everyone concerned, we will have our personnel trained for the job."

As set up by federal regulations, the state and county are responsible for training members of organizations which would be called upon to help in a nuclear emergency situation, with the power company assisting with its expertise in radiological training.

In the past, there have been some misunderstandings among emergency services people about who is responsible for emergency training, but a recent meeting called by Moerland, which was attended by State and local emergency services people as well as representatives from Big Rock, seems to have gone a long way toward answering the questions.

DNR may crack down on Medusa dust

by DAVE KNIGHT

Medusa Cement Company's fugitive dust control measures have violated state air quality standards "in a number of areas over the past couple years" and represent a "chronic problem" that has gotten worse according to a high level official in the Michigan Department of Natural Resources Air Quality Division.

Dennis Drake, supervisor of the division's Compliance Branch, said in a telephone interview Monday, "We have seen a real degradation of the operation of Medusa in the past few years. This used to be a model plant, one that we would use as an example to others of how a cement manufacturing plant should be operated. But in recent years this has not been the case."

According to Drake and other DNR sources, the Medusa plant located on Charlevoix Township's South Point has been cited numerous times in recent years for violations of state standards regarding the control of dust.

The most recent citation was in the form of an April 20, 1983 letter from the DNR's Region II headquarters in Roscommon to Medusa plant manager Thomas Thimm in which air quality engineer Richard D. Alexander summarized investigations he conducted at the plant on March 15, 22 and 31, 1983.

On his March 15 visit, wrote Alexander, he observed "excessive fugitive dust emissions" in the area of the pug mill and clinker belt transfer house. (Clinker is a residue from the cement manufacturing process.) According to Alexander, while the clinker dust storage bin had to be emptied because of a plugged pug mill, "the dust was being dumped on the ground and the fine nature of the material made it extremely susceptible to wind transport. Plant personnel working in the clinker belt transfer house were shoveling the accumulated material out the door and onto the ground twenty feet below. The dust was becoming airborne and causing excessive fugitive dusting."

"These two sources of fugitive dust are in violation of Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission Rule 370 which requires the disposal of collected air contaminants to the outer air. The company operates a high vacuum truck and has water hoses available either of which would have reduced actual emissions; however, they were not used during the time of my observations."

Alexander also noted that on March 22 and 31, a bag dust collector was not in use during operation of the kiln. The latter time, Alexander noted that parts had been removed from the dust collector to replace broken parts on the kiln.

"The operation of clinker conveyors or elevators while the bag collector is not operating is in violation of special condition No. 17 of Permit to Install No. 561-82. The company's apparent lack of concern surrounding the operation of the Fuller Dracco bag collector and removing some of its parts to insure continued kiln operations is in violation of applicable air use permits. This office may have no recourse but to deny the Permit to Operate No. 561-82."

Compliance supervisor Drake explained that for each piece of new equipment at the plant, a Permit to Install is first required and later, if the equipment meets standards of operation, a Permit to Operate is issued.

Said plant manager Thimm Monday, "The items referred to in the April 20 letter were corrected at least two months ago. Since that time the plant has been running extremely well."

The Star of Chicago, sister ship to Charlevoix's Star of Charlevoix, enters the Round Lake Harbor on a courtesy call Saturday.

Star of Chicago visits here

The Star of Chicago, newest vessel in the Star Line Corporation headquartered at Williamston, Michigan, paid a courtesy call on its sister ship, the Star of Charlevoix Saturday while enroute from the East Coast to its berth at the Navy Pier in Chicago.

The 157-foot dinner boat came to the Great Lakes from the Blount Marine Inc. Shipyard at Warren, R.I., via the Welland Canal and Lakes Ontario, Erie, Huron and Michigan to Chicago, a journey that started at Warren R.I. June 21 and was concluded in Chicago June 26 according to Tom Dababdo, Assistant Manager of the Line. When it stopped here, the ship was being delivered by the Blount Marine Corp. to the new owners, Dababdo said.

The 99-ton steel-hulled vessel is 157 feet in lenth as compared with its sister ship, Star of Charlevoix wich is 113 feet in length with a beam of 29 feet.

The Star of Chicago has two enclosed decks and a sun deck with a seating capacity of 450 compared to the Star of Charlevoix which has one enclosed deck plus a sun deck and seats 250. The extra deck plus the ship's wider beam allows for the increased seating capacity Dababdo said.

The ship is powered by twin V-12 Detroit Diesel engines.

It will become a luncheon and dinner cruise ship operating out of Navy Pier in downtown Chicago much as the Bay Queen-Star of Charlevoix which is operating out of Charlevoix for the third summer and which was at Sanford, Fla., during the winter months of 1982-83.

"Facts of Faith" to be shown locally

Demonstrating the unique characteristics of high frequency electricity, Dr. Irwin A. Moon, director of Moody Institute of Science in Whittier, California, fries an egg on a cold stove, makes steel wool burn like paper, neutralizes the effects of gravity on metal rings, and even allows a million volts of electricity to pass through his body without being injured.

All this and more is included in the film "Facts of Faith", to be shown Sunday, July 3, at 10 a.m. at the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix.

"Facts of Faith" is one of a series of unusual motion pictures included in the Sermons from Science pavilion at the New York World's Fair and shown around the world in 16 foreign language versions. The 13 films released under the general heading of Sermons from Science have been acclaimed by scientists and laymen alike and have received a number of national and international awards. Their basic purpose is to demonstrate that there is no conflict between true science and Christianity.

This film is the first in a series of Sermons from Science films to be shown by the Community Reformed Church during the months of July and August. Pastor Larry Grooters and the congregation of the church invite all visitors and members of the community to share in this unique experience.

Carroll, assistant director of MSU Cooperative Extension Service natural resources and public policy programs.

Commissioners attend MSU program

Four members of the Charlevois County Board of Commissioners recently attended County Commissioners' Day at Michigan State University.

This special day, sponsored by the Michigan State Cooperative Extension Service, is designed to provide local officials a review of a variety of Extension programs, many of which may be relevant to local government.

The program included demonstrations and tours related to topics ranging from handling toxic waste to improving Michigan's tourism industry. MSU president Cecil Mackey welcomed the group, and James Anderson, dean of the MSU College of Agriculture and Natural Resources, spoke at the luncheon meeting.

The four County Commissioners attending were Oral Sutliff of Boyne City, Ralph Harmon of Boyne Falls, Don Smith of Charlevoix, and Larry Matthew of Walloon Lake. They were joined by Rod Cortright, County Extension Director.

Jail not adequate for juveniles, says Lasater

Sheriff George T. Lasater is concerned about having to house juvenile offenders in the County jail.

In a letter to Juvenile Judge John Murphy, made known to the County Board of Commissioners last week, Sheriff Lasater said he would like to be free of juvenile offenders until such time as the jail is properly staffed and has adequate facilities to care for them, particularly in view of the increasing number of juvenile suicides while in custody.

Juvenile Officer Brad Campbell told the Courier that, by law; juvenile offenders can be held in jail no longer than 48 hours. "Even so, I hate to send them over there," he said.

The problem is there is no other place in the area to house juveniles accused of serious crimes. The nearest juvenile detention home is in Flint. For obvious reasons, such offenders cannot be placed in ordinary foster homes.

Sheriff Lasater reports that he has a particularly serious staffing problem at the present time because he has lost a deputy to the Marine Program, one deputy is on sick leave, and several deputies take summer vacations.

Committee to study Sanitary Code

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week appointed an ad hoc committee to study and revise the Charlevois County Sanitary Code to bring it up to current standards.

Named to the committee were Dorothy Cnster, representing environmental concerns; Larry Levengood, representing code administration; Scott Beatty, representing legal concerns; Irvin Sturm, representing engineering and trade concerns; Oral Sutliff, district Health Board representative; and Ralph Harmon, County Board representative.

The committee is charged with preparing a report to be presented to the County Board on November 23, with a status report due in October.

Township to hold tourney

The Charlevoix Township Slow Pitch League will sponsor a July Fourth Tournament at Shanahan Field on Waller Road beginning at 6:15 p.m. Friday, George Melke, tournament manager, has announced.

Teams entered will be five from the township league including Flight Deck, Control Engineering, Dairy Queen, Boyne Machine and Juilleret's.

Other teams will be Unique Finishing of Detroit, Poquette Leasing of Petoskey, Harborside Sports of Boyne City — the defending champions, The Landing and Townhouse No. 2 of Charlevoix.

Charlevoix students participating in this year's College for Kids, a program for talented students in grades 4-8, head up to North Central Michigan College. Two weeks of enrichment experiences have been offered at the college sponsored by N.C.M.C., Cheboygan-Otsego-Presque Isle Intermediate School District, Char-Em Intermediate School District and the Virginia McCune Arts Center.

Samplings included: Aerodynamics, Author's Attic, Beginning Touch Typing, Blood and Guts (activities related to health or medicine), Bones and Stones (archeology), Calligraphy, Cartooning, Photography, Dramatics, Math, Outdoor Biology, French, Science, Problem Solving.

Rose Todd, consultant for the Gifted and Talented for the Cheboygan-Otsego-Presque Isle Intermediate School District, reports that the first year program was as exciting for teachers as it was for students. The most popular courses offered seemed to be science and creative dramatics. In the post program evaluations, students reported that they had become aware of many career opportunities and that the classes had been "challanging" but not over their heads. Instructors were impressed with the motivation of their students and the way they "soaked up infirmation" like sponges.

Ms. Todd feels that their only regret was in the area of student slection. Directives for selection had been left to the individual schools with perhaps not specific enough guidelines. All students exhibiting task commitment, motivation, self-direction, creativity and high performance are encouraged to participate. They need not be in the Gifted and Talented Program exclusively.

Opinion

Knight on the Town
Sister city

A recent visit to South Haven, Michigan, 250 miles down the Lake Michigan coastline from us, revealed a city that is amazingly similar to Charlevoix in many respects.

Like Charlevoix, South Haven's roots are in the resort trade. It's proximity to the Chicago area made it a popular vacation spot early in the century and as tourism increased, the hotels, rooming houses and resorts boomed. As late as the early 1960s, summer in South Haven found thousands of city refugees on its streets, beaches and shuffleboard courts.

For various reasons, however, the tourism has declined dramatically over the past two decades in South Haven. The hotels, once grand, opulent affairs, have either disappeared or been converted to condominiums. Newly built condominiums have multiplied like rabbits along the lake shore.

Like Charlevoix, South Haven was once a busy port with many commercial fishing operations and even a freighter dock in its Black River harbor. Those industries both faded in the 60s as well leaving the city in a deep economic funk.

Salvation came to South Haven in the form of the coho salmon. As the salmon fishery was developed in the 60s and 70s to help curb alewife over-population, sport fishing took over as the city's major economic staple. Boat slips and marina facilities replaced the dingy work docks and undeveloped areas of the harbor. Today, the Black River harborage at South Haven teems with pleasure craft, both sport fishermen and sailing enthusiasts. Not only is the salmon fishing good – litrally hundreds of boats are visible from the pier some days – but perch fishing off the pierheads can be phenomenal. Aboot 150 people, including entire families, were fishing from the pier on any given day last week.

The fish have brought hack the people hack to South Haven.

To accomodate its rebirth as a vacation mecca, South Haven's Downtown Development Authority (DDA) pushed for, and successfully carried out a radical redesign of the downtown area. Ornate landscaping, traffic islands, stylized street lights and other pedestrian-oriented measures have made what was a busy street into a mall atmosphere. The design is very much like the downtown renovation suggested in Charlevoix's Master Plan and endorsed by the local DDA.

While many private merchants in South Haven will have to do some renovation of their own to blend with the new public improvements, most whom I visited with were happy with the project.

It is not, of course, unanimous bliss. Some merchants are worried about snow removal problems and at least one candidate for their city council has made a campaign promise to rip out every new tree, traffic harrier and streetlight.

In an unrelated but uncannily similar parallel, South Haven is the site of Consumers Power Company's only operating nuclear facility other than Charlevoix's Big Rock Point, the Palisades Plant. It was interesting to note that Van Buren County is going through almost an identical process to Charlevoix County in trying to figure out who pays for what in emergency training.

On one final subject, I naturally had to find out where South Haven gets its water. Turns out that the city of about 8,000 residents uses Lake Michigan water which it takes from an intake located one mile offshore.

Neilson explains position

The following was submitted by Howard F. Neilson, a resident of the LaCroft Condominiums, as a response to feedback Neilson has gotten from his letter published last week in the Courier.

Q. Because of your strong anti-Medusa letter appearing in last week's Courier you are perceived by many residents as being out to close up the Medusa plant. Is this true?

A. This is nonsense of course. I am not insensitive to the fact that many Charlevoix residents are dependent on Medusa for employment and would be financially affected by such an event. I am merely trying to get Medusa to operate in compliance with State and Federal clean air requirements.

Q. Medusa has stated that they do comply with Air Quality requirements. You say they do not. Who is right?

A. The management of Medusa lie when they state they are complying with the necessary DNR requirements relating to the emission of pollutants into the atmosphere. I have a copy of the DNR letter of April 20, 1983 to Medusa which I will make available to your paper for publication for Charlevoix residents to read and judge for themselves. This letter cites Medusa for violation of Michigan Air Pollution Rule 370 and Installation Permit No. 561-82. The same letter also suggests that the Air Quality Director of the DNR may have to close Medusa's Permit to operate No. 561-82. There are other letters citing violations dated September 8, 1982; September 1, 1982; August 30, 1982. If Medusa is closed down it will only be because of their long history of non-compliance. My action may indeed save jobs in Charlevoix.

Q. Is is possible for Medusa to comply with Air Quality requirements?

A. Certainly it is! The Peerless Cement Plant in Detroit, a large urban area, use the dry process same as Medusa. To the best of my knowledge they have never been cited for violation of Air Quality standards.

Q. What is Medusa doing or not doing which causes them to be in non-compliance?

A. Poor management, terrible housekeeping, insufficient and inadequate maintenance of equipment, no preventive maintenance, constant cannibalization of operating equipment.

Q. Doesn't correction of these practices cost money?

A. Certainly it does, however it also produces a more efficient operation which pays back an appreciable portion of that extra cost. Medusa can still be a cost effective and competitive cement producer by cleaning up its act. Actually Medusa should be employing more people. Rather than doing that they are trying to make an extra buck at the expense of the community.

Q. Why should they employ more people, how would that help?

A. As noted previously most of their problems are related to insufficient maintenance - this is people oriented. Cement particulate is a very abrasive material, it is extremely hard on equipment. Therefore, maintenance and preventive maintenance is absolutely essential. You can't cut corners in this area. They do!

Q. Why are you, a summer resident so zealously interested?

A. I have been coming to Charlevoix since 1946. I really like the people of Charlevoix and believe this area too be one of the most beautiful sections of the state. Air pollution, particularly when it can be so easily avoided is an abomination! Frankly, I think most of your fine citizens detest this pollution as much as I, however, many of Charlevoix people are afraid to speak out for fear of boycott or recrimination. As a taxpayer, I have every right to speak out. Charlevoix probably has a Littering Ordinance. If so, a private citizen would be fined if he was caught littering. Yet here you have an industrial neighbor dumping cement dust over your city, on your cars, clogging up your house screens, ruining the finish on your boat and he is allowed to go scott free. If any fair minded citizen thinks that is justice then I have sadly misjudged my fellow man.

Clockwise
Forgotten gardens

by Bob Clock

IT ALMOST SEEMS as if the movers and shakers at city hall are sorry they ever let the city gardens take root on State Street.

There is scarcely a corner of the city that suffers more from benign neglect than that little scrap of land on airport property.

The main problem lies with the dirt road that enters the tract. It is so rutted that gardeners negotiate it only at the risk of ruining their shock absorbers and exhaust systems. If you travel more than five mph, you're in deep trouble.

But the gardeners are a stoic lot and don't do a lot of complaining. Some probably are afraid the city will close the gardens if they raise their voices. So they suffer in silence.

Actually, the dirt road serves the garden just fine. The gardeners don't need or want a paved thoroughfare running down to their tomato patches. But a road grader and a few yards of gravel could solve the problem in minutes.

And if the city can find a boy with a scythe and a whetstone, the tall grass between the road the gardens should really be trimmed to make the gardens more presentable. Some of us manage to keep our grass trimmed, but it's not an easy job for little old ladies in tennis shoes — particularly if they are afraid of encountering wild creatures in the waist-high shrubbery.

As a veteran city gardener, I am a little chagrined to see so many of my tax dollars being used at the yacht harbor, the airport, the golf course, the beaches, etc. — facilities which cater largely to non-residents — and so little at the city gardens, which are worked almost exclusively by year-round taxpayers who are assessed $5 a plot to boot for the privilege of using the land.

WHILE I'M ON THE subject, I might as well bring up a pet peeve among city gardeners: That is how the plot boundaries wander from year to year. If you had lot 10 last year and worked hard to remove the quack grass, you might find yourself with half of lot 10 and half of lot 11 this year — with a whole new field of quack grass to contend with. Installation of permanent markers wouldn't be all that difficult.

CHARLEVOIX RECEIVED a great deal of press and TV coverage when the city garden project was initiated in 1974. Although community gardens are as old as civilization itself, the Charlevoix gardens were unique to Northern Michigan and perhaps to all of Michigan, so far as I know.

Over the years the project has lived up to its highest expectations. The city gardens not only produce thousands of dollars worth of fruits and vegetables every year but also provide healthful outdoor recreation for senior citizens and others.

You would almost think that such a pioneering effort that has turned out so successfully would be looked upon as a feather in Charlevoix's cap. You would almost think that visiting dignitaries would be escorted through the city gardens as eagerly as they are the sewage disposal plant or the water works.

But today — nine years later — the main entrance is unkempt and overgrown. The road is a mess. There isn't even a sign to let visitors know what's going on behind the weeds.

Letters: Mopeds, volunteers

To the Editor:

Why is it that mopeds and mini bikes that don't have to have licenses and those riding them don't have to take driving tests or wear helmets have the same rights on the highway as a motorcycle or automobile?

Almost every day when I ride down Bridge Street on my motorcycle there's one or two of them right beside me, going the same speed and having the same privileges as those of us who pay out a lot of money each year to abide by the law.

Who checks on these moped and mini bike riders?

Russell S. Geek

EDITOR'S NOTE: Secretary of State Richard H. Austin recently reminded all Moped operators under 19 that a new law requires them to wear helmets when riding. He also noted that the new law allows Mopeds an increase from 1.5 to two horsepower and an increase in maximum speed from 25 to 30 miles an hour. Even though the law requires helmets for operators under 19, Austin said all Moped riders should wear helmets for their own protection.

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Mark G. Martin

Lenihan-Martin

Elizabeth Ann Lenihan and Mark G. Martin exchanged marriage vows on Saturday afternoon, June 11, at Saints Peter and Paul Church in Troy.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Lenihan of Troy, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norbert S. Martin of Charlevoix.

Approximately 180 guests witnessed the double-ring rites performed by Father Joseph Tobin.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a long white organza gown with bishop sleeves, high neckline, and long waist trimmed with silk Venise lace. The same lace was repeated in scalloping and appliques on the skirt, and seed pearls decorated the bodice. The chapel-length veil was also trimmed with Venise lace. The bride carried a bouquet of stephonitis with white sweetheart roses.

Mrs. James Shirey, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. Mrs. Thomas Albus, another sister, was a bridesmaid, as was Kathleen Albus, a niece of the bride. Their gowns were of orchid tafetta fashioned with narrow straps and topped with fitted jackets with ruffled collars, melon sleeves, and covered buttons. They carried colonial bouquets of white daisies, baby's breath, and orchid trim.

Kelley Albus, another niece of the bride, served as flower girl. Her gown was similar to those of the other attendants. Robert Lenihan, III, a nephew of the bride, was ringbearer.

Mitchell Martin attended the bridegroom as best man, while Christopher Martin and Michael Weibel served as groomsmen.

Chris Hanna, Michael Martin, and Ronald Lenihan were ushers.

Music for the ceremony was provided by clarinetist Mark Gallagher of Charlevoix and vocalist Pam Janco.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a reception at Petrusellos in Troy. The bridegroom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner on Friday evening at the Roma Cafe.

After a wedding trip to Hilton Head Island, the newlyweds are at home in Troy. The bride is a student at the University of Detroit Law School, and the bridegroom is employed as a structural engineer with the Detroit Edison So. He is also a part time graduate student at the University of Detroit, working on a master's degree in civil engineering.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis W. Grettenberger

McKimmy-Grettenberger

Karen Jean McKimmy became the bride of Louis W. Grettenberger on Saturday afternoon, June 18, at the 1st United Methodist Church of Jackson.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James A. McKimmy of Jackson. The McKimmy family lived in Charlevoix for several years while Dr. McKimmy was Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools.

The bridegroom is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. George Grettenberger of Mason.

Dr. Larry Taylor officiated at the marriage ceremony. He was assisted by the bridegroom's father, who is pastor of the United Methodist Church in Mason.

Katherine J. McKimmy attended her sister as maid of honor. Mark Mitchell of Cadillac served the bridegroom as best man.

Music was a special feature of the ceremony. The bride and bridegroom sang "One Hand, One Heart" to each other. They first sang it together in a high school production of "East Side Story". Two trumpets accompanied the organ for the traditional wedding march, and a violin solo was another feature.

A reception in the church parlors followed the ceremony. The newlyweds will be at home in North Manchester, Indiana after a wedding trip to Mackinac Island. (Photography by Aartvark Studio, Charlevoix)

Vance's message on creative thinking directed to business, family and education

by ANNE KELLY

"Man is approaching a renaissance," predicted Mike Vance. He is convinced that in the near future we will either see a flash (nuclear holocaust) or come to solve the world's two greatest problems: hunger and ignorance. "We'll do that when we put the heart in the robot."

Vance, speaking at Boyne Highlands, talked fast and hit home hard with humor, pathos and a wealth of information geared at creative leadership as it applies to business, education and family life. His message, entertaining as well as informative was delivered to an audience who had come to learn about the benefits of creative thinking - and did.

Vance worked for seven years for and with Walt Disney in charge of Idea and People Development in Disney productions, Disneyland and Disney World, and as Dean of Disney University. His theories of creative thinking center around the ability of the individual to make the most out of himself by continuing to grow throughout life. The growth, he explained, comes about when one continually exposes oneself to that which makes him ignorant. In growth there is life, yes, even beyond retirement when we are programmed to believe we can put all our strivings to rest on the golf course. "Graduation (Death) is not a terrifying experience to those who have lived well while they were alive."

Vance is a proponent of early childhood education as well as of the development of a long neglected natural resource, our senior population.

"Cultures who uphold and respect older citizens are those that endure."

Coming down hard on the American system of education, Vance believes that our elementary schools are dedicated to the erroneous principle of ability grouping and seem to disregard that fact that most children are reading by the time they are in kindergarten.

"The Japanese are excelling, not because of their style of management," Vance pointed out, "but because they have the most superior elementary education in the world... which they are currently improving to make still better."

Convinced that a child who learns skills is a happy child, Vance would recommend that every child by age 6 should be able to: read well, be bilingual, operate a computer, swim, be involved in a major sport, play a musical instrument and do household chores. "We've kept children helpless," Vance concluded his observations. To illustrate the promise of creatively motivated children, Vance showed the audience a sweatband with a zippered pocket which had been developed by a 13 year old boy who is presently making a million dollars off his invention. Perhaps few had realized that the "Strawberry

Susan Gray and Harlan Jennings as they appear in the lead roles of "L'Elisir d'Amore", which will be presented at the Virginia McCune Arts Center in Petoskey on July 5 by the Lyric Opera Company of Northern Michigan.

Lyric Opera to be at McCune Center

The Lyric Opera of Northern Michigan will bring its production of Donizetti's comic, melodramatic opera "L'Elisir d'Amore" (the Elixir of Love) to Petoskey's Virginia McCune Community Arts Center on Tuesday, July 5.

Susan Gray will sing the role of Giannetta, a peasant girl, in her Lyric Opera debut, and Harlan Jennings of Michigan State University will be heard as Sgt. Belcore. The production will be sung in English.

Tickets are available at the Community Arts Center on Mitchell Street in Petoskey, The Apple Tree in Charlevoix, and at Hovey Drugs in Harbor Springs. Tickets are $8.00 and will also be available at the door the night of the performance. In addition, they may be obtained by mail from the Lyric Opera of Northern Michigan, P.O. Box 96, Interlochen, Michigan 49643. For mail orders, a self-addressed and stamped envelope is requested.

The production is made possible in part by support from the Michigan Council for the Arts.

Medusa

Thimm said that the dust collector unit referred to in the letter was not a required piece of equipment but had been installed voluntarily by the company to improve dust control.

"We took it upon ourselves to put in that particular dust collector," said Thimm, "That unit has tremendously improved the fugitive dust emissions from the clinker handling area. At no time did we operate any equipment knowing that it was not in compliance."

According to Drake, however, it has been the repeated failure of dust control equipment at Medusa that has prompted the Regional office in Roscommon to make initial contact with the DNR's Environmental Enforcement Division regarding possible punitive measures. That division has not yet responded to his office, said Drake and Thimm said he had not been contacted by the enforcement division either. A spokesman for the division was not available for comment Monday.

"We are not trying to shut down the facility," said Drake, "We just want them to comply with state air quality standards."

"Many cement plants using the same manufacturing method operate cleanly and the Medusa plant has the equipment and capability to do so as well," he added, "But we are seeing chronically poor performance in the operation of the equipment."

Drake said that because of the increasing problems, the DNR has stepped up its surveillance of the plant making regular on-site visits as often as twice a month.

Arden Toland, DNR District Engineer who, along with Alexander, is responsible for monitoring the plant's compliance with air quality standards, said while the main operation of the plant was "real good", Medusa has had an ongoing problem with fugitive dust.

Toland said, however, that the fugitive dust stirred up a ground level is probably not able to drift as far as the City of Charlevoix. He said that any dust making it to the city most likely comes from the direct manufacturing process and is emitted from the plant's stacks.

Since the stack emissions are greatest during start-ups and shutdowns, said Toland, it has been the company's inability to keep the plant running without interruption that has posed the most significant problem in his opinion.

Asked to respond to claims by some that Medusa increases emissions from the stacks at night when the dust clouds cannot be seen, Toland said "Their operation doesn't change when the sun goes down; they don't do anything differently at night. There is no magic valve they switch on to bypass any dust collection equipment."

He did note, however, that meterological conditions may vary from day to night and affect in which direction the stack emissions are dispersed.

At least one local organization and an individual have initiated efforts to see that Medusa complies with air quality standards. At a meeting of the board of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, Inc. (KCB) Saturday, June 25, it was decided unanimously to call and write the president of the Crane Company, parent firm of the Medusa Cement Company, "to advise him directly of citizen concern about air pollution from Medusa dust and request cooperation in resolving the situation."

Howard F. Neilson, a regular summer resident of Charlevoix, has recently appeared before the KCB, the Charlevoix City Council and a special Charlevoix Township public meeting to press for more stringent efforts to make sure the Medusa plant complies with clean air standards.

Neilson said Monday that he is considering the development of a citizens committee and that he will go as far as to file a class action suit if neccessary to force compliance by the plant.

City to sponsor tourney

The Charlevoix Recreation Department will sponsor an Independence Day slow pitch tournament at the Carpenter Ave. field featuring a minimum of 10 teams Dwight Boss, city recreation director, has announced.

Play will begin Friday evening and continue through Saturday with the finals being played Sunday afternoon in the double elimination tourney.

Trophies will be awarded to first and second place winners with individual trophies going to the members of the tournament champions.

Voorheis Jewelry & Fine Arts features Michigan originals

Shirley and Stephen Voorheis first came to Charlevoix several years ago to help an artist friend display and sell his pottery at the Waterfront Art Fair.

"We fell in love with Charlevoix right away and decided it would be a great place to raise our children," Shirley recalls.

Shirley and Stephen have now lived in Charlevoix five years, moving here after Stephen managed to transfer to the Charlevoix County Department of Public Services.

And Shirley is doing what she has wanted to do for a long time – operate a jewelry and fine arts shop. Voorheis Jewelry & Fine Arts recently opened at 107 Bridge Street.

The shop sells art pieces crafted by several well-known Michigan artists: metal sculpture by Stephen Vat, Jr. of Prudenville, driftwood wall pieces by Jean Bedar, thrown and hand-painted porcelain pottery by Bill Nagengast of New Hudson, jewelry (rings, pendants, chains, earrings, watch bands, buckles, etc., all made in Michigan and some of it designed by Shirley herself).

The only foreign items sold by Voorheis are Royal Doulton character mugs, which she can order if the character desired by the customer is not in stock.

Shirley is a professional jewelry designer who likes to create new pieces of jewelry from old pieces.

In designing such pieces, she says she takes the owner's lifestyle into consideration as well as his or her preferences and suggestions.

Buyers of Bill Nagengast porcelain vases often want special floral arrangements to go with them. Shirley provides these, too.

As Shirley and Stephen Voorheis' business card says, the shop is "Where Artistry Flourishes".

Shirley Voorheis displays some of her wares.

Vance speaks at Boyne

Shortcake" scanted dolls had been the brainchild of a 9 year old girl.

The afternoon session of the "Adventures in Creative Thinking" seminar zeroed in on three emphasis points: "the storyboard system", an idea development system developed by Walt Disney, the principles of good management, and "creative living centers" for the home and business.

The "storyboard system" is simply a method of display thinking, a technique which helps organize, plan and communicate creatively. It is a four walled bulletin board which depicts the development, connections and interrelation between and among management, personnel and products. It is an "eyes on" experience which cuts down on verbal meetings. A method of "planning before you're there."

Vance's 10-part recipe for good management is essentially: 1) having the ability to 2) establish standards and to 3) manage a 4) creative climate where 5) people are self-motivated for the 6) mastery of 7) long term constructive goals in a 8) participatory environment of 9) mutual respect compatible with 10) established values.

"Creative Living Centers" are Vance's projection for the future of creative architectural design in business and the home. A creative living center is what Vance refers to as the "kitchen of the mind" where planning and activities happen because the tools for these are readily accessible. Vance's own home creative living center does away with the traditional ideas of living room, family room, kitchen, breezeway etc. and initiates an entirely workable concept of a circular room. There is a work or planning island in the center. Around the room's circumference are activity stations including a display thinking center, computer center, medical microscope, telescope on the patio, a ham radio set up, 2 TV's, a video recorder and finally stacks of books readily accessible - not on shelves.

For those of us still mind-boggled by Vance's enthusiastic, almost evangelical delivery, there is a wealth of information to sift through. There may be some cobwebs to sweep away and some new causeways to travel on our way to becoming (as Walt Disney once wished for Vance) - "the men and women we dreamed of becoming when we were small boys and girls."

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX COUNCIL MINUTES

June 20, 1983
8:00 P.M.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time in a regular meeting held in Council Chambers, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan, with Mayor Staley presiding.

Present: Councilmembers Porter, Timms, Roloff, Wood, Block and Olach. Absent: None.

The Minutes of the June 6, 1983 regular meeting were approved as presented in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes Book.

Mrs. Marvin Beyers, a member of the General Public present, discussed her concern with Council regarding the stairways to be built at the end of West Dixon Avenue for a public access to Lake Michigan. Being the owner of the adjoining property, she would like the stairs to be built 15 feet away from her property line.

Moved by Councilman Porter and supported by Councilman Olach to approve the West Dixon public access stairway be built a minimum of 15 feet from the property line and that the City will reimburse the developer for any extra expense associated with the relocation up to a maximum of $1,500.00.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmembers Porter, Timms, Roloff, Wood, Block, and Olach. Nays: None. Absent: None.

A Public Hearing was held regarding a proposed site plan for the Charlevoix Athletic Club, 107 West Hurlbut, formerly Martin's Fish Market and Oleson's Garden Center, as submitted by Robert Kern. When completed the building would house two pre-fabricated racquetball courts, locker rooms, whirlpool, saunas, and exercise and aerobics areas. There was some discussion whether the stairway to State Street should be removed or repaired. Mr. Kern said he would do what ever Council wanted.

Moved by Councilman Block and supported by Councilwoman Roloff to approve the Site Plan as presented by Robert Kern for the Charlevoix Athletic Club, 107 West Hurlbut with conditions as recommended by the Planning Commission:

1. Replace or repair the fence along State Street.
2. Change the side setback from Bartlett's to 5 feet, instead of 3 feet as requested, to keep the tennis courts in line with the existing building.
3. Repair or remove the stairway on State Street.
4. Provide landscaping on Hurlbut, between parking and street.
5. Provide curbing between car wash and parking to the north.
6. Developer is to provide sidewalk along property frontage on Hurlbut.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmembers Porter, Timms, Roloff, Wood, Block, and Olach. Nays: None. Absent: None.

A Public Hearing was held regarding the rezoning of the Finn Lumber Company property to Marine Commercial Scenic (MCS) until a building permit is issued for the proposed motel. At that time, the property would revert back to its current zoning of Motel-Hotel (M-H).

The following Ordinance was offered and moved for its adoption by Councilman Timms and supported by Councilman Wood.

Ordinance was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmembers Porter, Timms, Roloff, Wood, Block and Olach. Nays: None. Absent: None.

A Public Hearing was held regarding the revision of Transient Business Regulations. Two items are up for review. The first would amend a definition in the existing Ordinance, which would exempt any transient business on the City's Personal or Real Property Tax Roll. Under the change, most new seasonal businesses would have to get a license, but once they were included in the tax roll, (after their second year) they would be exempt from any other licensing. The second change would replace the fee resolution from last year with a new one which would eliminate the $5.00 per day charge for roadside stands. All other fees in the Resolution would remain the same including the $100.00 fee to get the initial license for a roadside stand.

The following Ordinance Amendment was offered and moved for its adoption by Councilman Wood and supported by Councilman Block.

Ordinance Amendment was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilman Porter, Timms, Roloff, Wood, Block, and Olach. Nays: None. Absent: None.

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Councilman Olach and supported by Councilman Timms.

RESOLUTION NO. 83-6-4

WHEREAS, the Common Council of the City of Charlevoix has adopted an Ordinance governing the licensing of all temporary and seasonal business operations in the City; and

WHEREAS, said Ordinance provides that license fees shall be established by resolution of the City Council;

NOW, THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that the following fee schedule shall be immediately effective:

1. The sum of Fifty Dollars ($50.00) shall be paid for each solicitor's license plus Five Dollars ($5.00) per day for each day the license is in effect.
2. The additional sum of Twenty-Five Dollars ($25.00) shall be paid for each person other than the applicant who solicits within the City under the authority of such solicitor's license.
3. The sum of One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) shall be paid for a license for a roadside stand of temporary business.
4. The sum of Fifty Dollars ($50.00) shall be paid for each transient merchant's license.
5. The sum of Fifteen Dollars ($15.00) per auction shall be paid for each auctioneer's license; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that Resolution 82-7-1, governing fees under the Ordinance, is hereby repealed.

RESOLVED this 20th day of June, 1983.

Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmembers Porter, Timms, Roloff, Wood, Block, and Olach. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Moved by Councilman Olach and supported by Councilman Wood to adopt the recommendations as proposed by the City Manager for the Water Quality Project as presented below:

1. Authorize use of the nonobligated fund balance from the Water Tower Construction project for well development. (This balance is currently about $58,000.)
2. Direct the City Manager to solicit proposals, evaluate candidates and recommend a qualified hydrologic/geologic engineer for a well development project.
3. Propose a compliance schedule to the Michigan Department of Public Health, directed toward bringing one production well on line in 1984 and a second well on line in 1987, if engineering tests prove well development is feasible.
4. Appoint Mayor Staley to attend, along with the City Manager, meetings in Lansing this week with the Michigan Departments of Public Health and Natural Resources and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.
5. Set a tentative completion date of May 31, 1984 for the first well to be on line.

Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote.

Yeas: Councilmembers Porter, Timms, Roloff, Wood, Block, and Olach. Nays: None. Absent: None.

The City Manager then asked the City Council whether it was their intent to fund well construction through unlimited general obligation bonds (requiring a vote of the City electorate) or through some other means, not requiring a vote. The City Manager stated that if a vote was anticipated, monies should not be expended on well development until the project is approved by the voters. It was generally agreed among the City Council that the public supported improving the City water supply and a vote was not necessary to fund construction of production wells.

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Councilman Timms and supported by Councilwoman Roloff.

The boxes would help the trees to retain moisture. The cost for this project would be $300 to $400. It was Council's general consensus to go along with this project.

Council generally agreed to turn down the request presented by Bruce MacArthur to donate City gas for the petunia watering truck. City Council did, however, agree to continue to donate certain services (marina dockage, ski hill pass, or golf course pass) to the annual Petunia Auction.

Moved by Councilman Block and supported by Councilman Timms to approve a one year renewal of the City's employment contract with Robert Potter, City Assessor, at an annual rate of $10,397.20 said rate to be retroactive to June 13, 1983.

Focus to be on women at Reformed Church's Super Summer Wednesday

Focus on Women will be one of the features of this year's Super Summer Wednesday, a community service event sponsored by Christ Episcopal, Charlevoix Methodist, and Community Reformed Churches. The Focus on Women series will begin at 9:30 Wednesday July 6 and will run each Wednesday through August 10 from 9:30 until 11:30. Each Wednesday morning there will be two sessions offered for women from 15 to 105 years of age. There will be two classes, one an exercise fitness class, and the other a Creativity Class offered at 9:30 - and at 10:30 there will be a series of classes covering different topics each week.

The creativity class offered at 9:30 will be taught by Jan Glass. This class "not just an art class" will be a class in learning to see. By using the medium of drawing, the class will learn to truely experience the wonder of the world surrounding it. We will explore how and why we see. This is for anyone who wants to expand her awareness of her world. Jan Glass holds a degrae in art and English from Central Michigan University. Also offered at 9:30 will be an exercise-dance fitness class led by Debbie Gelderblom.

At 10:30 July 6, Mickey Grooters will teach a session on time management "How Do I Find the Time?" Mrs. Grooters, a full time teacher at Northwestern Michigan College, mother of three, and busy pastor's wife is well qualified to teach a course on time management. July 13, at 10:30 Sharon Heneveld will be speaking on the topic "Communicating with Your Teenager and Enjoying It More!" This session is for anyone who works with young people or who expects that they will have teen children or grandchildren in the future. Serving as a missionary with her husband in Chiapas, Mexico for ten years, heading a large camp for Jr. and Sr. High School young people and serving as a counselor to the counselor at that camp, raising 4 young people three of whom are teenagers and being an ever present listening ear to young people in her community helps to provide the extensive experience and backgournd that Mrs. Heneveld brings to her topic. Maxine Drenth will share her life experiences as she has sought to answer the question - how can I be of help to those right around me who are in need? Mrs. Drenth will speak on the topic "Ministry Is An Everyday Thing" on July 20 at 10:30. Maxine Drenth is an experienced Bible teacher, the mother of four boys, a co-worker in her husband's plumbing business.

The fourth session of Focus on Women will feature Gretzie Ames, wife of the pastor of Christ Episcopal Church Charlevoix speaking on the topic of building a personal devotional life. Her topic "Speak Lord, I'm Listening" is born from her own experience. Mrs. Ames has done extensive prayer counseling in inner healing. In October she will be traveling with her husband to Nairobi Africa on a missionary tour. Transitions, the Middle Years - the best of time - the worst of times? will be led by Barbara Terry. She will address the issues, the changes, the trauma's that take place in our lives as women as we move into or out of the middle years. Mrs. Terry has just recently returned to school and is finishing up a graduate degree in Family Ecology from Michigan State University. One of her emphases has been women in transition.

The final Focus on Women program will again feature Mickey Grooters who will wrap the sessions up by addressing the questions raised in the 80's for women. She will speak to the woman of the 80's on the topic - Liberation - the meaning of being fully free.

Focus on Women is a part of the broader Super Summer Wednesday Program and as such there are additional classes for children of all ages, and there is a nursery.

The ACTS Troup, above, will present a program of sacred drama and music at the Community Church of God, 202 W. Hurlbut Street in Charlevoix, this Sunday, July 3, according to Rev. Walter G. Hastings, pastor.

The ACTS Troupe is a group of students from Anderson College in Anderson, Indiana, who have a strong belief in the effectiveness of drama in the mission and enrichment of the church. This summer they will be traveling through ten states, mainly in the midwest U.S., sharing with churches through the media of drama and music. Their programs call for a return to the simple truths that are the cornerstone for a thriving relationship with Jesus Christ, with emphasis on the importance of the Christian family unit in our society today. Their programs draw heavily from material orginated by Chuck Bolte and the Jeremiah People. They use humor, meaningful songs, and deep-reaching drama to entertain, to touch souls, and to minister to the families in our churches today.

Fashion Shows popular in Northern Michigan

Fashion shows have been a popular summer pastime in Northern Michigan for many years, and each summer their popularity seems to grow by leaps and bounds.

This summer proves to be no exception. Area shops are gearing up for the weekly fashion shows, giving fashion conscious women (and some men) the opportunity to see what the newest fashions and fads are and what local shops have on their shelves.

In Petoskey, Stafford's Bay View Inn offers luncheon fashion shows each Thursday. The majority of shops showing at Stafford's are from the Gaslight District and many have outlets in Naples, Fla., Fort Lauderdale, Fla. and Scottsdale, Ariz.

This year the first show at Stafford's will be Thursday, July 7 and with the exception of Aug. 18 when the annual Little Traverse Hospital Auxiliary will have their annual luncheon benefit, fashion shows will be held each Thursday concluding with a Grand Finale on Thursday, Aug. 25.

Mary Lee Huber will again be organizing and commentating the Stafford shows, and is excited about the "new look" Staffords is offering this year.

The remodeled dining area now offers a new runway, according to Ms. Huber, and instead of the models entering the center of the dining room, they will be entering the south portion of the dining room area and proceed to the north portion of the room.

Also new this year is pre-show entertainment which will be provided by music students from the Bay View Music Conservatory. They not only will play prior to the show, but will offer background music during the show. A wide array of door prizes will be given away at each show and Kilwin's candies will provide table favors.

Area shops involved in Stafford's shows this year include The Bahnhof, The Circus Shop, The Coachman, La-Shack, The Clothes Tree, The cottage, Nawrot Pendleton, The Willow Tree, Lilly Pulitzer, Pappagallo, The Clothes Post, Mettlers, The Outfitter, Kalchik Linens, The Rage, Ed Behan's Tweed Shop, Country Casuals and Harold Grant.

Lunch at Stafford's begins at noon and the fashion shows start at approximately 12:20 and last at least 60 minutes. Stafford's would appreciate reservations.

In Harbor Springs, fashion shows are held each Tuesday and Jan Parsons, popular Harbor Springs model, will be coordinating the models and shops. Numerous Harbor Springs shops are involved in these shows, including Cutler's The Outfitter, Nawrot Pendleton, The Depot of Harbor Sprigs and The Harbordashery. These shows will continue to be held on in informal basis, according to Ms. Parsons.

The models walk from table to table describing their outfits and answer questions from the diners. The Pier shows begin at 12:30 each Tuesday. The first show will be June 28 and continue each succeeding Tuesday for 10 weeks.

The Perry-Davis Hotel in Petoskey also has informal fashion shows, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays throughout the summer, beginning at 12:30 p.m.

Harold Grants and Cutler's appear on a regular basis at the Perry-Davis and other summer shops will be represented periodically. Again, these fashion shows are held informally, with models able to talk to the diners and potential customers as they walk through the spacious dining room.

In Charlevoix, fashion shows are held aboard the Star of Charlevoix while cruising Lake Charlevoix and the bay. The cruise ship kicked off their season with a special fashion show on June 8. During the summer season, the last week in June through Labor Day, the Star of Charlevoix will have fashion shows each Wednesday beginning at noon. A new addition this year, is fashion shows during the Monday evening dinner cruises (with the excep-

Women's Housebuilding Course to be Offered in Michigan

A unique opportunity for women is being brought to Good Hart, Michigan, by two enterprising women and a nationally known energy and construction firm. Jane Stipe and Celeste Klein, both of Good Hart, and Cornerstones Energy Group, Inc., of Brunswick, Maine, will jointly offer a special "Housebuilding for Women" program, September 26 - October 14, 1983.

Housebuilding for Women, a successful course at Cornerstones School for owner-builders for several years now, is an extensive three-week course. It emphasizes hands-on construction experience and development of the basic skills for building an energy-efficient home. The course is taught by Dale McCormick, head instructor at Cornerstones and author of Against the Grain: A Carpentry Manual for Women (Iowa City Women's Press, 1977). Under the guidance of professional women carpenters, the students are immersed in the building process from the beginning... they actually construct an energy-efficient structure from the ground up.

Both Stipe and Klein are Cornerstones graduates, having taken the Housebuilding for Women course at the School's Brunswick location in 1982. In Good Hart, the building project will be Ms. Stipe's new shop, a 16'x24' 1½-story solar tempered structure which is owner-designed.

The premise of all Cornerstones' courses is to learn by doing. The emphasis is on structural and energy-efficient theory and technique through on-the-job training. Mornings begin with crew formation and job assignments. Lectures/demonstrations, use of power tools, laying out studs and joists, sheathing, flooring, rafters, the theory of forces and loads, passive solar theory and energy efficiency are but a few of the topics covered during the day. End-of-the-day wrap-ups are held to keep everyone informed of each crew's activities and progress and problems encountered.

In past years, Housebuilding for Women students have built such structures as passive solar additions and houses, and even a new boat storage building for the Maine Maritime Museum. The challenge of building is met head-on in this course–just as it is encountered by owner-builders in the field. As with all of Cornerstones' courses, energy-efficiency and quality construction are emphasized.

"Housebuilding gives a person a sense of self-sufficiency. Active participation at the building site increases familiarity and understanding while lessening the awesomeness of the project," says Susan Black Wing, co-founder of Cornerstones. "The Cornerstones' experience emphasizes the sharing of skills. In a profession usually associated with men, the opportunity to learn new skills in a mutually supportive atmosphere builds the momentum for continuing on one's own."

"Empowerment. That's what learning to use tools is all about," says McCormick, herself the first woman to complete the Iowa Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiner's Apprenticeship. "For many women, our courses provide the first opportunity to hold power over the physical world–over the materials found in everyday life: wood, nails, glass, glue and chemicals. It's an empowering feeling that reaches into their personal lives. They construct a building, and it's standing there. They never thought they could do it. But they did."

The students are women of diverse backgrounds and interests: lawyers, housewives, students, bakers, engineers, and barbers. They all come together to fulfill a basic need: they want to build their own homes themselves or with their partners. They are motivated individuals with a commitment to themselves. Not only does the course provide them with an unparalleled learning experience, but the atmosphere generated by many different backgrounds and personalities all working toward a common goal is charged with a unique energy and enthusiasm that carries past the course and into the strong bonds of lasting friendship.

Cornerstones Energy Group, Inc., is an energy education and technical services company found in 1976 by Dr. Charlie Wing and Susan Black Wing. Among the services it offers are owner-builder courses, training in energy auditing and passive solar design analysis, buildings research, design and construction, microcomputer software for energy conservation applications, and consulting services. TRAVEL

Alaska Adventure

By MEG BROWN
Of Bayside Travel

Adventure travel is the title that is being given by the travel industry for a form of travel that is gaining popularity among U.S. travelers. The term refers to travel which includes such travel experiences as camping, river rafting, back packing, mountain climbing.

Due to the increase in popularity, new travel companies are forming which provide adventure travel packages to the consumer. One of the ideal locations for such adventure travel is Alaska, and one of the established companies is Alaska Travel Adventures. From time to time, such companies provide familiarization trips to travel agents in order to introduce and familiarize the agent with the travel product available to the consumer.

Northwest Orient and Alaska Travel Adventures offered such a trip June 11th through June 17th and this adventuresome travel agent decided to give it a whirl. With send off remarks from my partners at Bayside such as, "I'll take all the Cruise familiarization trips and you can take all the back packing trips that come along!" and "I read your itinerary, and for the future financial welfare of the business, I think you should take out life insurance!" — I meekly boarded the plane for Chicago.

Northwest now offers direct flights to Anchorage from Chicago, but since I was scheduled to meet the group of fellow travel agents in Seattle, I took the flight which went through Seattle.

This time of year there is a four hour time difference between Alaska and Michigan, so when we arrived in Anchorage in the early afternoon their time, I was ready for supper and early retirement to bed. Our three guides would not heed such a request, and rushed us off into a converted school bus for our northly trip to Denali National Park.

Most adventure travel tours use vans for transportation and are designed for eight to twelve participants. That would be an ideal sized group. Since the response from travel agents was so great, our group was made up of twenth-three travel agents from all over the United States.

I found personally that adventure travel is just what the name implies - a great adventure! Alaska is a vast treasure house of wilderness beauty — here are a few locations which were highlights of my adventure.

Denali National Park (formerly Mt. McKinley National Park) is 6 million acres of breathtakingly beautiful wilderness. The Park is located 240 miles north of Anchorage and 120 miles south of Fairbanks. Mt. McKinley was called Denali "The High One" by the native Alaskans, and is crowned by twin peaks which soar to an altitude of 20,320 feet. This is the highest point in North America, and it was in the foothills of Mt. McKinley where we camped for two days in tents, and did hiking and very successful fishing.

Denali National Park Hotel is at the entrance of Denali National Park and is unique and charming. Due to a spring fire which totally destroyed the original lodge in the early 70's, pullman sleeper cars were brought in to house the summer guests. The accommodations were such a success that in rebuilding the lodge, the sleeper cars, and dining and club cars were incorporated into the structure.

Anchorage is a young and growing city of 250,000 which because of its rapid growth since its founding in 1914 is a city of great contrasts from luxury hotels to log cabins within the city limits next to high rise apartments.

Eagle River is a lovely wilderness river located in the Anchorage area and great for river rafting. We had a wonderful four hour raft trip with a leisurely luncheon on the banks. All such excursions can be booked in the lobbies of the major hotels in Anchorage.

Kantishna Gold Mine is at the very end of the 87 mile road in Denali National Park. It's an active gold mine, and Mr. and Mrs. Ashbury, the owners, are the only two residents of Denali National Park in the winter, when they use only dog sled for transportation. Their roadhouse located at the bush camp has hearty, tasty food.

Denali Cabins was a real oasis after three nights of tenting. They're great cabins with community baths and outdoor hot tubs.

Alyeska Resort is a rustic ski resort about an hour and a half drive from Anchorage. Skiing at Mt. Alyeska began in the early 1960's. The number one chair lift is approximately one mile in length and offers a glorious panorama. The lodge was another haven for weary back packers. We welcomed the lovely accommodations and dining facilities.

All in all touring Alaska is a grand adventure that you should not miss!

Exercise

Exercise is a big business. Vital Options led by Candy Smith in the Charlevoix area is a major part of that big business in Northern Michigan.

Vital Options Exercise is a total physical fitness program involving the three components of an ideal conditioning workout, namely, stretch (flexibility), strength (muscle endurance), and stamina (aerobic conditioning). It is one hour long, choreographed to music, and designed to condition specific muscle groups while not stressing them to the pain threshold. Care is taken at all times to protect the back. Movements are fluid and are held rather than jerked (a muscle is like a rubber band and should be stretched rather than pulled and snapped back). The program begins with a warm-up (as all good fitness programs should), movements become increasingly difficult while incorporating flexibility and muscle endurance, then progress to the aerobic (with oxygen) workout. The aerobics are followed by a cool-down, back exercises and stress relaxation techniques.

Vital Options has been incorporated for five years, and Owners, Joan Thornton and Deanna Hawthorne have worked extremely had to earn the excellent reputation they now have.

Though both women draw on extensive backgrounds of physical fitness experience and education, they rely a great deal on a highly qualified medical staff.

Deanna Hawthorne states "We feel the experienced medical advisory staff guarantees our students one of the most effective, yet safeguarded exercise programs in the state. Our fitness program is not only fun ... but safe."

New laws on mopeds will be enforced starting this week

by DAVE KNIGHT

Mopeds are the transportation of the 80s. Fuel efficient, easy to park and store and just plain fun to ride, these bicycle-motorcycle hybrids are rapidly growing in popularity all across the country, Charlevoix included.

There are no statistics available but Charlevoix Police Chief Jack Mol agrees that the number of mopeds on local streets has increased substantially over the past three years.

But as the mopeds have multiplied, so have some of the traffic hazzards they create.

Many of the moped riders are young children without regular drivers' licenses who have little experience in urban traffic situations. While the state requires moped operators to pass a 40-question test – which a State Department employee described as "really very simple" – there is no road test or behind-the-handlebars experience neccessary.

Also, the original mopeds were actually just bicycles with small motors attached so many operators still think that whatever can be done with a bicycle can be done with a moped. This leads to some abuses in where mopeds are ridden and how they are handled.

Although Charlevoix last week recorded only its first serious traffic mishap involving a moped in which a young man was sent to the hospital after running a stop sign and hitting a car, Chief Mol says he has seen plenty of other close calls.

On June 16, a new state law went into effect pertaining to the operation of mopeds. Said Mol this week, "We're going to start enforcing it Wednesday (July 6)."

Under the new law, the following changes have been made in regard to mopeds:

-Mopeds can be more powerful and do not have to have pedals as in the previous legal definition. The new law defines a moped as any two or three wheeled vehicle which has a motor that does not exceed 50 cc's of piston displacement, produces 2.0 brake horsepower or less, has a top speed of 30 miles per hour on a level surface (an increase from the former 25 mph maximum) and does not have a gear shift.

-Every person under 19 must wear an approved safety helmet while operating a moped.

Portions of the law that remain unchanged include the provisions that to operate a moped, one must be at least 15 years old and have either a valid drivers license or a special moped license.

Riding mopeds on bicycle paths or sidewalks is illegal. Riding at night is "discouraged" according to the state law.

Mol said that some problems have developed in the past couple years with mopeds being ridden through populated city park and beach areas. Through increased surveillance and help from lifeguards on duty at the city's beaches, he hopes to curtail this activity.

The procedure for a 15-year old to follow when getting his or her moped license begins when the applicant goes to the local Secretary of State's office with a parent.

To receive the license, the applicant must pass an eye test, the 40-question written test and have his or her parent sign a liability form.

Said Mol, "It's just like anything else. Mopeds can be fun and they are very useful vehicles. But when people abuse them, we've got problems."

Jack Urben's Green Pines company will package a live Scotch pine into the box he is shown holding above and ship it anywhere in the country in time for Christmas.

Send a tree for Christmas, says Urben

by DAVE KNIGHT

Make no mistake; there are many advantages to living in the Sunbelt States. But there are a few sacrifices, too.

One of them becomes evident around late December when it's time to decorate the Christmas tree. Since Christmas trees don't grow down South, you either settle for a fake or pay $50 to $100 for the real thing trucked down from the north woods.

This bothered Jack Urben of Charlevoix whose parents are now retired in living in the South. How could they enjoy a traditional Christmas season, he wondered, without a traditional tree?

Even if his parents did splurge on one of the imports displayed in parking lots throughout the South, he knew it would be of much poorer quality than the beautiful trees of Northern Michigan.

Urben decided to solve his problem – and that of others who would like to provide distant family or friends with real, live Christmas trees – by offering a unique new service.

For $30, Green Pines: The Christmas Tree Company will deliver a live Northern Michigan grown Scotch pine to anywhere in the continental United States about two weeks before Christmas. (For $25 more, a tree can be air-shipped to Hawaii.)

"There must be a lot of people who'd love to receive a premium tree, or give a real Christmas tree – older people, busy people, executives looking for unusual gifts for colleagues or employees," Urben recalls thinking.

His first move was to approach Clifford Gearhart of the Wolverine area who, with his sons Dan and Dave, has grown Christmas trees for over 40 years. The Gearhart plantation is one of the largest and most experienced operations of its kind in Northern Michigan.

Gearhart worked with Urben, who also operates the Crown Drug store in Charlevoix, in devising a system which is not really new but greatly improved. Mail orders are received by Urben until September 30. The best quality five to six foot Scotch pines are then selected from a crop of over 500,000 growing on a 1,500 acre spread.

A specially designed machine gently compresses the tree and, in a matter of seconds, inserts it into a decorated box approved by United Parcel Service for shipment. The box, designed by Urben, is 66 inches long and treated with wax on the exterior to hold the white, green and red colored decorations and on the inside to hold moisture for the tree.

Ventilation holes allow the tree to breathe so that when it arrives, the recipient simply opens the box and out pops a beautiful, live Scotch pine, "as fresh and green as the day it was cut."

"What a neat product," says Urben, "It's clean, fresh, wholesome, traditional. Everyone loves Christmas trees."

One thing Urben has learned from the Gearharts is that growing choice Christmas trees is a very precise science. Since the Green Pines company is interested in only high quality trees, Urben has made a point to educate himself on how the best Christmas trees are cultivated.

The trees to be shipped are all eight years old. They were hand-planted as two year old seedlings and carefully pruned and shaped each summer thereafter to retard rapid upward growth and develop the full, tapered shape of the traditional Christmas tree.

Selections are made in late November when the sap is well up in the tree. The November climate of Northern Michigan provides a natural refrigeration after the trees are cut. Shipping begins in early December so trees arrive at their destinations with plenty of time for decorating.

"We expect orders to come from individuals and businesses. We think people will be excited by the chance to give such an unusual, convenient but really traditional gift," says Urben.

Orders are now being taken by Green Pines: The Christmas Tree Company at 306 Clinton, Charlevoix, 49720.

So if you're Christmas shopping for someone who has everything – except a real Christmas tree – Jack Urben now has the perfect solution.

Greensky Hill Mission Church begins 150-year observance

by PEG OHLE

Time will turn backward at the Greensky Hill United Methodist Church next week.

Beginning on Sunday, members and friends of the Church will participate in week-long activities celebrating the 150th anniversary of the founding of the church.

Recalling the days of a century and a half ago, the story will be retold about how Peter Greensky, a young Chippewa brave who had been trained in a Protestant missionary school, brought 27 Indian families from the Mission Peninsula near Traverse City to Charlevoix and established a church on grounds that had been a meeting place for Indian tribes for centuries.

WELCOMING VISITORS TO CHARLEVOIX and keeping the streets and sidewalks clean this summer will be Sherry Williams, left, and Mark Wieser, who have been chosen to be this summer's employees in the "Host and Hostess Program". The program, originated last year, is sponsored by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and the Downtown Merchants Association. Sherry and Mark will walk the streets throughout the summer picking up litter and assisting summer visitors when neccessary. They will be distinguished by their pink shirts monogrammed with "Charlevoix the Beautiful."

The Greensky Hill Mission Church

While there is no specific documentation of his travels, it is believed that Peter Greensky and his followers entered Round Lake through the Pine River Channel, paddling from there through the Old River that separated Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix, and into Lake Charlevoix, where they beached their boats on Oyster Bay.

It was only a short walk (probably along a trail) from there to the tribal meeting place which had been marked by a circle of bent maple trees. Peter Greensky established his mission on this spot overlooking a small, peaceful body of water which he named "Susan Lake" in honor of his wife.

The first church on what became to be known as "Greensky Hill" was a wigwam-like structure built of bows. Eventually, there was need for a larger church building, and about 1860, a long church was constructed. That church, which is still used by the congregation, will be the site of next week's celebration.

At next Sunday's services, Methodist Bishop Marjorie Matthews of Wisconsin will be the guest speaker. She formerly served as Superintendent of the Grand Traverse District so is familiar with Greensky Hill and its history. Other activities that day will include a dinner following the 9:30 worship service and a re-union of church friends.

Dr. Kenneth Deer, a native American who serves on the Methodist Board of Global Ministeries, will be the guest speaker at heritage meetings at 7 p.m. next Monday and Tuesday, followed by the Rev. Samuel MaCkety, Administrator of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings, July 13, 14, and 15.

The celebration will be taken up again on August 14, when a group of descendents of early Greensky Hill settlers who live in Minnesota will return to the land of their fathers.

Charlevoix Yesterday

Modern condominium units now stand on the south bluff of the Pine River Channel where the Oldham Club was once located. However, it is interesting to note that even in the days of cedar log foundations, the view from the riverbank was highly appreciated.

Old photos bring responses

A few weeks ago, the Courier ran a picture of a boat aground on the beach near Boulder Park in 1943.

We did not know the name of the boat when we printed the picture, but several readers called to tell us it was the the "Golden Rule", owned by one of Charlevoix's most famous citizens, Allie Moore.

Local historian Bob Miles, in his book "Bob Miles' Charlevoix", tells the story of Moore, the "Golden Rule", and the accident that beached the boat:

"Although Allie Moore verged on being a comic character, a strange dignity in his makeup never quite allowed that. But character he was, and nothing be ever did but the imp of humor was hovering close by.

"On one occasion, he had taken a lady for a sail in the North Point area of Little Traverse Bay. He took along his great dane, which was his inseparable companion at all times and was number one in Allie's affections. Without warning, a sudden squall so damaged the boat that the Coast Guard had to come to the rescue. They shot a breeches buoy over the cross trees of one of the masts, and Allie, ignoring the lady, proceeded to put his dog into the breeches buoy. An irate Coast Guardsmen yelled through a megaphone 'Put the lady in first or we won't help any of you!'

"With a grin on his face, Allie complied."

The picture of the boat was lent to us by Lucille Beluser, a former Charlevoix resident.

Also, last week we ran a picture of Charlevoix athletes from the early 1900's and asked if anyone could identify them. (One was identified by the person who lent us the picture as Albert Taylor).

Now comes Benona (Bun) Koehler, who tells us that the young man in the center of the picture holding—the trophy is Ned Durance. To the back and left of him is Clare Nowland, and to the back and right is Ed Krullik.

Library summer reading program to begin this week

The Summer Yummers Reading Program will begin at the Charlevoix Public Library on Wednesday July 6th, at 1:00 with our annual opening party.

The program is designed to encourage reading and to help keep kids reading over the summer vacation. The program is not a contest. There will be a closing party in August where the kids will receive their reading logs, a list of all the books that they read over the summer, and an achievement certificate for participating.

If you have any questions please call the library at 547-2651.

Sweet Adelines celebrate

The Beaver Island Chapter of the Sweet Adelines hosted eight chapters of the organization recently celebrating their charter membership in Sweet Adelines.

Ninety members including the Michigan chapters and two from Canada were in attendance for the gala weekend event. Among those attending were the regional champions of the Great Lakes chapter.

The Sweet Adelines chapter here is presently making plans for the Second Summer Serenade Dinner Dance on August 27 as a fund-raising project. The island group is also planning to attend the 37th annual Convention and Competition of Sweet Adelines, Inc. to be held at Cobo Hall in Detroit, Oct. 25-29.

Dr. E.E. Wolfram

Speaker named for Family Camp Meeting

Dr. E.E. Wolfram will be the speaker for the Charlevoix Family Camp Meeting, which will be held July 9-17 in Charlevoix, according to the Rev. Walter G. Hastings, host pastor. The Family Camp is sponsored by the Churches of God in Northern Michigan, and the public is cordially invited to attend. The campground is located at Loeb and Veenstra Roads, just off highway 66, about three miles south of Charlevoix.

Dr. Wolfram is presently engaged in full-time evangelistic work, and has traveled and preached widely in camp meetings and conventions around the world. He served for many years as Executive Secretary of the Board of Pensions for the Church of God. Prior to that be served on the World Service staff for the Church of God.

Dr. Wolfram will be speaking at the 7:30 p.m. service each evening, and will lead a morning conference at 9:30 a.m. on the topic "Where Is the Church of God Going?"

The Charlevoix Camp Meeting was begun in 1906 at its present location, and special meetings have been held almost every year since that time. The Community Church of God in Charlevoix began at the campgrounds and worshipped there for eleven years, until the congregation moved to its present location at 202 W. Hurlbut Street in town.

Daily vacation activities are planned, making the Charlevoix Family Camp unique among camp meetings. This allows for a relaxed atmosphere which is conducive to fellowship, worship, and enjoyment for all ages. The special feature this year will be an all-day trip to Mackinac Island on Thursday.

For further information on the camp meeting, interested persons may call 547-9508 or 547-2875.

Freedom Within Limits

G.K. Chesterton tells the parable of children playing on an island with steep cliff-like sides in the middle of the ocean. In the meadow of the island they sing and dance and play - and often scrape themselves on a stone wall which was put there hundreds of years ago to protect them from falling into the sea. One day some people came to the island and said, "You don't need the wall - be free to do whatever you want to do. Tear it down." Wishing to be really free, they did just that. They finally had it: freedom without limits. But now they no longer sing and dance and play. They huddle in terror in the center of the island, afraid of falling into the boiling ocean.

Even back in paradise when man was as free as he ever was, there were limits to that freedom: "Do not eat of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil - for in the day that you do, you shall surely die." That's the voice of a loving God - Who offers us freedom - complete freedom. The only freedom He does not wish for us is the freedom to destroy ourselves - to destroy our relationship with Him - to lose our joy. That He does not wish us to do. Other than that - with that limitation - we are free.

Some of God's words are "Do this" and "Don't do that". God's commands don't mean that we can't do it - they just mean that we can't do it without suffering the consequences. He gives us His words and ways so that we will not have to suffer the consequences. He loves us too much to allow us not to live.

Martin Luther's great contribution to this is: "Perfect freedom is slavery to Jesus Christ." Because only Jesus offers you forgiveness for your disobedience - He takes away the consequences. Only Jesus offers you life when you deserve death. Only in Jesus is there real freedom: freedom from sin and death - freedom to live now and live forever. Your following and obeying Jesus is the one limitation on your freedom. Some limitation!!

Annual tour to feature six distinctive homes of Charlevoix

by PEG OHLE

The six public spirited Charlevoix families who consented to open their homes for the Charlevoix Home Tour benefiting the Charlevoix Area Hospital are busy getting their houses, apartments, and yards in shape for the inspection that every such "open house" brings.

The Tour, which will take place on Saturday afternoon, July 16, from 1 to 5:30 p.m., is sponsored by Kappa Sigma Sorority under the chairmanship of Eileen Heck and Lilly Matye. It will feature two of the distinct boulder houses of the late Charlevoix architect Earl Young, two lakeside condominium units, an older in-town summer home, and a Lake Charlevoix residence.

The owners of the Earl Young homes are Jeannine Wallace, who lives on Clinton Street, and Shirley and Max Wayburn, who live in Boulder Park on Lake Michigan.

Those opening their condominium units for public view are Alyce Lesser and Pat and Peter Cook. Their apartments are in The Lake House Condominium on a bluff overlooking Lake Michigan. The Lake House was designed by local architect Jack Begrow.

Daisy and Clayton Scott's home is on Michigan Avenue, a street that once made Charlevoix and lovely summer cottages synonymous.

Peg and Carl Johnson's home on Cedar Lane overlooking Lake Charlevoix was designed by another well-known Charlevoix architect, Hans Wiemer.

Each home has its own personality, reflecting a diversity of tastes from modern to antique, according to Suzi Reis, who was in charge of securing the homes for the benefit Tour.

This is the second Charlevoix Home Tour sponsored by Kappa Sigma. Following last year's successful venture, it was decided to make it an annual affair for the benefit of the hospital. The Tour has also become somewhat of a community effort, with several commercial organizations participating in it.

This year, Tim's Natural Foods will assist with the refreshments to be served at the Wallace home, and flowers for all the homes on the tour are being furnished by the Charlevoix Garden Club, Greenleaf Country Gardens, and Expressions Unlimited. Terry Salmonson of Aartvark Studios has donated his photographic talents, and Trevor Wood has provided etchings for advertisements. Artist Sue Bolt contributed the artwork for advertising posters.

Local merchants and professional people are sponsoring media advertising for the Home Tour.

Kappa Sigma members with specific Home Tour duties, in addition to those mentioned above, are Donna Moore and Connie Phillips, publicity; and Phyllis Hess, Carol Pirie, Judy LaFave, Eileen Heck, Kathy Boyer, and Carrie Engle, home hostesses.

Tickets for the Home Tour are available at the Shop of the Gulls, The Apple Tree, and Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce in Charlevoix, and at The Tin Soldier in Harbor Springs, and the Petoskey Chamber of Commerce. The price is $10. No children under 12 will be permitted on the Tour.

The Jeannine Wallace home, a classic Earl Young structure, will be featured in the home tour.

New program will notify parents when teens found drinking

In a pilot program to be initiated by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, parents of teenage children found drinking by Sheriff's Deputies will be now notified by the Department and advised of the circumstances involving their son or daughter's use of alcohol.

According to Sheriff George T. Lasater, the program is being established to deal more effectively with the problem of teenage drinking in the county. In particular, said Lasater, the program is hoped to discourage the use of intoxicants by teenagers driving vehicles.

Over the past eight years, teenage drivers have been involved in 224 traffic accidents in Charlevoix County and alcohol was a factor in 54 of those resulting in numerous injuries and two deaths, according to Sheriff's Department statistics.

Under the program, a two-step procedure will be followed each time a Deputy Sheriff finds a teenager who lives with his or her parents and who the Deputy feels has been drinking (but without enough evidence to charge the individual with a criminal offense of minor in possession).

First the Deputy will complete an incident report and turn it over to the Sheriff. Then the Sheriff will send a letter to the parents of the individual advising them of the date, time and location of the incident. The letter will ask the parent to discuss the situation with the child and also include information on where the parent can seek help if their child is having problems with alcohol.

According to Lasater, the program has been endorsed by various school administrators and parents in Charlevoix County.

KCB opts for more aggressive role

At their annual meeting held June 25 at the Weathervane Restaurant, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, Inc. heard the results of a membership survey in which a strong majority indicated their preference for the organization's active participation in environmental issues.

Survey statements receiving the largest number of positive responses were those advocating the KCB role in educating the public on environmental matters and providing a forum for discussion on those matters and the organization's efforts in actively influencing "favorable action short of taking part in official elections."

Because of the organization's recently obtained tax-exempt status, according to the group's legal counsel, it's ability to become actively involved in political matters is limited.

At a board meeting following the annual meeting, it was unanimously decided to form a separate organization to take more aggressive action on environmental issues.

Knight on the Town

A good match

by Dave Knight

Match making is a real talent and nobody does it better, I learned last week, than Vernice Smith at the Charlevoix County Humane Society.

It was time for us to acquire another dog. If you'll remember the last installment on this subject, my beautiful but slightly goofy golden retreiver named Swifty moved out last year when I had to decide between keeping him or my wife and child.

Some dog lovers still criticize me for opting for the wife and child.

At any rate, the decision was made last week that a watchdog was needed on the Knight spread so it was off to the Humane Society to check out the used dogs on the lot.

I should mention that I have had a somewhat erratic track record with dogs. Fact is, I go through them like George Steinbrenner goes through managers. Of the last two, both of whom were pure bred specimens, one ate the entire interior of a station wagon during a hockey game and the other had the nasty habit of jumping onto my lap every time it thundered.

Thus I had given up on dogs with papers and decided to go for the generic variety when daughter Gretchen and I visited Vernice at the county pound last week.

What we had in mind was a puppy but Vernice advised against it. The training, she said, is a long, time consuming process and sometimes the little critters can be rather rough with kids until they develop manners.

When I told her exactly what we wanted the dog for, Vernice though a moment and then said she had just the one. We went back into the kennels and she produced a fairly healthy looking husky-shepard mix who was obviously eager to be sprung.

A female stray, it had been slated for the big sleep earlier in the week, said Vernice, but it was such a nice dog she had stayed its sentence hoping some nice new owner would come along.

So Dave, Gretchen and an excited 40-pound dog squeezed into the cab of a Toyota pickup and headed for home. Suffice it to say that that is one way to get to know your new dog in a very short hurry.

Since its arrival, the new dog has adapted faster and better than any of its blueblood predecessors. It's alert, gentle and stays on the property.

The only problem we had was in trying to agree on a name. I wanted to call it Mardean. Mardean was the name of a girl I knew back in high school. This dog reminded me of her because it followed me around just like she did and – forgive me, God – there was more than a slight physical resemblance as well.

But the name Mardean gagged my wife with a spoon so the debate continued.

Finally the perfect name hit me like an apple falling out of a tree. What could be more appropriate than to name the dog after the one who made such a happy match.

Vernice it is.

Greensky Hill...

The Greensky Hill Church is affiliated with the Charlevoix United Methodist Church, of which the Rev. David Yingling is the pastor. He conducts regular services at Greensky Hill at 9:30 a.m. every Sunday during the summer. Visitors are always welcome, and those with an historical bent will be interested in seeing the building and the surrounding area which has been designated both a National and a State Historic Site.

The old Greensky Hill Cemetery, where Peter Greensky is buried, lies in back of the Church. Although it is now overgrown and its wooden crosses have long since disintegrated, it is an integral part of Charlevoix's earliest history.

The Greensky Hill United Methodist Church can be reached by driving north from Charlevoix on US-31 to the Boyne City Road, turning right and driving about three and a half miles to Old US-31, then left a short distance up the hill.

The Church is on the right out of view, but there is a sign on the roadside pointing towards its location.

Clockwise

Wowed by Washington

by Bob Clock

IF BASEBALL is the national sport, softball is the capital sport.

One of the surprises of the Clocks' recent trip to Washington, D.C., was the good use sports addicts are making of the grounds around our federal monuments.

As soon as the governmental offices close, the Mall, the Ellipse, and the spacious acerage around the Washington Monument begin filling up with ballplayers. From the top of the monument you can see literally dozens of softball games — and a couple of soccer games — in progress at one time.

The players appeared to be young government workers, and most of the teams appeared to be composed of both of men and women.

And if Washington is experiencing any racial tension, you'd never know it from the complexion of the players on the various teams. They came in every hue.

Oddly enough, all that running and prancing around hasn't resulted in much wear and tear on the lush lawns. The teams carry their own bases and diamonds apparently are seldom located in the same spot two nights hand-running.

JOGGING IS another popular capital sport. Runners posed more of a hazard to pedestrians than motorized vehicles.

Unlike Charlevoix, where jogging is a morning or evening activity, Washington's joggers are out all day long, even under a blistering afternoon sun.

The walkways through the Mall between the Washington Monument and the Lincoln Memorial are particularly popular among joggers, probably because they can stop midway at a public refreshment stand for a cool tumbler of beer.

ALL IN ALL, Washington is a thoroughly civilized city. Can you imagine the City of Charlevoix selling beer in East Park? I can't.

Washington, to my surprise, also has a number of tree-shaded sidewalk cafes.

"Why it looks almost like pictures of Paris!" Jennifer cried.

The kids also were intrigued by a young man who played the flute on a busy street corner. The thin, plaintive notes were plainly audible above the roar of the traffic. Donations, of course, were welcome.

TRAFFIC IN THE capital is bad— but not nearly as bad as I remembered it 20 years ago, or even 40 years ago during the war. Arlington across the Potomoc River is another story. That once peaceful little community is now the home of dozens of high-rise office and apartment buildings surrounded by a maze of expressways.

One of our goals was to visit the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and President Kennedy's grave at Arlington National Cemetery. But we never made it. At every exit we were in the wrong lane because the road signs never warned us in time.

BUT MOUNT VERNON, home of President Washington, remains unchanged. It is reached via an uncrowded parkway through tree-shaded neighborhoods on the west bank of the Potomoc River. The old manse presently is undergoing restoration on the exterior. It came as something of a surprise that the house is sided with wooden blocks cut to resemble stone. They were "rusticated" with a mixture of paint and sand (Washington's idea, we were told) and over the years the sharp beveled edges of the blocks have become obliterated. However, the old surface — a quarter-of-an-inch thick in places — is being removed with hot irons and the building will be repainted.

Letters: Correct names

To the Editor:

Some time ago you had a picture of the class of 1918. (Fran Martin grabbed it out of my hand). Later you listed a long number of names that should have been in the class picture. They were so wrong. Here is a copy of the original list. You can't believe all you hear up there. The picture was correct and it was a grand old gang. The Kirby pictures are delightful, his family was tops. Your paper is enjoyed very much here.

B. H. Taggart

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mrs. Taggart, the former Beatrice Harrington, was a member of the 1918 graduating class at Charlevoix High School. She now lives in Ann Arbor. The copy of the commencement program she sent us lists the graduates from both the high school and the Charlevoix County Normal School. The combined commencement was held on May 30, 1918 in the Opera House.

Other members of the high school graduating class were Russel A. Schweitzer, Lillian MacNeill, Robert E. O'Nell, Hazel L. Allen, Jack S. Supernaw, Odillion B. Weed, Wilma Stevenson, Kenneth Widdifield, Katherine V. Harsha, Lee Newson, Bess G. Hammet, Roscoe G. Smith, Margaret Saunders, Leo M. Butler, Ila Dorothy Woods, and Benona J. Bartlett.

The Charlevoix County Normal School graduates were M. Mellisa Mayhew, Edith M. Carey, Vivia J. Keller, Eileen Gunsolus, Lillian B. MacNeill, and Rena Cram.

Parking sting?

To the Editor:

This letter is not directed to the City of Charlevoix, but rather to Charlevoix County and Marion Township.

My brother-in-law, who was an entry in the Michigan Amateur Golf Tournament, received a parking ticket along Marion Center Road near the Belvedere Golf Club. It was issued at 12:30 p.m. on Wednesday, June 22, which was the second day of the qualifying rounds of the Michigan Amateur. There were signs, and his and at least 30 other cars were illegally parked. This is not the issue.

The issue is that each one of those 30 cars probably represented a Michigan Amateur golfer who came to Charlevoix for the tournament, bringing family and friends with him, renting a motel room or local cottage, buying food, patronizing restaurants and stores, and generally adding out-of-town money to our economy. What does an outrageous fifteen-dollar parking ticket do to Charlevoix's public relations?

My brother-in-law suspects that only cars not from this area were ticketed. He has paid the fine. And he will be back to Charlevoix. He loves golf, the Michigan Amateur, and Charlevoix. But he feels as if he's been caught in a small town "sting" and he's mad. I though we were above this, and I'm embarrassed.

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Carter

Russell-Carter

Theresa A. Russell of Charlevoix and Marvin Thomas Carter, Jr., of Rosehill, N.C., exchanged their wedding vows in a double ring service solemnized at the United Methodist Church Saturday, June 25.

The parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Russell of Charlevoix and Marvin T. Carter, Sr., of Rosehill, N.C.

The Rev. David W. Yingling officiated at the ceremony in the presence of 200 guests. A unity candle surrounded with silk flowers in pastel shades and Boston ferns formed a setting for the service. Glenda Willis, at the organ, played a program of traditional music, the wedding march and processional. Mrs. Carlton Ikens, at the piano, accompanied the soloist, Cheryl Thayer, who sang "The Wedding Song" and "The Wedding Prayer".

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride chose a gown of chiffon and Irish lace for her wedding. Fashioned with a fitted bodice and Victorian neckline, accented with medallions of Irish lace, the gown featured a full skirt of tiers of Irish lace flounces. She wore a white picture hat with accents of the same lace and carried a bridal bouquet of gardenias, lavender and pink roses and baby's breath.

Rene' Russell served as her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Kim Carter of Rosehill, N.C., sister of the bridegroom, Shirley Russell, cousin of the bride, Mrs. Gerald Russell and Mrs. Edward Russell of Petoskey, sisters-in-law of the bride. They wore T-length gowns of taffeta with chiffon overlays in pastel shades of blue, pink, seafoam, cloud and orchid, respectively, and matching picture hats. They carried nosegays of white silk roses, forget-me-nots and baby's breath. Melissa Mosher, as flower girl, wore a pink taffeta gown with chiffon and lace overlay, a matching picture hat, and carried a basket of silk pastel flowers.

Marvin T. Carter, Sr. of Rosehill, N.C., assisted his son as best man. Groomsmen were Robert Russell, brother of the bride, Joseph Scott of Rosehill, N.C., Jeff Carter of Rosehill, N.C., uncle of the bridegroom and John LaBarge. Seating the guests were Gerald Russell and Edward Russell of Petoskey, brothers of the bride.

A reception, hosted by the bride's parents followed at the American Legion Post Home. Mr. and Mrs. Mayo Wood were in charge of the guest book. Mrs. Geraldine Aultman, aunt of the bridegroom, and Mrs Shirleen Curtis of Westland, aunt of the bride, served the wedding cake.

After a wedding trip to the Upper Peninsula and Canada, the couple is at home at Apartment 11, 201 Meech Street in Charlevoix.

Mr. Carter Sr. hosted a rehearsal dinner at the Russell residence on Friday evening.

Yachting Notes

by A. Nony Mouse

As the spring series draws to a close, old A. Nony has a few interesting comments and observations to share:

1. If you can't beat 'em, join 'em. A confirmed report that the crew of SPECTRE joined with ELUSIVE to beat MARANATHA (Martha) by three seconds.
2. Lou Hollow steered PHOENICIA to 10th place (nice job, Lou!).
3. Noticeably absent was HUMMER which was recently sold. Everybody moves up a notch.
4. Don't get excited, Gary Gleason's new boat will be on the course soon! Everybody might move back a notch.
5. RIBBIT's starts are not improving as well as the fleet had hoped.

On to the results:

Jack Begrow quenched his thirst for a victory with a MINT JULIP. He had a beautiful start and increased his lead on almost every leg of the course. CAMOFLAGE squeeked out second place from PYGMALION. Miss Piggy was third. NIGHT MOVES held off several attacks from CANUSA for fourth place.

In the Portsmouth fleet:

1. SEASCAPE
2. CHEEMAUN
3. LULL
4. TEG1
5. APOTHECARY

July 9th and 10th is the showdown one design regatta between the J-24s and the Santana 525s with a five race series. Skippers' meeting is a 9 a.m. at the Charlevoix Yacht Club. The first race is scheduled for 10:30 a.m.

Firemen to hold Flea Market

At 8:30 a.m. Saturday, July 9, the Charlevoix Volunteer Firemen wil conduct a Flea Market Sale. this event will be held in the old Erber garage located on Clinton St. just west of Bridge St.

All proceeds from this event will go to the Charlevoix Fire Engine Fund. The value of all items donated to the sale are tax deductible.

Those wishing to donate items for sale can either deliver them to the Fire Station at City Hall or phone 547-9601 and a truck will call to pick them up.

The volunteer firemen have now fully embarked on their 1983 drive to raise the neccessary funds to purchase the new engine. To date the total collected is approximately $75,000. It is hoped that the balance of the $125,000 needed to make the purchase can be raised yet this year.

Auction for the arts features many unusual items

The Crooked Tree Arts Council will present an all-day Auction for the Arts on Thursday, July 7.

Events will get underway at 10 a.m. when the radio auction begins on 106-WKHQ. The radio auction will go until 6 p.m. or until all of the 60 items which have been donated by area businesses and art supporters are sold.

At 6 p.m., the exciting evening at the McCune Arts Center will get underway, with cocktails and dancing to the Epsilon Jass Trio. The pictures and art objects to be auctioned off will be on view in the gallery, and catalogues will be avilable so you can mark off the items which you'd like to bid on.

For those of you who haven't witnessed auctioneer, Dory Diggs, wielding the gavel, you have a treat in store. She's a real pro, and keeps things moving at a fast pace.

The evening auction is a chance to pick up original works of art donated by many of our fine local artists at prices that will often by astoundingly low, and at the same time help the Crooked Tree Arts Council continue its assistance to area artists.

One of the works of the Arts Council is their artists' consignment shop, The Art Tree, located in the McCune Arts Center in Petoskey. It is open Mondays through Saturdays, from 10 till 5, and there artists can display their work, where it is sold on consignment. The commissions charged are favorable for the artists, as The Art Tree is staffed by many volunteers from all over Charlevoix and Emmet Counties.

The all-day radio auction will offer many unique items, such as dinner for two on the Star of Charlevoix, including viewing the surroundings from the Pilot House and a chance to steer the ship for Captain Bill Annand. Or perhaps you think it would be fun to raise and lower the Charlevoix drawbridge for a half hour with one of your children! PGA golf professional and director of the Boyne National Golf Academy, Tom Stewart, will be donating two golf lessons, and two-time Olympian, Cary Adgate, of Boyne City, will be offering two hour ski lessons during the week between Christmas and New Year's.

For your party, you can have piano music by Charlotte Ross-Lee, a woodwind quintet, or a "Belly-Gram" by Tanya Camilleri, Middle Easter dancer. Martha Lancaster of Catering to Your Every Whim will offer a Sacher Torte or Hors d'oeuvres for six persons, or Val Sterzik, local Oriental cooking expert, will prepare an oriental hors d'oeuvres tray, if you have her winning bid.

Lessons in sailboarding will be offered; lessons in riding by the Black Forest Farms Equestrian School, or perhaps you'd like to learn or improve your skills in playing the bagpipe or organ with lessons by Arts Center Director, Sean Ley.

School Board looks at new budget

The Charlevoix Board of Education, at its final meeting of the fiscal year, held budget and Truth in Taxation hearings, approved administrators' salaries for the coming year, along with debt retirement payments and heard several brief reports.

The proposed budget of $4.27 million which represent an increase of approximately six percent over the 1982-83 budget was presented. It will be underwritten by anticipated revenues of $4.19 million plus a fund balance of $868,000. Vincent Olach, business manager, said a line item budget will be presented this fall.

Administrators' contracts were extended for one year administrators' salaries are based on a formula that includes the amount they would receive as a teacher plus a percentage. There are no step increases.

Following the Truth in Taxation hearing, the issue was tabled until the next meeting scheduled for July 11.

Two debt retirement payments were approved. One was for $64,441 to be paid to the City National Bank of Detroit on the bonds in the high school and $115,429 to be paid to the Natinal Bank of Detroit on the elementary school bonds.

Supt. Gordon W. VanWieren reported that maintenance on the buildings was ahead of schedule; that a crew of four had been made available to the school through the Governor's Youth Training Program being handled through the M.E.S.A. and that three C.D.T.A. workers including two at the high school and one at the middle school were available.

Adjustments in the teaching staff were discussed but no action was taken at this time.

A report was also given on the Beaver Island Lighthouse project where CETA workers will be erecting a pole barn for storage, clearing land and constructing a classroom in the former foghorn building.

Gordon Meyers is open for business at the Market Mall Cafe.

Meyers open Market Mall Cafe

by PEG OHLE

Gordon and Jan Meyers came to Charlevoix from Redford Township to finalize negotiations for a restaurant they were about to buy. The deal fell through but they liked Charlevoix so well they decided to stay.

Now they have opened another restaurant. The Market Mall Cafe in the Mall at 405 Bridge Street offers a complete menu of all types of sandwiches -- American, Mexican, Mediterranean -- spinach pie, salads, soups, chili, desserts, and breakfast items such as bagels and English muffins.

The food may be taken out or eaten at one of the tables provided by the Market Mall.

Gordon Meyers learned the restaurant business in an unusual way. He told the Courier that he and Jan were in the real estate business in the Detroit area and began putting together restaurant packages for clients. In order to learn more about the restaurant business, Meyers went to work for several restaurant at no salary.

He went on from there, eventually opening an omelette restaurant in Redford Township. He plans to add omelettes to his menu here when he is able to expand a bit.

The Market Mall Cafe is open for breakfast at 8 a.m., with luncheon items available from 10 a.m. on. The Cafe closes at 9 p.m.

The efficient young lady you might find working behind the counter is Krista Meyers, age 12. She is one of the reasons the Meyers family decided to remain in Charlevoix.

"I don't want to sound corny, Gordon says, but we really like it here. We've met so many nice people."

Special clinic planned for 4-H members with animals to show

A livestock Fitting and Showing Clinic for 4-H members and other interested persons will be held at the Emmet County Fairgrounds on Saturday, July 9, from midday to 4:00 p.m.

The event is sponsored by Charlevoix County 4-H Youth Programs. According to Leah Green, 4-H County Staff, the clinic is intended to help all youngsters who will be showing an animal at the Fair. It is also intended to assist anyone who is interested in the subject of fitting and showing livestock.

Species to be included in the July 9th clinic are rabbits, poultry, sheep, swine, and beef. Those attending will get general instruction about preparing themselves and their animals to look and act their best in a judging situation, some tips for working on these areas and some hands-on practice.

"Throughout the year we try to serve different members in different project areas. In June it was a horse show to provide exposure for the Horse and Pony members, and now fitting and showing skills for livestock 4-H'rs. At the end of this month we will be on Beaver Island serving those who gain confidence and outdoor skills through camping," says Green.

The event will begin with a brown bag picnic with beverage provided at noon. General information in a short opening session will be given by David Shetterly, who is also the resource person on sheep. The main group will then break up into interest areas for separate species. The other resource people for the day are Charles Pelham, rabbits, Kyle Scott, a former 4-H livestock winner, swine, Rusty Hart, poultry and Harlan Howard, beef.

Family members and all interested youth or adults are welcome to attend. Please call the Cooperative Extension Service of Charlevoix County at 616-582-6232 to register. Cost for the clinic is $2.00 per family at the gate to defray travel expenses for the resource people.
